The fall of Sturmer, the Russian premier, and the appointment of a man in sympathy with the Duma is the most important incident in Russian history since the czar took the command of his armies after the great defeats that began at the Duna and ended at the Berezina. This act of the czar put the prestige to the dynasty at stake and was a final answer to the German hope and the Russian fear that the Germanophile influences of the court and the bureaucracy had triumphed, and that Russia would make a separate peace.

TALES FROM THE FIRING LINE

Every one of his admirers—and their name is legion—will be sorry to learn, says the London Mirror, that Major J. A. Wallingford is about to retire from the Army, and more sorry still to learn the cause—he has strained his heart. Wallingford was the champion shot of the British Army at several Blisley's and his fine work with the New Zealanders at the Dardanelles has been mentioned in despatches. "I tried to stick it out," he wrote to his parents at Newtown, Montgomeryshire. "But for fourteen days after we had beaten the Turks off I was home with my revolver, killing four—one at a foot, one at five feet, one at ten feet and one at twenty yards. Poor devil! They were youngsters of about twenty. At rifle fire I am sick of killing."

Private Granger, who is in the prisoners' camp at Afon Kara Hissar, Turkey, in Asia, writes: "The following extracts from his letters home show that in his own brave words the conditions there are 'not so bad, after all!'"

I have got some very good news for you this time. We are now in much better circumstances than when I wrote before. Mr. Phillips, the Attaché from the American embassy, came up to inspect the British prisoners last Saturday, and brought with him a huge supply of good food and clothing. The Turkish authorities have also been kind enough to provide us with civilian suits, so we are quite happy now. We also get £1 per man from the Americans, but to my great joy and surprise I was called out by the Attaché and he handed me the money you had cabled over. I never expected to get it so soon, and it came just at the right time, as I hadn't a cent and no clothes. I was rather disappointed not to get a message from you, but I suppose your letter will arrive in due course. You have absolutely no need to worry. We have been promised a continual supply of food and clothes from the Americans, and we are all quite happy now. Don't forget to write every week, as I believe the letters are taking a long time to get through and I haven't heard from you since I was captured, and I want to be easy in my mind about mother. My health is very good and my wound is quite healed and gives me no trouble at all, but I think I shall be a curiosity when I get home, as I have a hole right through my shoulder blade. You see I was hit at such short range that the bullet went through the bone without smashing it.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS FROM NOW. Edgar A. Guest in Detroit Free Press. Thomas A. Edison says that in one hundred years from now there will be no poverty.—News Item

A wonder world it's going to be One hundred years from now; I wish that I might live to see One hundred years from now. Each man will be a real success, Have all he wants and never less And right in style their wives will dress One hundred years from now. No one will need to scrimp and save One hundred years from now; No duns or suits will make men rave One hundred years from now, All folks in luxury will roll. And not one solitary soul Will fret about next winter's coal One hundred years from now. There'll be no thirty-days notes due One hundred years from now; No man on earth will owe a sou One hundred years from now. All poverty will fade away And everyone have cash to pay, (So Edison was heard to say) One hundred years from now.

I wish I could be born again One hundred years from now; I'd like to tread the earth with men One hundred years from now. But still, by pleasant thoughts I'm content, away, I count the various debts I've made And say: "By gosh! they'll all be paid One hundred years from now."

The cat settled herself luxuriously in front of the kitchen range and began to purr. Little Dolly, who was strange to the ways of cats, regarded her with horror. "O gran'ma, gran'ma" she cried. "Come here quick. The cat's begun to boil."

many meant to them the collapse of the main bulwark of the old order, the ultimate triumph of western democracy. Conversely, the fall of Sturmer will mean in Paris and in London, and doubtless in Vienna and Berlin, that the last hope of a new holy alliance between Hapsburg, Hohenzollern and Romanoff has gone, and that the present Romanoff has chosen to escape the fate of Louis XVI by marching with his people rather than by intriguing with his brother sovereigns. We know too little about Russian affairs here to draw too wide conclusions. Yet the best proof of the meaning of what has happened in Russia is the tone and the course of the court bow to the people. It is testified to by all who know Russia that the people are for the war and resolved that there shall be victory. It is true that the people have again and again indicated this determination, and that we have already seen the court bow to the people. Now Russian dispatches, escaping the censor not by any accident, one may be sure, have reported a struggle have reported the determination of the Duma to see the war prosecuted to victory and the liberal ideas of Western Europe prevail in Russia. At the moment the effect of the new change in premiers may be looked for at the front rather than elsewhere, perhaps in Rumania first, but in the end the latest political conflict in Petrograd may prove a landmark in Russian history and, indeed, in European history. This is at least possible, it seems probable. Thus the German victories in Rumania may prove minor or when compared with the defeat that German influence has sustained in Petrograd.

BRITISH ARTILLERY NOW THE BEST

It was in the surprise attack in Festubert orchard in which Pte. F. J. Cameron, of the 10th Battalion, Winnipeg, received those injuries which were the direct cause of his return home. He knew nothing of fear, and to see him going ahead, waving his cane, and encouraging his men, you would have thought he was on manoeuvres and not in a real battle. Adjutant Glover, who was killed almost at the same minute as the colonel, was another fine officer.

"After the battle was over we found that we had been fighting against odds of fifteen to one. The Germans retired as we advanced, believing that we were in much stronger force than we were. It is a pity that we did not have more artillery. Our guns were put out of action, but

Do Us a Favor

Come in and see "Heart Songs." Go over a few of the pages Look for your favorite piece. It is there. Compare "Heart Songs" with any other song book you have ever seen. We know the result; you will not go away without a copy of the

Charlottetown Daily Guardian's Beautiful Big Song Book

"Heart Songs" is not a mere collection of words and music thrown together to make a song book, 20,000 people voted the songs in "Heart Songs" the songs of the American people. Four years were required to reach a verdict and the result is "Heart Songs," the song book of the American people. Many of these songs cannot be found in any other collection. They came in yellow, time-worn, tear-stained sheets—that had been sacredly treasured from childhood—some were written out from memory—others were given by titles only—or remembered verses involving a long search to obtain the whole. Of the thousands received it is safe to say that the several hundred finally selected—as having the largest number of votes and the highest endorsement—represent today the taste of the American people in its choice of music. We believe that the distribution of this unrivalled song collection will bring more happiness into the homes of our Readers; will do more to make them attractive to young and old; do more to inculcate a love for music; to soften, elevate and refine the home life; to cultivate the noble and higher virtues of the fireside—than any other means we could adopt.
