MARKET BULLETIN

(Received over Woods- Reade and Company Special Wire)

MORNING MARKET LETTER

The market rallied at the outset yesterday, but after the first hour prices held in dullness within a very narrow range except for selective buoyancy in a limited number of issues. The metal and Oils groups appeared to show up to advantage. Indications point to a large domestic consumption of petroleum products, copper, lead, zinc and other metals, while in addition to greater volume the suppliers of these products stand to benefit from higher prices and wider profit margins. In view of the uncertainties with respect to the general course of business over the next two months, we think the market is showing a satisfactory degree of strength which may be followed by an upturn probably earlier in the summer than generally expected and our inclination would be to utilize near term recessions as buying opportunities in stocks that can be held beyond the next month or two.

NOON COMMENT

Prices are generally up from the lows of the morning, but still showing a small decline in the day. The shrinkage in volume and narrow fluctuation of leading issues suggests that the market may break out in more decisive fashion one way or the other soon. We believe that an up side movement once begun could develop a worthwhile following whereas if weakness should come first we believe that the market leaders, particularly the industrials, will probably not sell much lower than present levels.

CHANGES AT MT. ALLISON

SACKVILLE, June 3.—Dr. A. O. Cuthbertson, Assistant Professor of Chemistry at Mount Allison University since 1930, will spend the next college year on leave of absence in England. He plans on spending the greater part of the year at Cambridge University but will visit other centres where work in the field of research in which he is interested is being done.

Mr. Donald W. MacLauchlan, of Moncton, who has been a graduate student at McGill for some years, will fill Dr. Cuthbertson's place during the latter's absence. Mr. MacLauchlin is a graduate of Mount Allison University in 1928 and was a prominent athlete and student. He is to receive the Doctor of Philosophy degree at McGill during the summer. He comes to Mount Allison highly recommended.
