Princess Juliana living up to the democratic precepts of the House of Orange, paid an unofficial visit to Elmwood School, Ottawa, where her daughter, Princess Beatrix, age 4, is shortly to enter the kindergarten class. There was no fanfare as the princess drove up to the school in the company of a friend and sister being greeted by Mrs. C. H. Buck, the principal, calmly stroked about the grounds and over to the playground where she met Diana Barton, English child psychologist and Eleanor Hamilton of Toronto, who teach kindergarten classes. Perhaps a number of all the teachers in exclusive schools in Canada, few are as well suited to be a tutor to the heir of a Royal house as Miss Barton. During the visit, Miss Barton gave a talk on child psychology in the English School mistress not only received her training as a teacher in London, but took a post-graduate course in child psychology in Vienna. Little Princess Beatrix, at school, will be just another little pupil, playing in the kindergarten pen and being praised by her first name by her playmates.

Bridge and Chinese Checkers were played. A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation of a lovely guest of honour prize and farewell address to Miss MacQuarrie. Miss Estelle Bowness read the address and Miss Helen Clark made the presentation. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Mrs. Richard G. Mitton of Moncton has been the welcome guest of

Ferguson-Burgoyne Nuptials

A very charming Autumn wedding, throughout the Maritimes took place on Monday, Sept. 23, at 37 Park Street, Charlottetown, the home of the bride's parents, when Olga Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Ferguson, was united in marriage with Mr. Gerald David Burgoyne of the C.N.R., Charlottetown. Dawn's earliest light stealing through the living-room's eastern windows seemed to enhance the beauty of the setting and emphasize the solemnity of the occasion, as the Rev. D. C. Boothroyd, B.A., assistant minister of Trinity United Church performed the marriage ceremony in the presence of immediate relatives and friends. The bride, leaning on the arm of her brother, Lieut. G. G. Ferguson, who also gave her in marriage, was very lovely as she entered the living room, and joined the others of the bridal party beneath a decorated arch, banked with graceful ferns and flowers. Her dress was a smart street-length model of tropical blue transparent velvet with chic beret-shaped matching hat. Her shoes were of blue suede and she carried a beautiful arm bouquet of dark red Hollywood roses. Her sister Miss Hilda, her only attendant, was winsome in a miracle crepe dress, in brown and beige.

Mrs. Daniel MacCallum and Miss Eleanor Lee, Charlottetown, and Mrs. Geo. Dixon, Clyde River, served. Mrs. MacCallum also assisted her niece in cutting and serving the wedding cakes. Following the wedding breakfast, amid showers of confetti, rice and good wishes and accompanied by the bridesmaid and groomsmen the happy couple left by motor to Mr. Pearson's mother, left yesterday on return, they were accompanied by two friends making their first visit to the Garden Province.

Mrs. Richard G. Mitton of Moncton has been the welcome guest of Mrs. Lucius B. Crue and Mrs. F. W. Williams at Summerside this week.

Friends here who have met Lady Banting of Toronto (nee Henrietta Ball of Newcastle), will be interested to know that she has entered Toronto University to study medicine, according to word received from her by her mother Mrs. H. I. B. Because she holds the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Mount Allison University, Sackville, and of Master of Arts from Toronto University, and did research work at Banting Institute, Toronto, she had been admitted to second-year medicine.

Out of town guests at the wedding included Mr. Irving Martin, Halifax, the bride's two brothers, Lieut. G. G. Ferguson, and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sierra and a lovely Kenwood blanket from the staff of the Stems Laundry where the bride was a valued employee.

These tones being carried out also in her hat and shoes. Her corsage was of yellow tulle and roses. Mr. and Mrs. Martin, Halifax, N. S. was groomsmen having come to the island especially for the occasion. The bride's mother was given in a handsome maroon crepe dress with corsage of sweet peas in matching shades, while Mrs. Maurice Burgoyne was attractively dressed in navy and white.

Following the signing of the register and felicitations a dairy breakfast was served. The dining room was decorated with pink and white streamers and the tastefully appointed table was centered with a basket of baby's breath and pastel-hued sweet-peas. The wedding cakes on antique glass standards were on each side and the bride's place was marked with a rich brood nose-gay of white sweet-peas.

Mrs. Daniel MacCallum and Miss Eleanor Lee, Charlottetown, and Mrs. Geo. Dixon, Clyde River, served. Mrs. MacCallum also assisted her niece in cutting and serving the wedding cakes. Living & Leisure - The Woman's Realm

THINGS TRIVIAL
Oh! how the little trivial things Will absorb our strength and time And then supplant our greater aims On heights we'd set ourselves to climb.

