

The money you make isn't half so important as the money you save. Millions of dollars are wasted on expensive, indigestible foods—foods that supply no nutriment because they are not digested. Shredded Wheat supplies the greatest amount of nutriment at the lowest cost and with the least tax on the digestion. Being ready-cooked it saves fuel, saves time, saves money. Two of these little loaves of flavory baked whole wheat with hot milk and a little cream make a perfect meal. It is the most food for the least money.

IN MEMORIAM

JOSEPH DUNN

The death occurred Sunday night at the City Hospital of Joseph Dunn for the past four years Sexton of St. Dunstan's Cathedral.

The deceased who was in apparent good health, attended to his work about the Cathedral Sunday morning at the usual hour last night. About midnight he was taken ill and removed at once to the Hospital, expiring shortly after being admitted.

The late Joseph Dunn was well and favourably known, especially by the members of St. Dunstan's congregation. Besides his regular duties about the Cathedral, which he discharged faithfully and to the satisfaction of all, he always found time to assist the various organizations in any work undertaken for charitable purposes.

The deceased leaves a widow and a large family who will have the sympathy of all in their sad and sudden bereavement.

Returns To The

Trinidad Mission

Rev. F. J. Coffin, Ph. D., D. D., who has spent the summer in the province, leaves this morning for Halifax, en route for Trinidad. Dr. Coffin has been principal of the Presbyterian Theological College at Trinidad for the past twenty years and has in that time visited his native province on several occasions. The college of which he is principal is a training school for East Indian teachers and pastors in connection with the Canadian Mission. During many years the Canadian Presbyterian Church has maintained a large and rapidly growing educational work in the colony of Trinidad. Last year nearly 15,000 pupils were enrolled in the 15 primary schools of the Mission. In these schools there are 450 native East Indian teachers all of whom have been educated in the training department of the college. In addition to this department there are two high schools for boys and girls, attended by several hundred pupils. In the theological department last year 34 students were enrolled in preparation for the special evangelistic work of the Mission. During the 56 years of the history of the Mission good results have been manifested as seen in the general intellectual and moral improvement of the masses of the East Indian population of this colony many of whom now occupy positions of trust and prominence in the general life of the community.

Notwithstanding the supposedly detrimental effects of a tropical climate on the health of northern people, Dr. Coffin has well stood the strain, due no doubt largely to his occasional visits to his native province as well as to a naturally strong constitution. While on this visit he delivered a number of addresses in different parts of the province and his future visits will be looked forward to with pleasure by many friends.

The Guardian wishes him bon voyage and a return visit in the not distant future.

New Law in Effect Makes Single Corps Of Foreign Service

(United Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The United States foreign service, including consular and diplomatic officials in a single, interchangeable corps, is now functioning. State Department machinery having been completely overhauled and reorganized to put into effect the reorganization law passed at the last session of Congress.

A vast amount of detail work has been required, but now only one step remains—inauguration of the Foreign Service Training School within the department, authorized by the law—to ensure that future American diplomatic secretaries and consular officers are well equipped for the jobs to which they are assigned.

The first step in the reorganization, effected by executive order, was the creation of the Foreign Service Personnel Board to examine and report on the "character, ability, efficiency and general availability of all secretaries in the diplomatic service, consuls-general, consuls, vice-consuls of career, consular assistants, interpreters and student interpreters." The report was completed by July 1 and the actual interweaving of the consular and diplomatic services has been in progress on that basis.

A primary object of the reorganization, as explained during debates in Congress on the bill, "was to take the foreign service out of politics so far as possible. The personnel board machinery was designed to relieve the White House of the task of selecting for appointment any foreign service official except those ambassadors and ministers who are not taken from the career groups in the State Department."

There are indications already that the White House has taken immediate advantage of the relief afforded. So far as known, embassies, legations and consulates are being left entirely to the State Department.

The Personnel Board also regulates retirement under the 65-year age limit, pensions being drawn from a fund built up by retaining 5 percent from the salaries of all State Department personnel. One member of the diplomatic corps and 31 from the consular service already have been retired.

The work of the Personnel Board has by no means ended. Records of all officials have to be continually updated, and kept up to date; individual performances studied to determine in what particular field each individual is most proficient; special qualifications and limitations recorded for future reference. The board has also the power to recommend dismissal of officials whose efficiency rating is low. So far no dismissals have occurred, but some offenders have been demoted and warned that unless improvement is shown they will be dropped.

The Foreign Service School will come into full effect after the fall diplomatic examinations. Successful candidates will attend courses of lectures on all aspects of consular and diplomatic work, including also its subtler sides such as the trickeries most prevalent abroad for evading American regulations and obtaining passports under false pretences. Actual work in the divisions of the State Department will be intermingled with the lectures. After one year of schooling, department officials believe, the students' talents will have shown themselves.

Sage And Sulphur Darkens Gray Hair

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

"Best Thing in the World For Delicate Girls"

Mrs. John Bennett, Boggy Creek, Man., writes:
"My little girl had organic nervous trouble, could not sleep, had severe headaches and fainting spells. This went on for three years, and three doctors helped her very little. After reading of what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food had done for others, I got some for her. She is now so well that she is like a different child. She is fourteen years old and looks the picture of health."

"We have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for different members of the family, when recovering from 'flu' and scarlet fever, and it has always helped them."
