

Woman's Realm -:- Social and Personal -:- Fashions -:- Literature

Etiquette

Q. Should the fork prongs be placed up or down on the table? A. They should point upwards. Q. What is proper to serve guests who have their breakfast trays sent to their rooms? A. Fruit, coffee, hot bread, and either cereal or eggs. Q. What are the four attributes necessary to good sportsmanship? A. Good breeding, patience, self-control, and fairness.

Linens The Bride Should Have

Color and pattern are dominant factors in all modern decorative schemes, and the bride's linen chest will do well to reflect this trend. There are, of course, formal occasions when the conventional white linen damask will always remain first choice. But should one prefer to deviate, even to formal service the present vogue for color grants the privileges of tinted damasks in pale pastel colors that accent the design of the china complement color effects in glass. For the small houses or apartments the following items are considered necessary: 2 white damask cloths, 1 large, 1 medium. 1 dozen napkins, large. 1 dozen napkins, small. 2 colored damask sets, cloth and napkins. 2 white damask cloths, small. 2 dozen napkins, small. 1 oblong luncheon set, 5 pieces. 1 dozen luncheon napkins. 2 tea cloths. 1 dozen tea napkins. 1 dozen finger bowl dollies. 1 tray cloth.

- 1 dozen napkins, large. 1 dozen napkins, small. 2 colored damask sets, cloth and napkins. 2 white damask cloths, small. 2 dozen napkins, small. 1 oblong luncheon set, 5 pieces. 1 dozen luncheon napkins. 2 tea cloths. 1 dozen tea napkins. 1 dozen finger bowl dollies. 1 tray cloth.

The bride who expects to entertain frequently, however, and to have a number of guests at one time, will find this collection inadequate for all purposes. In this case a better selection would be: 1 white damask table cloth, large. 1 dozen napkins, large. 2 colored damask sets (cloths with napkins). 4 white damask cloths, medium and small. 3 dozen napkins, medium and small. 1 filet luncheon set, 26 pieces. 1 dozen luncheon napkins. 4 breakfast sets (2 white, 2 colored).

- 1 white damask table cloth, large. 1 dozen napkins, large. 2 colored damask sets (cloths with napkins). 4 white damask cloths, medium and small. 3 dozen napkins, medium and small. 1 filet luncheon set, 26 pieces. 1 dozen luncheon napkins. 4 breakfast sets (2 white, 2 colored).

Friend—"Going on the merry-go-round, Rastus?" Rastus—"No, suh, Ah don't neber ride on dem things. Why, just now I seen Moses Johnson ride an' ride an' spin as much as a dollah, an' den got off at the same place as 'e den got on. I sez, 'Moses, you spen' you' money, but where yo' been?'"

Vacation-time

Keep FIRST AID handy

PERPETUAL motion from morning till night, aren't they? They climb and run and jump all over the landscape, every little body a perfect dynamo of energy. They soak up health with sunshine, they store up strength with the exercise. But look out for the dangers of vacation-time! Climbers sometimes tumble down and bump their heads. Juvenile runners cannot escape scrapes and bruises. And even Old Man Sunshine may burn a child's tender skin painfully. Be sure that "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly is near at hand for all such emergencies. Doctors recommend it. And teach the children to use it themselves. Any druggist carries a stock of "Vaseline" Jelly in tubes and jars. And remember when you buy that the trademark "Vaseline" on the label is your assurance that you are getting the genuine product of the Chesebrough Manufacturing Company, Consolidated, 5520 Chabot Ave., Montreal, Canada.

plates with lacy dollies

Barbour's Peanut Butter. A most healthful food, and less expensive than dairy butter.

Ask your Grocer

For The Cook

FROZEN CHEESE TARTS

1 pound unsalted butter. 1 pound cottage cheese. 1/2 teaspoon salt. Mix the above ingredients well and set in a refrigerator over night. Roll out thin on floured board, cut in two-inch squares, fill with sliced peaches, preserved figs or jam. Pinch the four corners together, place on a buttered tin and bake in a moderate oven until a light brown.