True, trivial things form much of life, With power to build and to destroy; While some small things of loveliness May bring to life its greatest joy.

But trivial vexatious things Should ne'er assume undue control— Viewed in perspective from afar They place a cloud around one's goal.

INSIDE CHIMNEY SAID LESS COSTLY
In planning a low cost house, experts suggest that unless the building budget will permit construction of a chimney of good proportion in relation of the size of the house, it is desirable and often more economical to use an inside chimney.

Chimneys containing one or two flues and built of minimum size are too tall and narrow for good exterior appearances and when built on gable ends have the effect of dividing the house in two parts, thus destroying its unity and the effective appearance of width.

LARGE WINDOW ARE URGED FOR HOME
In outlining some hints for planning the small home, authorities suggest that living and dining rooms be given a few large windows rather than a number of small ones.

The reasons prompting this advice is that the large windows would leave enough space for furniture arrangements. Since the carpenter would have fewer openings to build, the cost would be less.

Kitchen windows should be located over a sink, wherever possible, so a view is available. In bedrooms, cross-ventilation should govern the location of windows.

Often windows in the attic are not necessary, but most builders feel that jalousies should be installed for air circulation. It is often desirable to have bedroom windows high enough above the floor to permit the placing of low pieces of furniture against the wall.

HANDKERCHIEFS
Handkerchiefs of choice hand-some lace, sometimes bequeathed for adornment, were used in the seventeenth century.

A jackal's tail mounted on a stick was in primitive times used as a handkerchief, as well as a fan, by Bushmen of South Africa.

To mention a lady's kerchief is by the French considered indelicate.

The fashion of wearing a handkerchief in the breast pocket is followed by about one third of the men.

Never having had occasion to blow his nose, a 47-year-old man of Nantucket, Pennsylvania, has never used a handkerchief.

Handkerchiefs costing fourteen dollars each have been bought by the Duke of Kent from a Paris wholesaler who supplies J. P. Morgan with handkerchiefs at six dollars each.

Desirous of taking to her grave the tears of joy that she shed on the happiest day of her life, the bride in some European countries keeps for her casket the handkerchief into which she weeps at her wedding.

WHITEWASH FORMULA
A frequently recommended whitewash formula suitable for the dairy barn is as follows:
Shake 1 bushel of lime in 12 gallons of water.
Add 2 lbs. of common table salt and 1 lb. of zinc sulphate dissolved in 2 gallons of water.
Mix thoroughly, and add 2 gallons of skim milk.

In applying the whitewash it is desirable to use a pressure spray to obtain a more uniform covering in the inaccessible places. If power sprays are not available, care should be exercised in getting the surface completely covered.

Your Individual HOROSCOPE
By Frances Drake

For Saturday, Sept. 27th
MAY 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries)
Today friendly for personal affairs and routine matters although there may be a tendency to feel "down" or indisposed at times. If this feeling comes to you, cast it off immediately. There are so many interesting and worthwhile activities to occupy your attention.

APRIL 21 to MAY 20 (Taurus)
Today offers opportunities for increase in income and urges you to use your initiative and fine capability to further your own and your employer's and associates' interests. Unity of purpose and efforts for righteous causes important.

MAY 21 to JUNE 21 (Gemini)
During the daylight hours considerable conflicting vibrations tend to make today both irritating and interesting. Avoid overtraining; correct carelessness about personal matters. Be cheerful.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer)
If convenient and without neglecting urgent duties, indulge a wholesome sport or other outdoor activity. This will give you the pleasant pepping up you'll need for next week's busy days.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo)
Money matters, expenditures and investments generally require special attention to avoid errors, over-indulgence, wasteful moves. Today can be fruitful if proper forethought and judgment are exercised.

AUGUST 23 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo)
Though today may not be a cinch, generally speaking, much can be accomplished in intelligent pursuits, particularly professional fields. Don't be too despondent; take a bright cheerful attitude.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra)
Indications favorable for your inherent talents and especially for all mental tasks. Extra care advisable in handling matters of skimming, firearms, driving vehicles. Don't permit irritating occurrences to dampen your ardor.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 23 (Scorpio)
It is possible to finish incomplete urgent matters in order to enjoy a pleasant diversion later! Writers, journalists, actors, musicians, managers of restaurants, hotels and clubs among the most favored.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 22 (Sagittarius)
You star aspects are more favorable than most. Zodiacal folks today. You can, through your own efforts and initiative, make unusual headway be patient about results. Romance needs tact.

