SUPERBLY ARTISTIC VAUDEVILLE

and to all the mysterious countries which have made the writings of Jules Verne famous. No reading could depict as the motion pictures do. No description could give any idea of the marvels this magnificent film shows. The scenes in the sea cave among the beautiful maidens, the superb coloring and the transformations are so vivid, that the watching of developments seem like wandering indeed into the land of wonders. Every one should make it a point to see this picture—it is the chance of a life time. Nothing has even been shown here which compare with it and the opportunity to accompany the renowned writer over his travels by land and sea—through flood and fire—through the clouds and under the waters should not be missed by anyone, old and young, big and small should take advantage of it.

Two illustrated songs are on the bill for this evening as well, and this along with the change of clever vaudeville and the pictures of such rare merit, combines the finest menu of entertainment yet offered any audience in this city.
