Germany Accepts The Young Plan

Compromise Plan Accepted By Germany Believed Satisfactory to the Allies.

(Canadian Press)
PARIS, May 14.—Although ostensibly Dr. H. J. Schacht's weekend visit to Germany was for the purpose of conferring on the Reichsbank's policy with leading industrialists, it was believed here today that his chief object was to discuss the current reparations status and to prepare them for terms of the agreement when the figures contained in Owen D. Young's compromise plan are announced.

Germany has accepted the plan mapped out by Owen D. Young for a compromise between Germany and the allied creditor powers with certain reservations and conditions, but in spite of the conditions and reservations, it was said in well-informed quarters that Young managed to get the Germans to raise their recent final offer by enough millions of gold marks to make the figures acceptable to the allies.

The result of the Young plan will not be known until tomorrow, or perhaps Wednesday. Sir Josiah Stamp is still working on the new report and when this is ready Mr. Young, chairman of the conference, will call a plenary session, which probably will decide the fate of the whole conference.

Tract of Land In Nev. Withdrawn From Settlement

(Special to the Guardian)
WASHINGTON, May 14.—President Hoover, by executive order, has temporarily withdrawn from settlement approximately 144,000 acres of land in southeastern Nevada, on account of the existence there of interesting prehistoric ruins. The land will be examined by experts of the department of the interior as to the advisability of including all or part of it within a national monument. Within the valley of the Moapa, tributary to the Virgin, which will be a part of the reservoir when the Colorado is dammed, are vestiges of early man in America in virtually every significant stage of his development thus far known to science.

Graduation Exercises Were Largely Attended

Ten Nurses' Diplomas Awarded at Annual Graduation Exercises of Prince Edward Island Hospital Last Night.

Ten young ladies last evening received their nurses' diplomas on the occasion of the annual graduating exercises of the Prince Edward Island Hospital, held in St. Paul's Hall. The function was a most charming one and the popularity of the young ladies was clearly manifested by the large audience which filled the hall to capacity. The graduates, who were becomingly attired in white caps and uniforms, received their diplomas from His Honour Lieutenant Governor Heartz. Owing to the illness of the chairman of the Board of Trustees, Mr. W. K. Rogers, the honour of presiding fell to Mr. W. C. S. McLure, M. L. A.

Following is a list of the graduates who with their matron, Miss Maik, were presented with elegant bouquets of flowers by Miss DeLys Owen. A pleasing and impressive feature of the programme was the administration of the Florence Nightingale pledge by Rev. H. D. Raymond.

- Mabel Sarah Shaw.
- Kathleen Lyle MacLean.
- Louise Katherine MacKinnon.
- Marjorie Louise Cox.
- Mary Nicole Reid.
- Jennie Georgina Hardy.
- Margaret Elizabeth Loft.
- Katherine MacKenzie.
- Lena Jane Whitehead.
- Annie Currie MacPhee.

The annual address to the graduating class was made by His Worship the Mayor, Dr. I. J. Yeo.

Following is the text of Dr. Yeo's address:

Graduating Nurses:
This is an important event in the life of each of you. Following three years of earnest work and intensive study, you now receive your diploma symbolic of efficiency and ability, and with it the congratulations of all your well-wishers.

You are tonight entering upon the avocation selected by you—a profession whose devotees for long years have manifested fidelity of purpose and unwavering application to duty. There are many outstanding qualities characteristic of your calling—to a few of which I wish to refer.

It is predominantly a profession of service. Down the centuries service and sacrifice have even been stressed in human endeavor. By Christ, philosophers, teachers, and leaders of men great emphasis has been laid upon these cardinal virtues. And today the importance of service is possibly made more evident. Thus we have great organizations such as Rotary, Gyro, Kiwanis, and others whose foundation is based upon the virtue striving for the care of crippled children, the education of neglected youth, the promotion of health projects, the extension of friendship and fellowship between urban and rural dwellers, and the development of international goodwill.

Not only do we find service practiced by these great organized bodies, but it has become an essential, integral and significant feature of the activities of mighty industrial and financial corporations and of the business world in general, as thorough in its application to the great public served as to the employees so engaged. If service bears such significance and importance in these material relations, to a greater degree does it attain outstanding value in the nursing profession. What is nursing service? It is a term of many qualifications. There are some negative phases which may first claim our consideration.

Service is not the indulgence of your own personal convenience and choice. It does not contemplate your refusal to care for an urgent case in the rural districts today in the hope that tomorrow may bring you a patient in the Hospital with the added conveniences of the latter.

It does not choose the adoption of some subterfuge or excuse as a substitute for duty. The nurse is more important than her uniform or the apparatus of her calling. It does not invite the breach of intimate confidence of the patient or the family, for their trust is reposed in you.

Service does not propose that you neglect your charge to enable you to engage in personal pleasure.

It does not imply that your diploma is a passport and its award a signal for your departure to other portions of America. Your education has been obtained in an institution supported and maintained by the people of this Province, to whom you have a duty and an obligation to be met. Service does not suggest that there is opened to you the way of destructive criticism of the attending physician and his methods of treatment. It does not make unwarranted choices reserving to the nurse the right to select a Hospital surgical case rather than one of private obstetrics.

Passing these frequently noted usages—we again ask—what is nursing service? Service is the act or occupation of serving. It is labor performed, it is

Claims Men Were Paid Less Than Contract Rates

(Canadian Press)
OTTAWA, Ont., May 14.—An allegation that A. S. MacMillan, Halifax, had paid the forty six men he had sent to Hudson Strait in the summer of 1927, under a labor contract with the government in connection with the Hudson Bay expedition, substantially less than the schedule of rates attached to the contract was made before the public accounts committee of the House of Commons this morning.