Summer Salads

Shrimp and Pea Patties Melt four tablespoons butter, add two tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon paprika, stirring constantly. Add gradually one and one-half cups milk and stir until thickened. Add one cup cooked shrimp, fresh or canned, and one cup canned peas which have been drained from their liquor. Warm patty shells and fill. Garnish with parsley and serve hot.

Strawberry Salad Drain six slices of canned pineapple from the juice (which should be saved for dressing) and slice them. Free a large orange from skin and membrane and cut the rind in small pieces. Put both into a bowl, with two cups of hulled strawberries and chill thoroughly. When it is time to serve, rub the inside of individual sherbet glasses with crushed leaves of fresh mint. Fill with the chilled fruits and add a dressing made of the fruit juice and a salad oil added drop by drop.

Green-and-White Salad Cut cooked chicken or sweetbreads in half-inch cubes, add an equal portion of tender blanched celery stalks cut in small pieces and half as much white grapes halved and seeded. Mix with French dressing. The meat should stand in the dressing about an hour before the celery and grapes are added. Serve in nests of lettuce. Place a little white mayonnaise on each nest and garnish with a green maraschino cherry.

Ginger-Cheese Sandwiches Work in two packages of cream cheese enough sweet cream to make a moist and light mixture. Add about one-quarter cup of fine-chopped preserved ginger. Spread this mixture on long narrow slices of bread from which the crusts have been removed.

Melba Salad On a few leaves of lettuce place two halves of canned peaches, each half filled with one tablespoon hopped celery mixed with mayonnaise dressing. Around the rim of each half peach arrange slices of banana. Cover the slices with pieces of cooked apricots. Add more dressing and decorate with heart leaves of celery.

Cress Roles Cut buttered bread very thin. The bread should be quite fresh, in order to roll the slices. Trim free of crusts, sprinkle with chopped water cress, cut three or four inches wide and roll carefully. Thrust a small spray of watercress into an end of each roll and arrange daintily on

What's the Matter With Home? Dorothy Dix Finds Three Generations Clashing

It is Because Men Are Old-Fashioned in Their Treatment of Emancipated Wives, and Because Children Are Too Modern For Either Parent, That There Are Fewer Peaceful and Happy Homes

Every one knows that nothing else causes so much unhappiness in the world as what we call family troubles. There is no other such bitterness as that which wells up in the hearts of husbands and wives who cannot get along together, and who fight and quarrel like cats and dogs. There are no tears so blistering as those which are shed by parents over wayward children.

It does not matter what else Fate gives to a man and woman, if it does not give them peace and love at home all is cinders, ashes and dust in their teeth. No public success atones for the marriage that is a failure. The plaudits of the multitude are as the crackling of thorns under a pot to the man whose ears are attuned to the nagging and whines of a peevish wife. No amount of jewels, nor fine clothes, nor fine houses, nor social position compensates a wife for the lack of her husband's faithfulness and tenderness. And no gift that Fortune can bestow can deaden the agony of the father and mother who watch their beloved sons and daughters starting down the road that leads to destruction, and are powerless to stop them.

Furthermore, we all know that never has there been so much domestic unhappiness as there is at the present time. Never has there been so much discord between husbands and wives, as is proved by the ever-increasing number of divorces. Never has there been so much strife between parents and children. Half of the mothers and fathers that you meet weep upon your breast, and tell you that their children not only defy their authority, but refuse to listen even to their words of counsel. Never were homes such places of civil warfare as they are today, and when most of us join in the chorus of the old ballad about there being no place like home, it is with a fervent inner ejaculation of, "and thank God for that."

This is the more strange because never in the whole history of the world has there been so much of the raw material for creating domestic happiness as there is now. Physically—and our physical comfort means much in our happiness—we have endless things that make for the well-being of the home, so that even poor people with their bathtubs and their electric lights and electric refrigeration and central heat and radios and cars have luxuries that even millionaires did not have a generation or two ago, so it would seem that the home should be more attractive now than it has ever been before.