DECEMBER 23 to JANUARY 21 (Capricorn)
Over your issues. Over-straining yourself won't do. Better to act calmly and reasonably and be content with even slight, if true, achievement. Entertainment, social interests, correspondence high in favor.

JANUARY 22 to FEBRUARY 20 (Aquarius)
Your particular work, routine affairs and minor matters in general are among the most sponsored items this none-too-easy day. Make time for some healthy recreation.

FEBRUARY 21 to MARCH 20 (Pisces)
Similar influences exist for you as for Aquarians and Scorpions. Please note advice tendered them. Your intuition may have to work overtime today; heed it to the sensible point.

Dorothy Dix Says—

PRIMROSE PATH LEADS TO BITTER DISILLUSIONMENT
Wedding Ring Is The Only Real Insurance That You Will Hold The Man After Taking The Marriage Vows

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a girl of 18 and my problem is one that virtually every modern girl has to face. It is whether or not I shall become the mistress of the boy I love. We cannot be married for at least two years and he insists that because we love each other so much it is a right for us to live together. I do not feel that this is the right thing to do, but my excuses and reasons for not doing so sound foolish after he hears them apart. He says that he would marry me if he had to right away, and demands that I prove my love for him by giving myself to him. I am so afraid of losing him I am willing to accept any terms to keep him. Will he go to another girl who will do as he asks? I am one of the hundreds of girls in this circumstance. Tell us what to do.

TODAY'S GIRL
ANSWER—I can only tell you as I have told thousands of girls: DON'T DO IT. Don't listen to the voice of the tempter. Don't believe for one minute that any man who loves you honestly and truly will ask you to degrade yourself for his sake. Any man who is worth marrying wants to protect the woman he loves even from himself.

Wedding Ring Only Insurance
When this cad you are so enamored to asks you to prove your love by doing something that you know is a right for us to live together, you are asking for trouble. You are asking for trouble by showing you some consideration and by refraining from dragging you down into the gutter where you will be no better than any other woman of the streets?

And when he tries to persuade you that love will justify you doing something that is condemned alike by the law of God and man and society, ask him if he thinks that because he would love to have an automobile or a diamond ring he would have the right to steal them? Because we want to do a thing is no excuse for our doing it if it is a wrong thing. Nor does it save us from the consequences of our sin.

Don't befool yourself for a minute into believing that because you become a man's mistress it will bind him to you and insure the certainty of his marrying you. It is quite the contrary. It is the women who hold themselves at the price of a wedding ring whom men marry, not the cheap little things who give themselves away for nothing.

There are many reasons why men seldom marry their mistresses. One is that they are fickle, as I have said, and the reason they have not plucked is more alluring than the one they have trampled in the mud. Another is that no matter what a man's own morals are, he wants his wife to be above reproach. And the third is that it doesn't help his prospects for him to have a wife with a past.

And, finally, when a man marries his mistress he never forgets it or lets her forget it. He never trusts her because he believes that if she was weak enough to yield to him she would to some other man, and in every domestic squabble he throws in her face what she has been.

Believe me, daughter, it is not only old-fashioned morally I am preaching, it is common sense and self-preservation when I urge you not to give in to this man. Say NO and stick to it. If he loves you he will respect you for it and will respect all the more. And if he leaves you for some girl of light virtue, thank God for your escape.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Is it a crime to want to have more than a bare existence and to be willing to work to get a few of the luxuries of life? Twenty years ago when my husband and I married he had a job that brought in only a small salary. He still holds it, and in addition several years ago he started a small business of his own on the side at which he works in the evenings and in other spare time. This has been successful and he is able to live on an average of $100 a month in a small community, have a few of the niceties of life, as well as to give aid to our aged parents and have adequate life insurance for family protection. This seems harmless enough, but we find out we are being criticized for not being willing to live on the salaries job. We are called greedy and are accused of having business from others. I especially am called an overly ambitious wife because I assist my husband and try to take some of the work off of his shoulders. Do you think we are doing right, or should we be looked down upon for our honest effort to get along? A WIFE.

ANSWER—Why do you let yourself be disturbed by the gossip of your neighbors? No matter what you do, you can't avoid being discussed by those among whom you live, and it is folly to wear yourself out trying to please them or to be upset by what they say about you so long as you know you are doing the right thing.

The only way you can be happy is to be like the old Dutchman who carved above the door of his house these words: "They will say, Let them be saying."

