YOUNG BUSINESS MAN DELIVERS PRACTICAL ADDRESS

And Asks Some Pertinent Questions. The Radio Broadcast by Mr. J. Charles Moran.

Four years ago you entrusted the Government of this Province to the present Premier, the Hon. J. D. Stewart, and his Liberal-Conservative colleagues, and I presume that you did that after having become thoroughly convinced that the Liberal government which had held office during the preceding four years had completely forfeited your confidence.

I am not going to weary you with an extended review of the records of the present Government and the one that preceded it, as these matters will be thoroughly discussed during the campaign which has already begun. A brief comparison of the conduct of the Stewart Government with that of the Bell Government, however, may not be out of place at the present time. You will remember that when the Liberals were seeking your confidence immediately preceding the election of 1919, they denounced the then Arsenault Government as an extravagant aggregation, and they told you that if you placed the Liberal party in power it would equalize revenue and expenditure and meet every financial requirement, even the then demanded increase in the teachers' salaries, out of the revenue the Arsenault Government enjoyed, and would not impose additional taxes upon the people of the Province.

Violated Their Promises.

You took them at their word and placed them in power by an overwhelming majority, and no sooner were they comfortably seated in office than they deliberately violated their promise by placing upon the shoulders of the people an additional tax burden of some $150,000 or $200,000. Among the taxes then imposed was the obnoxious Poll Tax which placed an additional annual burden of $3.00 each on every male resident over the age of twenty-one years.

The Conservatives strenuously opposed the imposition of this tax, particularly, and declared during the campaign preceding the last election that if they were successful at the polls they would repeal it. They, moreover, promised that if they succeeded in having our revenue augmented by the successful presentation of our Provincial claims at Ottawa they would immediately make a general reduction in the people's taxation.

Tax Reduction

During its first session the Stewart Government repealed the Poll Tax, and during the last session, after it had obtained additional revenue from Ottawa, it reduced the farmers' land tax by twenty per cent., made a substantial reduction in the income tax, and cut the automobile license in halves, thus keeping strict faith with the people who entrusted them with the reins of power in 1923.

Now, in view of the fact that the Conservative party has kept its promise in regard to tax reduction; in view of the fact that it has kept every promise made to the people four years ago, I submit that it is the duty of every elector who appreciates honesty in public life, to vote for the Government candidates at the approaching election.

Quite recently, Premier Stewart announced the platform on which, if elected, he intends to stand during the next four years, and I am sure that platform will be considered by every elector in this Province in the light of the Premier's past performances. There is one plank therein which is being most grossly misrepresented by opponents of the Government. I refer to the plank which promises the introduction of a law for the promotion of true temperance in this Province.

Wildest Kind of Hysteria.

When the Premier announced his Temperance Policy some months ago, the Liberals and their so-called temperance allies, seemed disposed to discuss the temperance question in a logical, common sense manner, but as the time went by, and it became apparent to them that their campaign against the Government's proposals was not making the progress they anticipated, they threw logic to the winds and substituted therefor the wildest kind of hysteria. During the past month, particularly, we have heard and read the most untruthful and misleading statements in regard to the Government's policy; and in the face of the most convincing evidence that Government Control of liquor has brought about a great improvement in moral conditions in a number of the Canadian provinces, they still persist in their efforts to make people believe that Premier Stewart is bent upon giving us a law which cannot result otherwise than in the utter demoralization of the people of this Province.

Now, I ask you, ladies and gentlemen, if you believe that a man you entrusted with the Government of the Province four years ago; a man who has spent his life up to this time in this Province, and intends to spend the remainder of his days here; who both as a citizen and a public man has done everything humanly possible to promote the social, moral and political well-being of our people, do you believe that such a man would be guilty of the crime of plotting and scheming to bring in a law the operation of which would result in the moral and physical degradation of his fellow Islanders? I am sure you do not believe it and, moreover, I do not think that there are very many people in this Province who believe it.

Ridiculous Arguments.

Now, I am going to refer for a few minutes to one or two of the ridiculous arguments our opponents are using in their efforts to discredit the Temperance policy of the Government. It has been said that if we adopt the Liquor Control plan, drunkenness will increase in an appalling manner, and that this increase in drunkenness will work such havoc on the general health and morals of a large proportion of our people that we will be compelled to enlarge our insane asylum, and increase the number of our jails, orphanages and hospitals in order to take care of the increased number of the victims of strong drink.

What do you think of that for an argument? Now, if we attempt to ascertain the condition of health and morals in this Province, both past and present, by the means adopted by our opponents, namely, by taking stock of the number and size of our institutions for the cure of mental and physical ills, and those for the correction of moral delinquency, we at once make the somewhat startling discovery that back in the days of unrestricted sale of liquors in this Province, conditions as regards health and morals must have been infinitely better than they have been under Prohibition, for back in the so-called free rum days our insane asylum was not nearly so spacious as it is today, and it housed just about half as many patients as it does at the present time; we had only two hospitals then where we have three now; the buildings were not much more than half of the size of our present structures and were not nearly so liberally patronized; we had not even dreamed of establishing orphanages and our jails of those days would not make much more than convenient vestibules for our corrective institutions of the present day.