Certainly it isn't the woman-killer it used to be when the housewife had to do all of the labor, the cooking, scrubbing and washing with no modern conveniences. Nor is it as dull as it was before there was any telephone, and no way to tune in on the outside world, and families were thrown in on themselves for all their diversion.

Nor are husbands and wives and children forced to live in such continual personal contact with each other as families were in the past. For now we have widened our social contacts until every member of a household has his or her individual outside interest, and this alone should prevent much of the irritation that inevitably results when husbands and wives and parents and children get fed up on each other.

Why, then, are there fewer peaceful and happy homes than there once were? Why are there more disgruntled husbands and wives? Why are there more rebellious children who flout their parents' authority? I think it is because we are passing through a transition stage in which husbands and wives and parents and children belong to different worlds.

Husbands and wives quarrel because women are looking at life from the new point of view, while men are still looking at it from the old standpoint. A man marries a girl who has gone from the schoolroom to the business college, and from the business college into a shop or an office where she has held down a good job and earned a good salary, and he is terribly disappointed in her because she doesn't know how to cook and isn't domestic and because she wants to go on with the work in which she is an expert and for which she has fitted herself by years of study and work.

And he expects to treat this modern woman as his grandfather treated his grandmother, and to have her look up to him as an oracle and ask his permission to go to see her mother or join a club or buy a new hat, and to be satisfied with his doling out the nickles and dimes to hear on which to run the house and never to have a penny of her own that comes to her as her rightful share of the partnership in which she shoulders her share of the work and responsibility.

And the woman who is just as intelligent and well educated as the man, and who perhaps earned as big a salary as he did, won't stand for being treated as her grandmother was, and so they fight it out and wreck their home, and even when the battle doesn't end in divorce they have killed each other's love.

And it is because children and parents live in different worlds that they cannot understand each other, and shout at each other across a gulf of misapprehension. So many fathers and mothers do not realize that youth has been emancipated in this day and generation, and that at 16 a girl and boy are as sophisticated as their parents were at 20. They do not realize that the girl and boy, and particularly the girl who is self-supporting, cannot be treated as the dependent boy and girl used to be. They do not realize that other days, other manners, other customs make things right that used to be taboo. They do not realize that the heavy father stuff is out, and that at the young people of this day must be reasoned with instead of ordered about.

And that is why parents and children are continually quarreling. The children belong in the present, the parents in the past. It is just as it is with husbands and wives, and the only remedy for the situation is for the husbands and parents to hurry and catch up with the procession. DOROTHY DIX.

Style Chats

WITH ALMA ARCEER

Well, pals, it's the stylists and copywriters to "blame" if their sweet sacred cow, femininity, is threatened with the skirts, but enough's enough, and their slushy talk about bows and gilets and petticoats, has at last precipitated the entrance of a topcoat "like a man's."

And in this bedlam of a gauze-hat era, don't think the advent of a coat that is a coat isn't a relief. One of the smartest adjuncts to your wardrobe is this coat modeled on Polo lines in rakish, colorful tweeds, and man-tailored to show an utter disregard for the toughest knocks and buff's of rain and general abuse.

You might as well enjoy the luxury of Drinking KING COLE TEA when the cost is less than one-fifth of a cent per cup. Where will you find such a luxury for your table that will cost you so little? You can still buy a pound of this tea of distinctive flavour for

Only 60 cents

Kept positively fresh in its clean aluminum package.

A Morning Smile

Mistress (as a hint)—Mary, yesterday I wrote something in the dust on the sideboard and I notice it is there still. Mary—Yes'm, I said to myself, "That must be some important note the mistress has made."

New Things For The Pantry Shelf

As an aftermath of housecleaning comes restocking of the emergency shelf. And now since you have had the pantry freshly painted and all the shelves trimmed with pretty paper you will want new number of things that are luxurious enough and decorative enough to lift the shelf out of the Old Mother Hubbard class into the realm of Cinderella.

There are several new shelf-foods that you will want to know about; then one by one (if you are budgeting), they can be added to the staple list.

Among the late specialties are several interesting ready-prepared foods. Potato salad . . . who ever heard of it in jars before? But there it is—as beautiful and white and creamy-looking as though you'd just mixed it yourself in your pet salad bowl.

