

Mothers:

Next to the natural laxative from a mother's breast, a plain, old-fashioned preparation is always best for keeping baby's little digestive tract clean and sweet. When your little one doesn't eat, or can't sleep, give him a few drops of plain Castoria. It is purely vegetable, you know. Any doctor will tell you that it is utterly harmless to the youngest infant. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. Let its gentle influence be soon felt through the tiny system. Not even castor oil can compete with Castoria and how much better it is to use this milder means of regulating a baby! Never give baby paregoric or similar opiates, a few drops of Castoria are just as soothing, and no harm. That's the beauty of using pure Castoria; you can give it just as often as you discover any sign of colic, constipation, or diarrhea—or those times when you don't know just what it is that has caused an upset. Only get the genuine Castoria—bearing Fletcher's signature. It isn't expensive, and with every bottle comes the "Care and Feeding of Babies"—worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

PLACES FOR THINGS.
A little forethought might save the housewife many a backache, as she runs upstairs or down to get change for the delivery boy, or wastes time hunting for John's rubbers when she wants to send him out doors to play.
One might just as well have a secret corner for change in the kitchen if only the proverbial broken pitcher. The wise housewife will have a cleaning-out (it upstairs and down, and there is usually a way one can hang things to dry and air, upstairs as well as down. The screens should be arranged that the duster can be shaken from an upstairs window and not have to be carried down to be cleaned.
Rubbers and umbrellas are always a problem, but are disposed of in various ways in well-planned homes. One lady has a shallow cupboard with shelves for the rubbers and a place to set the umbrellas at one side. Another has the top of the cellar stairs put in a hinge, in order that she could lift the board of the step. Underneath was a box for rubbers. A shoe bag on the cellar door is a convenient place to keep rubbers, or on a shelf in the coat closet in the front hall. Numerous ways can be devised to have places for all the articles we use in the home, if we will but apply our brains to the problem.

WOMEN'S INVESTMENTS
It is a pitiful fact that widows who are left with funds, are separated from the same by some wily bluesy salesman in a very short time, and in the great majority of cases. The husband, who saves for long years to leave his little family protected from the wolf at the door, after he is gone, has no assurance that the wife will be able to guard wisely the sum he has earned and saved for her. In fact, he has reason to believe—if he consults history—that she will not. And yet all this is unnecessary, if every woman, before she makes an investment, would consult her banker as to its advisability, the sex would be saved many millions of dollars each year, which she can ill afford to lose. Strange to say, we rush to the bargain counter to save a few pennies; we wait in line to get a free bottle of hair tonic; we crowd around the girl who distributes tickets for free samples of tooth paste—but we pass by the free advice worth hundreds of dollars to us, which our bankers are willing to give us.
In general, one may trust his banker. It is only rarely that his advice may be tricky. He is naturally conservative, has at hand the machinery to investigate the reliability of the concern in which you are about to invest, and he does not want you, his client, to lose your money to some sharper.
A typical case of the devices of swindlers was that of the salesman for a company which was being organized in New York. Before the stock was offered to the public, a few favored persons were being let in on the purchase of stock at five percent less than the price to the public. The woman was assured by the silver-tongued swindler that the stock would be quoted in five days, at least ten percent above the price she would pay for it. A friend of hers, a clever business man, was represented as having just put into the enterprise, $5,000.
In this case the woman consulted her banker and learned that the salesman represented a gambling company and she learned later that the stock was never offered for sale publicly.
It is rarely that women do consult their bankers. Most of them go ahead and make such investments and lose their money. One trouble with the woman left with money is that she knows nothing about business and does not realize that small profits from safe investments are much better than the get-rich-quick investments offered by fake promoters. She is too eager to realize large profits in a hurry and places too much confidence in the glowing stories of a stranger.