Now, if, under the unrestricted sale of liquor, we had fewer victims of strong drink than we have had under Prohibition, is it reasonable to suppose that under the strictly controlled sale of liquor as proposed by Premier Stewart, our Province will, as our opponents claim, become noted chiefly for its lunatics, invalids and criminals?

Our opponents have another pet argument which they hope will accomplish good results, particularly in the rural sections of the Province. That argument is that under Government control a large number of our automobile drivers are going to get drunk and drive madly through the country, leaving nothing but death and destruction in their wake. To say the least, this is rather a serious reflection upon our auto owners and drivers, a very large number of whom are ladies of the highest character. Now, I do not believe—and I do not think you do, either—that under the very worst liquor law we could possibly place on our statute books, the splendid type of men and women who drive automobiles in this Province, would prove themselves so lacking in self-control as to become strongly addicted to the use of liquor and thus make themselves a constant menace to the life and property of their neighbors.

Drunken Driver Ghost.

We will doubtless have a few drunken auto drivers under Government Control; we have them under Prohibition, and we had some sad fatalities last summer as a result of their debauchery. You may rest assured, however, that Premier Stewart will look after the drunken auto driver in the same strict manner as he proposes looking after the drunken carriage driver or the drunken pedestrian. The people who have dressed up this drunken auto driver ghost sent it out to frighten those who are timid and are the very same people who, previous to the provincial election of 1915 declared that if the then Mathieson Government was returned to power and automobiles were permitted to run on our country roads, women and children would be constantly in danger on the highways, and the yearly death toll from "the wheeled monsters" would be appalling. Well, the Mathieson Government of that time WAS returned to power, and the automobiles WERE permitted to run on the highways, but I have never heard that the undertakers' profits were materially increased by their operation.

Inconsistency and Insincerity.

Just a word or two now with regard to the inconsistency and insincerity of our opponents on the Temperance question. Now, I am going to ask you, if a liquor control law is the iniquitous thing our opponents claim it to be, why is it that a Liberal Government—if we have one—is going to give us an opportunity to get that law in 1929? You are no doubt aware that the Leader of the Opposition states in his political platform, that if he is elected that he will hold a plebiscite on the Temperance question in July, 1929, and if the people vote for Liquor Control, he will give it to them.

Now, the Patriot newspaper, in one of its issues last week, speaking about the probable number of Government stores we would have if the Stewart Control Law carried, intimated that we would likely have an unlimited number, for the reason that when a plebiscite was held in any locality to ascertain if the people therein wanted a liquor store, the Liquor Interests would come here with a lot of money and bribe the electors to vote for the establishment of such a store.

Well, if the Patriot's reasoning is correct, we are sure to have Liquor Control from a Liberal Government—if we have one—in 1929; because when the Saunders' plebiscite is held, in that year the Liquor Interests will be right here, with their big roll, and they will make the people vote for it, whether they want it or not.

Now, I ask you, ladies and gentlemen, wouldn't you sooner take Government Control in 1927, from a man who sincerely believes it will improve moral conditions in this Province, and who has set his mind upon operating it with that end in view, than take it from another man in 1929—a man who today will not concede the law one redeeming feature, and who denounces it as a most iniquitous measure?

I ask you, under which leader do you think this law would be most likely to produce the best results?

Red Cross Appeal

Everybody is aware of the splendid work that is being carried on in this Province as well as all over Canada by the Red Cross organization.

The backwardness of many of the pupils in schools has been traced to some physical ailment such as defective eyesight, deafness, poor teeth or tonsils and adenoids. These defects can be remedied and in most cases cured, but frequently these defects are not known to the parents and so children in schools are often blamed for not making progress when the whole trouble is really that they require medical attention.

This is the work the Red Cross is doing in our schools. In cooperation with the medical profession the Red Cross nurses visit the schools and examine the children, and report to the parents any defects they find in school children in order that these may be treated. They also give instruction in the principles of healthy living.

This work cannot be carried on without financial aid and a campaign to raise funds for this purpose will take place on the 8th and 9th of June, and every cent of the money so raised will be spent in this Province.

We appeal to every parent and to all the public spirited citizens to aid in this deserving cause. The amount needed is $10,000 and we feel confident that this sum will be cheerfully subscribed.

We specially wish to enlist the support of the clergy, of the teachers, Women's Institutes and other organizations and all others who have the welfare of the children at heart, and with such support the campaign will be a success.

The school teachers in the country districts and the Women's Institutes, where they are established, have been asked to take charge of the campaign in those sections. We feel assured that they will do their part to the end that all will join to make the drive a success.
