REGISTER OF ACCOMMODATION.

A register of accommodation in private houses and a few boarding houses may be consulted at the Guardian Office. Provision has already been made for about 400 people over and above the ordinary hotel accommodation. The names given to the Guardian will be transferred to the Accommodation Bureau of the Confederation Committee, which will be opened soon.

BEING FOUND OUT

There are many varieties of wickedness and many ways in which each of the varieties may be indulged, pleasantly, agreeably and profitably.

According to modern ethics the only thing to be avoided is being found out. Once found out the particular variety that was being cultivated either for pleasure or profit becomes a most heinous thing; the person indulging in it—and found out—becomes an outcast, and the virtuous who have succeeded in not being found out gather their righteous robes about them in sanctified horror lest they should come in contact with the miserable creature who was found out. This is one of the peculiarities of modern sin.

It is not prudent, therefore, to be openly wicked. It may become fashionable to persecute the particular species of wickedness that one is cultivating and, if so, it is all up, with the sinner.

There is a difference, be it remembered, between a thing being known and being found out. Let us explain: Everybody who has had anything to do with politics knows that it is a common practice to have what is known as a "campaign fund." This fund is used, primarily and ostensibly, to defray the legitimate expenses of the candidate, and was originally designed for the laudable purpose of enabling worthy men to work their way into parliament, a process which often means the temporary abandonment of one's regular means of livelihood. This legitimate assistance is the first charge on the campaign fund. Should there be a surplus, as there often is, after this reduction is made—and the size of the surplus depends upon the loyalty of the party and the desire of the contributors to obtain an office for themselves or their friends—it is used as a lever to induce electors of the opposite persuasion, or of no particular political creed, to vote with the party manipulating the campaign fund. This is one of the most difficult processes known to political engineering for there is always a similar campaign fund on the opposite side, and the elector's "persuasibility" is a somewhat indefinite quantity. The amount of persuasion he may require is often complicated by the offers of the opposing party, and it not infrequently happens that when the persuasion handed out proves inadequate the amount and the vote are both lost. This, however, is a matter of detail and is only mentioned to show the enormous drain to which the campaign fund is often subjected and the necessity of having it as generous as possible.

Now the funny thing about this campaign fund is that everybody knows of its existence, knows of the surplus, of the uses to which the surplus is applied—but it is seldom found out. It was found out in New Brunswick recently that they had this iniquity in their midst and all the godly politicians of all the provinces have simply been thunderstruck by the discovery. From the righteous campaigners in every province comes the cry "crucify him, crucify him," because it has been found out that the party of which Premier Fleming is the head has dared to have this unholy thing in its keeping.

Certain ancient records tell us of an incident in which a somewhat similar cry was raised against one who had been found out. She was only one of the many who had been equally guilty, but she was the one who was found out and the righteous ones demanded, as they are demanding in connection with the New Brunswick incident, that she be stoned to death as the law demanded. The judge agreed to the carrying out of the penalty demanded by law, but stipulated that the first stone be thrown by the one who was not as guilty as she was. The first stone was never thrown, but the accusers, self-condemned, sneaked out one after another.

If, among the many stones that have been thrown at Premier Fleming, this stipulation had been insisted upon we are quite safe in saying, that the stones in the streets of every city from Halifax to Vancouver would have remained undisturbed to this day, and the sneaking out process would have made a veritable "moving day."

THE MEXICAN MUDDLE

The trouble in and with Mexico is not yet over. The Government of France has entered a protest against the Washington government against the murder and imprisonment of a party of French priests in Mexico. The evidence is to the effect that two Catholic priests were murdered and eleven are now in prison. These outrages followed the capture of Zacatecas by Villa's army. That rebel general is said to have demanded that the priests furnish his troops with money. The priests refused; when two of them were killed and the remaining eleven thrown into prison. The outrage caused great resentment in France, of which country the victims were subjects, and an explanation was demanded. The Mexican rebels could not deny that there had been murder and imprisonment of French citizens, but gave as an excuse for the outrage that the priests had given refuge in their houses; to federal soldiers. This allegation is given little credence in France, where representatives of the order to which the murdered men belonged have taken the trouble to secure first-hand evidence. This evidence, it is claimed, places the guilt directly at Villa's door, and the United States has been requested to take action. Already Washington has made representations to the Constitutionalists in Mexico and Carranza has promised to institute an enquiry. Little good may come of such an investigation, as General Villa is not working with his chief and the latter may be expected to take full advantage of the split or pretended split. The fact that the forces now forging to the front are not pulling well together will not lead France to withdraw her demands for the bringing to justice of the murderers of her subjects. She wants satisfaction and has asked the United States to see that it is forthcoming. General Villa, of the Constitutional army, is causing the United States as much trouble as ever ex-President Huerta did. It was in Villa's Office that William T. Benton, a British subject, was murdered. The mystery of that affair has not yet been cleared up, although it is generally believed that Benton's actual slayer was Fierro, a soldier whom Villa has recently made a brigadier-general. The fact that Fierro was so honored is an indication of the extent of Villa's respect for foreign opinion. The many outrages committed by his followers on foreign residents and their property in Mexico have turned foreign opinion against the so-called Constitutionalists. These erstwhile rebels have been aided morally and materially by the United States Government, which is now being looked to by outside powers to see that their subjects' rights are respected by the men in charge in Mexico. The task that faces Washington with respect to the country's southern neighbor has not become easier with the departure of Huerta.

