IN MEMORIAM

MRS. JOHN D. CAMPBELL.

The residents of Little Pond and vicinity were filled with sorrow when it became known that Lucina, the beloved wife of Mr. John D. Campbell of Little Pond had passed away.

Although the deceased had been in failing health for nearly two years, hopes of her recovery were entertained, but medical skill and loving care could not stay the hand of death for God willed otherwise and on Tuesday night, Sept. 27th her soul breathed forth its last sigh.

The late Mrs. Campbell was a daughter of the late Alexander Mckenzie and Mary Ann McDonald Little Pond and so the community mourns the loss of one who spent her days among them from the cradle to the grave.

She was attended in her last illness by the Rev. Dr. Walker who administered the last rites of the Holy Catholic church, of which she was a fervent and devoted member.

The funeral which took place on Thursday morning to St. Francis DeSales church, Little Pond, was very largely attended. Many from far and near came to pay their last tributes of respect to one who was so much loved by all. Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. Dr. Walker, who also officiated at the grave, where all that was mortal of a kind and loving wife and mother, was gently laid to rest.

Besides a sorrowing husband who mourns the loss of a true and faithful helpmate, are five young children who are bereft of the solicitude and tender care which only a mother can bestow; there are also left to mourn three sisters and four brothers, namely:—Mrs. Allan J. McDonald, Launceston; Mrs. Daniel McCormack, East Boston, Mass.; Mrs. John McDonald, East Boston; John Euseka, Cal.; Angus, Rollo Bay; Allan and Joseph, Little Pond.

The pall bearers were: Daniel McCormack, Vincent McDonald; E. McFarlane; Wm Swallow; Joseph Chaffey, Charles McDonald.

To the bereaved husband, brothers and sisters, the heartfelt sympathy of the community goes out. May her soul rest in peace.

Who will Prince Of Wales Marry?

Who will be the next Queen of England? In other words, whom will the Prince of Wales marry? The question is said to be one that is frequently discussed by British statesmen, who desire that the Prince shall choose a bride against the time when the crown passes to him. Every now and then the London correspondent of an American paper raised the question, and from the frequency with which these speculations are made, we gather that the American people are taking a keen interest in the subject. It may be that they have a secret hope that the Prince will choose one of the daughters of their house and thus justify in part the notion of the playwright who wrote "Just Suppose." Wherever the Prince went on his travels he became immediately popular, and had he been free to choose, could have selected among millions of charming young girls. But the Prince is not altogether free to carry out his own fancies in the realm of matrimony, even if he should happen to have fancies.

Changed Ideas.

Modern ideas upon the subject of royal marriages, that is to say, opinions that have grown up since August, 1914, have not been collected, but we have reasons to suppose that the old views have been largely modified. Previous to that royal marriages had just two main objects, one was to provide heirs for the crown, the other was to draw more closely together the nations represented in the union. The war showed how foolish it was to think that the nationality of a royal consort, or even the close relationship between monarchs, could save nations from war. That was provided by the Queen of Greece who was the Kaiser's sister, and who worked powerfully to keep Greece out of the struggle on the side of the allies. But subsequent events in Greece indicated that the course she took was not on the whole acceptable to the Greeks.

Must Marry Royalty

The British Royal Marriage act forbids the Prince of Wales to marry anyone not of royal blood. It also forbids him to marry one not a Protestant. If this act is to control the choice of the Prince of Wales, his choice would seem to be limited to Princess Marie of Rumania, and Princess Yolanda of Italy. The Rumanian princess is the daughter of King Ferdinand and Queen Marie, who was the daughter of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. The princess is described as having inherited the beauty, grace and wit of her mother, and her photographs bear at least partial witness to the truth of the statement. Princess Yolanda is twenty years old, and also a lovely girl. She is said to be the idol of the Italian people on account of her war work.

A Narrow Field.

It is true that Princess Yolanda is a Roman Catholic, but it is not improbable that if this were the only bar to a marriage with the future King of England, she might change. This was done by that granddaughter of Queen Victoria, who became Queen of Spain. The royal families of both Norway and Sweden are without princesses. Princess Marie Jose of Belgium is only fifteen years old. Princess Juliana of Holland is only twelve years old. There are no princesses in Denmark. It is no longer possible to search among the former royal families of Germany, which once were numerous. The Russian royal family has been murdered by the Bolsheviks. These facts seem to narrow the choice down to Rumania and Italy and there are two Italian princesses eligible, so far as age is concerned. The additional fact that the Prince and Princess Yolanda are in the months when the Prince was serving on the Italian front, and the princess was nursing the wounded. It is recalled that after the armistice when the Prince returned to London, he and Lloyd George dined together at the Italian embassy, a fact which was considered of unusual significance, in view of current gossip. But the war, as we have said, gave a severe jolt to general ideas on the subject of royal marriage. If the matter were to be left to the people, we have no idea that they would limit the Prince to royalty in his choice of a wife. The act which imposes this condition upon him could be changed, if that were desired, or else its conditions could be avoided. In the meantime the Prince is in his twenty-seventh year.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Save the surface and you save all—Paint & Varnish

It's Coming!

SNOW Damages—Paint and Varnish Protect. Snow holds moisture which absorbs atmospheric gases. These gases, together with the moisture, rapidly corrode metal and cause decay in wood. Paint and Varnish prevent corrosion and decay. Surfaces properly protected with paint and varnish are impervious to snow. Now is the time to protect your properties against winter's relentless attacks. Save the Surface and you save all.

Paint this Fall Because:
—of proper weather conditions;
—surfaces are now in their most receptive condition; practically every trace of moisture having been eliminated by the summer sun;
—the wood being dry it absorbs more readily and the paint holds better;
—a surface needing protection should never be allowed to go over the winter without it.
—property needs more protection during winter than at any other time.
