The Morning Guardian.

NOVEMBER 24, 1892.

The Sentence of Death.

A strong effort is being made in St. John to have the sentence of death pronounced against Buck the murderer, commuted to imprisonment for life. It is claimed by many that the man should not have been convicted for murder, but of manslaughter, inasmuchas the killing of Steadman was not done deliberately or with malice aforethought, but in a melee and while intoxicated. The fact that drunkenness is no excuse for murder and also that men must indulge in liquor at their own risk has been so often impressed on the public mind by both bench and press that one would think the excuse would never be offered. Nevertheless it is and probably always will be so long as the state permits the existence of that anomalous condition of affairs under which saloon keepers are permitted and licensed and encouraged to furnish the public with a crime provoking beverage and the public are encouraged to drink it. [illegible] much On the other hand against the commutation of Buck's death sentence it may be urged with force that the increasing influx to Canada every summer of lawless tramps and black legs demands that a striking example should at once be made, so that these undesirable immigrants may be frightened away.

Editorial Notes.

Leading ocean steamship companies give assurances that cholera is not likely to break out in Europe next summer. Some Western doctors hold that it will surely make its appearance in America. The proper thing under the circumstances, as an exchange says, will be for this continent to hope with the steamships and prepare with the doctors.

Differences seem naturally to spring up among those who work disinterestedly for the good of their fellows. It is only among selfish schemers that unity of purpose prevails.

Interesting to Scientists.

The Engineering Mechanics, published at Philadelphia says: At the Charities Hospital, Paris, there is now in progress a series of experiments of the greatest interest to the scientific world, and offering a most astonishing experience to the intelligent observer. Dr. Luys is experimenting on the exteriorization of the human body, and a reporter was today allowed to be present to witness what was done.

Exteriorization is the transference of human sensibility to an inanimate object; it is the hypnotizing of a human subject so that the sensitiveness is made to leave the physical body of that subject and enter into any object that may be decided upon by the scientists. In the experiment to-day so completely was this done that Dr. Luys transferred a woman's sensibility into a tumbler of water.

The Tumbler was then taken out of sight of the subject and the reporter was invited in to touch the surface of the water. As his hand came in contact with it the woman involuntarily and shrinkingly started as if in pain. This experiment was repeated several times, care being taken upon each occasion that the hypnotized subject should not see the contact between the hand and the water. The water retained the sensibility for a considerable time and previous experiments in the same line show that the water being drunk before the sensibility entirely leaves it the hypnotized subject falls into a deadly swoon.

In addition to this wonderful discovery Dr Luys has likewise confirmed another great experiment by Colonel Hoche, the administrator of the Ecole Polytechnique, who found it was possible to transfer the sensibility of the hypnotized subject to the negative of a photograph of the patient. When a scratch was drawn across the face of the negative a sensation of pain and shock was evident on the subject, and a few minutes later a mark would appear upon the same spot as had already been made on the negative.

Dr Luys tried this experiment, as he did that of the tumbler of water, several times to day, having an unusually sensative subject, and each time the experiment was a success. The room to day was well filled with the most scientific men in Paris and they evinced the greatest concern in all that was done.

The Danger Over.

QUEBEC, Nov. 21—All present danger of cholera having disappeared the central board of health has been abolished by an order in council.

The Last of the Season.

MONTREAL, November 19.—The steamship Circassian sailed to-day. She is the last boat of the Allan line to sail from this port this season.

As to the Foot.

In the form of the foot, says the Pall Mall Gazette, the sexes differ as much, or even more, than that of the hand. A woman's foot is usually narrower in proportion than a man's, while his will be considerably stronger in the ankle and more powerfully in the formation of the toes, especially of the ball of the great toe. When a woman owns a strong, firm, wide foot many of us experience, perhaps, no sensation of surprise at finding her 'strong minded;' when a man trips along upon a delicate little foot people instinctively believe him to be lacking in power, and often put him down as effeminate.

Difference Between Wild and Tame Horses.

"Speaking of gaits," said a gentleman to a Cincinnati Times-Star writer, "did you know that in its native State the horse has but two gaits—the walk and gallop? All others, such as the trot, pace, canter, fox-trot, rack and single foot, are acquired and artificial. True, a colt will be born that may pace on the day of its birth; but you will find some of its ancestors had been taught to pace. I have chased and captured wild horses in their native wilds and know this from observation. I never saw a wild horse trot. A queer difference between wild horses and domestic is exhibited in breaking them. A wild horse tries to dismount his rider by pitching and bucking, and it is the aim of the trainers to make him run. Get a wild horse to running straight ahead and he is conquered and will in a short time [illegible] become docile. But with domestic stock just the opposite is the case. A tame horse does not buck as a rule, but wants to run. Let him run and he is ruined. The philosophy of the business is plain. The idea in both cases is to bend the will of the horse to the rider's desire. The wild horse runs straight ahead because he is cowed and afraid of his rider and has despaired of throwing him. The tame horse runs because he has no fear of his rider and imagines he is escaping. He is made to go slow quietly only through fear and respect. Thus, you see, the wild horse runs to slavery, while the tame horse runs to freedom.

