CAPT. JIMMY WADE

Jimmy Wade, chief pilot with Maritime Central Airways, was busy writing aviation history in the Maritimes way back in 1929. A member of the Canadian Airways personnel, he was one of the pilots to assist in the inaugural flights to the Magdalen Islands about a decade ago.

CAPT. CARL F. BURKE

While still a young boy, Capt. Carl Burke toyed with the idea of flying and before long was the proud possessor of a Moth plane. The next step was to learn how to fly. In 1935, he went to St. John and took lessons in the Flying Club there and shortly after was a qualified pilot with his own private plane.