SALT AS FIRST-AID
Keep a bottle of salt in the medicine chest of the bathroom. Occasionally shake a little on the toothbrush to cleanse the teeth and tone up the gums. Salt is a disinfectant and may be taken internally without harm. If constipated, or you feel a headache coming on, drink copiously of hot salt water. When you get a sore throat, gargle with strong salt water; and if the cold is in the head, use a nasal douche of warm, mild water.

BEST COMMUNITY.
Believing that the life of a community has no other reason for being than to prepare for the next generation, thirty-five Wisconsin cities completed in a contest to determine which of them was the best place in which to bring up a child. One thousand points were considered under the classification: Health, Education, Recreation, Industry, City Beauty, Public Administration and Town and Country Relations, and hundreds of others.

BAKED ONIONS
Peel medium sized white onions and place in an earthen baking dish. Season with salt, pepper and a liberal supply of butter or meat fryings. Add a very little water, as they will make their own juice if covered closely. Water may be added from time to time if necessary. Bake three hours in a slow oven, or until tender. Onions are delicious if baked with a beef or pork roast.

TO KEEP FLOWERS
Dissolve an aspirin tablet in the water and put it in the vase in which is a bouquet of flowers whose beauty you wish to prolong. The flowers standing in aspirin water will not wither so quickly.

KEEP FLANNELS SOFT.
Flannels often become very stiff with successive washings. This may be partly prevented if glycerine is added to the rinse water. Use one teaspoon to a gallon of water.

Home Defined.
Webster—"The place of one's abode."
Small Boy—"Where Ma is."
Society Butterfly—"A place to change your clothes to go some place else."
Abe Martin—"A filling station where people stop to rest between shows."

Fighting For Baby's Health
Is the Constant Care of Every Young Mother
The young mother has a constant care in looking after the welfare of her little ones. Childhood ailments come on so sudden—sometimes without a minute's warning—the mother may have a very sick baby on her hands before help can be obtained. That is unless she has a remedy in the house which she can safely give the baby for any of the many minor ailments of babyhood and childhood.
Such a remedy is found in Baby's Own Tablets. Thousands of mothers throughout the country always keep a box of the Tablets on hand and they proclaim them to be without an equal for sweetening baby's stomach, regulating his bowels, and thus driving out constipation and indigestion, colds and simple fevers, and making the dreaded teething period easy.
Baby's Own Tablets are an absolutely safe remedy. They are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any other narcotic drug which are so harmful to the future welfare of the baby. Mothers, if you value the life of your little ones give him Baby's Own Tablets when he is ill, or, better still, give him an occasional dose of the Tablets to ward off illness. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or will be sent you at any address, post paid, at 25 cents a box by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CLEAN THE STOVE.
The under side of the stove lids should be brushed out as often as soot strings accumulate on them. The whole inside of the stove in which soot coal is burned should have a thorough cleaning once in a while. This will be economy of fuel and give you the benefit of the heat for use, rather than having it impeded and absorbed by the mesh of sooty threads. Use an old brush for this purpose and work carefully so as not to scatter the greasy soot about the room.

One night Professor Gazor, the great astronomer noticed through his telescope that various stars in one of the great constellations had different numbers of points to them. He was able to group these odd stars, and his discovery so startled the scientific world that it was decided to find out what it all meant. After tremendous research it was decided that one of the planets was using this method to send the world an important message. By mathematical calculation Professor Gazor was able to decipher the message. His colleagues naturally wanted to know all about it, but he would not give them the message. He told them to work it out for themselves.

How He Did It
"You will notice," the professor told them, "some stars have three points, others four points, some five, or six points, etc. The number of points each star has determines what letter of the word of the message that star stands for. For instance if a star has three points it is the letter 'A'. However, if it has four points it is either 'd', 'e', or 'f'. Some stars represent only one letter, some 2 letters and some 3 letters. I have worked out the table code for you, now you equate the number of points on each star and try to find what letter each star stands for, by referring to the table code. I have correctly arranged the stars so that each row of stars spells a word of the message. In order to help you a bit the first word is 'Greatest.'"