A Preacher in Whitechapel.

From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"I had an adventure in London last spring of a very unpleasant nature." said the Rev. Theo. Swan, a Memphis minister. "I was wandering about the city sightseeing one day, and finally found myself near the notorious Whitechapel district. I was approached by a begger who appeared to be a complete physical wreck. I questioned him, and his story was so pitiful that I concluded to investigate it. He said that he lodged in the next block, and thither he went. He led me into a gloomy old building and up three pairs of ricketty stairs to a little stuffy room, lit only by a skylight. Once in there he locked the door, laid aside his crutches, pulled off his gray wig, and stood up a six-footer in the prime of life.

"Well," said I, 'I see that you are a fraud; what do you want with me?'

"He replied that he wanted my purse, watch and chain, and, to enforce his claim, produced an ugly looking knife. "It will do you no good to cry out," he said, "for you cannot be heard in the street and no one in this building will come to your aid. I had sized him up pretty well and concluded that he was bluffing, that he would not dare kill me in the very heart of London, so I assumed a careless air and told him that if he robbed me he would have to kill me first, and that he might just as well get at it. "Oh, I know that you have got a pistol, but I am not afraid of it," he said. "Most Americans carry pistols." "For such cattle as you," I replied, with all the coom[illegible]. "Now, if you are not afraid of it, why don't you get to work?' I saw that he was cowed, and, throwing my hand to my hip pocket, I stepped forward and said firmly, 'give me that knife.' He handed it to me without a word, unlocked the door, and held it open for me to pass out. No, I had no pistol—never carry one—but I made no more visits to the dens of London beggars without a burly officer at my elbow."

The Telephone Co'y

—OF—

P. E. ISLAND.

PERSONS using the Telephone would find talking much more satisfactory if they would observe the following Rules:

1st. Speak with your mouth about four inches from the transmitter.

2nd. Speak in a moderate tone of voice, not too loud, and distinctly.

3rd. Place the Telephone so as to cover the Ear, just as if you wished to shut out all other sounds. Do not press too hard on the Ear.

It is possible to talk and be heard when standing back two or three feet from the transmitter, if you shout loud enough, but it is not a pleasant mode of conversation, is entirely unnecessary, and is a useless waste of wind and lungs, besides being very annoying to all within rangeo your voice.

A FEW FACTS

WORTH KNOWING

SOME people think that no useful information can be got from reading advertisements, and in some cases this is true. The reason of course is that so much is written that is misleading that one can hardly tell truth from error. This fact remains: that every one has wants of some kind, and a careful study of the best place to buy will often save many a dollar. A study of this paragraph will not teach you the best place to buy Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, or even the best place to get "anything and everything, made or repaired," but it will teach you the best place to buy Books, Stationery, Fancy Chinaware, Plush Goods, Pictures, Mirrors, Picture Mouldings, Toys, etc.

One reason that we claim to be able to sell cheaper than any other firm in our line, is that we are a branch of one of the largest importing houses in the Maritime Provinces, buying everything direct from the factories; buying in huge quantities, and for Cash we can sell at a fair profit as cheaply as any retail store can possibly buy.

Now for a word about some of the goods we handle—We have books of every description from the paper cover novel up to the most beautiful works of art and literature. Handsome gift books bound in Morocco, and illustrated with Photographs. Toybooks too, suited for every age and taste of readers. [illegible] following annuals, [illegible] of which are unusually bright and attractive this year: Boys' and Girls' own annuals, Chatterbox, Chatterwell, Leisure Hours, Sunday Hours, Young America, Books of Travel, Adventure and hair-breadth escapes, something to make the boys happy around the fireside in the long Winter evenings.

We have received the following complete sets, which we will sell at prices that will surprise you. Dicken's complete in 15 volumes for $8.00 Thackery, 10 vol. $6.00; Scott, 11 vols. $7.00; Elliot, 6 vols. $3.00; Edna Lyall's, 6 vols. $3.00; Cooper, 5 vols. $2 25.

If you want Fancy Goods, whether it is Dressing Cases, Jewel Cases, Glove and Handkerchief Boxes, Cuff and Collar Boxes, Auto. and Photo. Albums, Portfolios, Purses, Satchels, Plush Stationery Boxes, Celluloid Whisk and Letter Holders, Photo Easels, Mirrors, Fans, Writing Desks, Work Boxes, Papermache or Oak Trays, fine China 5 o'clock Tea Setts, Water Setts, Vases, Toilet Setts, Cups and Saucers, Pudding Dishes, Flower or Card Baskets, Butter or Cheese Dishes, Chocolate or Coffee Pitchers, Biscuit or Rose Jars, Inkstands, Candlesticks, or everything.