And Welsh Rarebit in glass jars . . . all ready to heat and pour over toast without the bother of cheese grating and mixing and stirring things about in the pan. Other new ready-to-heat foods are chicken fricasse and chicken a la King. These, with the addition of chilled lettuce and Russian dressing, or a salad equivalent, are substantial enough to constitute a delicious meal.

Another novelty that makes the cook think she has inadvertently rubbed Aladdin's lamp is a box of insignificant looking little pastry disks about as big as a rose leaf, as they lie in their waxlined-box, but drop them in deep hot fat and fry them for five seconds as you would

Nerves Shattered

Afraid Even To Stay Alone in the Daytime. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (tonic) Proved to be What Mrs. Stinson Needed.

Following a severe illness," writes Mrs. John Stinson, R.R. No. 2, Peterboro, Ontario, "my nerves were badly shattered. I could not sleep at night and was afraid to stay alone in the daytime."

"Finally I decided to use my mother's old remedy—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I took several boxes—I am not sure of the exact number, but it was not over six. I am well and strong now—living on a farm with plenty to do."

The iron and other elements in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (tonic) have a direct effect upon the blood. They put oxygen into the bloodstream—oxygen, the element so essential to life. Why not make the wise decision today to get the benefits which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have to give you? Be sure to say "Dr. Williams'" so that the druggist will know exactly what you want. 50 cents a package.

Paris Styles

By MARY KNIGHT United Press Staff Correspondent PARIS, July 11.—(U. P.)—Beaded fabrics are seen with increasing importance. Because a material is figured or printed or "facons"—all of which mean the same thing in a different way—does not mean that beads have no place on them. Beads so small that it seems impossible for a thread to go through them, form the delicate tracery of a design in chiffon or lace of fine thread. Crystal beads of larger variety and heavier adorn "impresme" silks that need to be weighted down at certain places to give them the desired effect. Again, on heavier laces for court gowns and wedding robes, irregular pearls and strass are used to completely cover a design, or merely to educe it. Petticoats and divided skirts are having to make concessions to each other this spring and summer. Some of the designers are showing gowns that are not only transparent themselves, but worn with transparent slips reaching only to the knee. Several depths of decollete, both front and back, varying lengths for skirts, from three inches above the ankle to sweeping the floor, and occasionally little embryo sleeves, are all ways of varying the evening mode before the application of jewelry, scarf, purse, handkerchief or hair ornament—which has become an evening fad.

What the Fashionables are Wearing

Illustrated Dressmaking Lesson Furnished With Every Pattern

By Annabelle Worthington

And aren't the wide suspended straps the cutest idea ever, crossed and brought around at the front in partial belt effect. The skirt is pressed into an inverted plait at the center-front and at the center-back, which lends its wearer a slim line. And think of it, you can run it up on the sewing machine before breakfast and never notice it. Style No. 3193 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Then again, you can make darling schemes in pastel washable crepe silk. Chinese silk damask, linen shantung, crepe silk, cotton mesh and silk pique. Vacation Days are here again! Be sure to fill in the size of the pattern. Send stamps or coin (coin preferred). Price of Pattern 15 cents.

No. 3193. Size Name Street Address City State

"So Simpson finally screwed up his courage to declare his contempt for his wife?" "Yes, but he did it in his will!" Lady (to beggar)—My poor man, how miserable you look. Beggar (confidentially)—Between ourselves, mum, I wouldn't be much good at this job, if I didn't.

EYES TESTED AND GLASSES FITTED E. W. TAYLOR J. S. TAYLOR Optometrists 142 Richmond Street

Higher?

No --- Lower!

The Sales Tax will not raise the price of Ben's Beans.

On the contrary, the price is cut so that now they cost you only around 15c a can.

But don't thank Ben's. Thank yourself and your friends. Your preference for them has made them so popular that mass production means lower costs.

Picnics cost less, leisure costs less—buy Ben's and be friends with the summer.

Ben's Beans Home Sweet Home Style With Plenty of Pork