NOTES

At a convention of alienists and neurologists in Chicago last week resolutions demanding nation-wide prohibition were adopted and these eminent authorities on the effect of alcohol upon the human system endorsed the following resolution: "It has been established that alcohol is a poison directly affecting the brain and other tissues and that its effects are responsible for a large part of the various forms of insanity and degeneracy."

CONCERNING FOXES

Sir: It having appeared in the Summerside press that a fox was taken from my ranch by a constable A. Woodman, and as my name has been used in connection with the transaction I take this opportunity of informing the public that this fox was purchased by me from D. A. Wedlock that he sold it to me as having been purchased by him from Mrs. Ramsay, Summerside and by Mrs. Woodman. This explanation is made in justice to myself and as a warning to those who have sought to connect my name with any wrong-doing in the matter. I know absolutely nothing about the fox beyond my purchase of it and I will promptly prosecute any one who persists in mixing me in the affair. I am Sir, etc., H. B. WEEKS. 3731

DEVELOPMENT AND ENTERPRISE

Sir:—Now that the Car Ferry is an accomplished fact and the work in connection with the piers on both sides is being rushed forward as rapidly as possible should not the people of this Island consider how to make use of the products of land and sea to better advantage on account of the increased facilities for exportation and so assist in increasing the population?

A boot and shoe factory and tanning plant should pay good dividends to the shareholders. Now nearly all our hides are exported, whereas they could be used in this industry. Woolen Mills. This province is well adapted for sheep raising. There are large tracts of land which could be used to advantage for sheep raising, and if instead of exporting the wool in its natural state we had one or more woolen mills, a large amount of our money would be kept at home.

Fruit and vegetable canneries. Currant is well adapted to grow fruit and vegetables and these products could be supplied in abundance if a pickling and preserving factory were established. To make these industries dividend payers would require men of push and activity as managers and salesmen who would canvas for trade throughout the Maritime provinces and Western Canada. The farmers in these factories should be expert in their business so that the goods manufactured would rank among the best. Fisheries. The fisheries, might be operated more extensively than at present. Nova Scotia owns and operates about 400 fishing schooners. In the spring of the year these fish boats leave East Point and Cape Breton, during the summer months their ground is the Grand Banks. From 18,000 to 20,000 people live off this industry. Could not our Island own and operate a fleet of schooners to do part of this important business. Our fresh fish would find a ready market in all the principal cities of Canada as far west as Winnipeg, as we would have cold storage facilities. If these suggestions could be carried into effect (and with the increased amount of money in circulation from the fox industry, there seems to be no good reason why they should not) the Island would forge ahead rapidly in material prosperity and in population as well. I am Sir, etc., JOHN A. MESSERVEY.

AGRICULTURAL PROGRESS

GRAIN COMPETITIONS.

The Department of Agriculture is again announcing its Fields of Standing Grain Competitions. These are carried on by the local Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the Federal Department, which supplies part of the funds. Last year the number of prizes offered in each competition was increased from 18 to 24 and this year three competitions are being held in each county instead of two as formerly, and the amount of money offered in each competition has been increased.

The competitions were originally intended to supplement Seed Fairs. The feeling was general that a three bushel sample of seed oats, specially prepared for exhibition, gave no indication of the crop from which it was taken and also that the exhibitor did not always have for sale a considerable quantity as per sample exhibited. An attempt was made by the Committee in charge of the Provincial Seed Fair to overcome this difficulty by providing that the first prize grain should become the property of the Fair and be sold by public auction at its close.

It was not till 1912 that the step was taken which has made the growing of seed oats one of the principal agricultural industries of Prince Edward Island. In announcing the competitions that year, it was stated that the judges would inspect fields of grain intended for seed for exhibition, even if these fields were not entered in competition, and that a record would be kept in order that the Department of Agriculture might indicate to intending purchasers where quantities of good seed grain could be obtained. This led to the formation of the Banner Oat Club, with its headquarters in Prince County. On account of the inspection of the Oats in the field, and the inspection promised by the Department of Agriculture of the oats in the bag, this Club offered for sale 20,000 bushels of "Banner" oats, free from weed seeds, and from other kinds of grain and showing a germination test of 97 per cent. To stimulate this work further, 15 prizes were offered for oats, 5 for wheat and 4 for barley, in each competition.

As a result of the good work of the previous year, the membership of the Banner Oat Club was increased. The Club sold its total output just as it came from the threshing mill at an advance of 13c. per bushel over the market price of feed oats, or 10c. per bushel over the market price of cleaned seed oats. This year, as already stated, the Department has added a third competition in each county and has also increased the amount offered for prizes in each way in which the Departments of Agriculture, Local and Federal, have rendered assistance to our Island farmers. One can calculate in dollars and cents what this means. The members of the Banner Oat Club sold their entire products at 13c. a bushel over the price of feed oats. There is annually exported from this Province from 1 1/2 to 2 million bushels. At least one million bushels of seed oats is required annually.