In making his allegation, W. G. Ernst, (Conservative, Queens-Lunenburgh), said he was prepared to prove his statement; and a question propounded by Mr. Ernst to Major Norman B. McLean, in charge of the expedition, on this point led to a clash between Liberal and Conservative members.

"If you had known that Mr. MacMillan was paying the men substantially less than the schedule of rates would you have certified the accounts for extra days plus 15 per cent," Mr. Ernst questioned. The fifteen per cent referred to handling charges by Mr. MacMillan.

A duty done, it is a benefit conferred, it is an office of devotion to one incapacitated by sickness.

Of the many phases of Service we can speak of but a limited number. Your service must be one of quality. Occasions such as this are usually spoken of as Commencement Exercises, because you now begin your life work. Heretofore you have been laying a foundation. Your labor for the public must be of superior merit. Your present training, theoretical and practical, must be improved by study, by reading your professional journals, by attending at Nurses' associations, and by discussion with individual members of your calling.

In science, in art, in education, in finance, in industry, in all branches of human activity, the great demand today is for efficiency and thoroughness. If in these fields of effort quality performance is sought, how much more insistent is the expectation that you be fully competent in your chosen work. A life may be dependent on your skill and faithfulness.

Service must be characterized by kindness. The importance of being kind in word and deed cannot be too strongly impressed. Outstanding ability without the grace of kindness is frequently underestimated in the room of sickness. A slight alteration of Shakespeare in his "Merchant of Venice" expresses it thus.

The quality of kindness is not strained
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath; it is twice blest;
It blesseth him that gives and him that takes.

Promptness is a worthy attribute of service. This must be exercised in a ready response to sickness and in immediate attention to the requirements of the patient. In matters of grave urgency prompt action is vital and of greater value frequently than close observance of asepsis—important as the latter may be. Appraisal of conditions in emergencies and promptness in dealing therewith will evidence the possession of this desired trait.

Your service must exemplify personal interest—with an observance not only of general treatment but of the many minor and apparently trivial details. Your personal interest will show that you have a vital and genuine concern in the welfare of the patient.

It should also be saturated with cheerfulness—one of the great assets in the care of bodily ills. Cheerfulness is spiritual sunshine to a darkened soul.

Then your work of helpfulness must exhibit tact. Tact is a nice discernment of the best course of action under given conditions; it is the ability to deal with others without giving offence; it is the sensitive mental perception of what is fit, graceful and considerate; it is the measure of your skill and adroitness in meeting the requirements of the situation.

Finally, service must ever bear the mark of courtesy—which embodies politeness, civility, affability and urbanity.

Service is the act or occupation of serving. It is labor performed, it is

Hoover Displeased With Tariff Bill

MEETING OF UNITED CHURCH PRESBYTERY

The Presbytery of Prince Edward Island, United Church of Canada, met in Charlottetown Tuesday, May 14th., the chairman, Rev. G. N. Somers presiding, and with a full attendance of clerical and lay representatives.

A long docket of business was attended to.

Rev. D. M. Sinclair presented a report on the World Conference on Faith and Order held at Lausanne in August, 1927. The Conference was notable for its cosmopolitan character, representing 108 churches, and some 40 nations. There was a manifest desire on the part of all to come to a better understanding of each other's varying points of view. Lausanne was a distinct step forward, in that the various communions come to a deeper understanding of the truths of our common faith. Presbytery recommended that ministers convey to their people the significance of this great gathering of representatives of world-wide Christendom united together in an earnest desire for Christian unity.

The clerk read a letter from the Under-Secretary of State for external affairs at Ottawa, in reply to a letter from Presbytery regarding the issuing of clearance papers by Canada to ships carrying liquor to the United States. The letter stated that the situation was made much more difficult owing to the fact that while the United States has a nationwide prohibitory law, seven of Canada's provinces have some form of Gov-

President Is Likely to Veto the Measure Unless it is Materially Changed.

(Canadian Press)
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 14.—President Hoover is not at all pleased with the new tariff bill as reported from the house ways and means committee, according to reports current in administration and congressional circles. In fact persons close to the president say he is likely to veto the bill unless it is materially changed.

The dissatisfaction of the president is understood to rise from the fact that he fears the bill provides for so many increases that it will adversely affect United States foreign trade. It is understood to be apprehensive of reactions in Canada, Europe and South America which will hurt export business and thus in the long run do this country more harm than good.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 14.—President Hoover announced today that he would promulgate tariff increases on flax seed, milk, creams and window glass as recommended by the tariff commission.

The rates on flax seed will be increased thirty cents per bushel to 64 cents, on milk from 2 1-2 to 3 3-4 cts per gallon; on cream from 20 cents to 30 cents per gallon, and on window glass a varying increase from the present five eighths of a cent per pound to one and one half cents per pound depending upon the size of the glass.

HINDENBURG TO RETIRE

(Special to the Guardian)
BERLIN, May 14.—President Paul Von Hindenburg, Germany's soldier-statesman, will retire from public life at the expiration of his present term of office in 1932 and spend the remainder of his days on his country estate, it was learned today. Called out of retirement in 1914 to command Germany's armies on the eastern front and ultimately on all fronts, recalled again after the war to take the presidency of the republic, Hindenburg, now 81, feels that he would like to spend the remainder of his life in tranquility.

MONTREAL, Que., May 14.—Whatever action is taken by the United States railroads on the question of reduced rates for wheat flour will be met by Canadian carriers, it was officially announced today at the offices of the Canadian National Railways here.