Unexercised Muscles Cause Buiques
Men notice your legs, even when they don't seem to! So be realistic and DO something about those heavy calves, those fatty pads around the knees!

You can, in a surprisingly short time, by doing leg exercises. Legs—and hips and tummy, too—get large and out of shape when the muscles are inactive. Even when you're active you may not be using the muscles that special exercises like this can get at.

1—Extend left arm and step forward on right foot, bending both knees and taking as long a stride as possible. 2—Extend right arm and step forward on left foot. Continue for 18 to 20 steps.

You not only reduce your calf measurement in this way but you reduce your "age." Slim contours make you look 10 years younger!

Start a "youthifying" exercise routine today! Our 32-page booklet has exercises to give you slimmer waistline, hips, thighs, legs, lovelier arms, neck, shoulders, bust, posture. Also has a general routine; exercises for constipation, aching

THE COOK'S CORNER

CELERY RELISH
4 cups chopped celery
1 cup chopped onion
3 chopped red sweet-peppers
3 chopped green cooking peppers
1 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups vinegar
1 1/2 cup water
1 1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon mustard
Method: Wash, coarse stalks of celery may be used for this. Chop the celery and peeled onion, and cook these separately in salted water (use 2 teaspoons salt for each quart of water). Cook until the celery and the onions are tender. Drain each thoroughly, then combine, and add the chopped, seeded peppers, the salt, water, sugar and mustard. Continue cooking until all the vegetables are tender. Seal immediately in hot, sterilized jars. Lastly, here is a simply-made pepper relish, using both the red and green sweet peppers.

PEPPER RELISH
12 sweet red peppers
12 green peppers
12 onions
2 cups sugar
3 tablespoons salt
2 cups vinegar
Method: Halve the peppers and remove the seeds. Chop these finely (or put through the food chopper), then cover them with boiling water and allow to stand in this for 10 minutes, then drain thoroughly. Peel the onions finely and add to the drained peppers, along with the sugar, salt and vinegar. Heat the mixture slowly to the boiling point and then simmer for 20 minutes. Pour at once into hot, sterilized jars, and seal.

PEACH MARMALADE
Six cups cut peaches, 6 cups sugar, 2 oranges, 1 small bottle cherries, 1 small bottle lemon. Slice peaches lengthwise, but do not peel. Slice oranges into shreds, add sugar, mix well and boil 1 hour. Add lemon juice and cherries, boil 5 minutes. Cover with paraffin,

BEAUTY SHOP FOR MEN—NOT TOO BAD

(A beauty shop for men has opened in New York and the associated Press assigned one of its eligible bachelors to see what glamor boys might have to make favorable impressions on debutants. He relates his experiences in the following story.)

By FRANK EWING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
NEW YORK, Sept. 26 —(CP)—Memo to men: Mme. Helena Rubinstein, who has fixed feminine faces all these years, started something for you today—a full fledged beauty shop for the remaking of the masculine map.

I tried it out, fearful it would be something monstrous to endure and that my own punchin' Pop down in Texas might read about it. (I might want to go back to the ranch some day.) But I found it not bad, a little sticky, but not bad at all—The attendants were pretty misses and blond. Their fingers are soft, they rub gently. Their voices are soothing.

Madame Rubinstein said it was not effeminate to come to the shop —It was just a question of learning to be "sort of carelessly well groomed."

Over I went. The women's salon is there too, but you can sort of slip in unnoticed through a private entrance built especially for men.

Pretty Jeanne Landry observed my receding hairline and plumped me into the hair slicking room. She doused me well with scalp lotion to remove loose dandruff to benefit the scalp and hair. An oil shampoo, a hair pomade, and—swish—I was off to trust my physiognomy to Susan Win, beautiful daughter of a Polish General and Diplomat.

She just quipped at my waistline, ordered me on the scales, led me to the herb room and exhibited some al'm waters filled with vitamins and minerals, but low in calories, and beguiled me with their dietary possibilities.

Then came more blondes with more bottles. One rubbed my rusty knuckles with hand lotions. Another patted my jowls with an emulsion for men, "more liquid than her feminine counterpart," followed by some talc and cologne in "Two refreshing, masculine odors; tang and wild lilac."

Showed at me was a bottle of silfo-collidol bath, "A quick trip to a Spa" which blond No. 7 said I should pour into my tub, relax, and soak in the vital, healing elements of the sulphur. They don't demonstrate it there.

I looked pretty slick when I emerged. But I still need a haircut.
