PAINS ACROSS THE BACK

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mitchell, Ontario. — "I have taken your medicine for a number of years. I do not take it steady all the time, but I am never without it. I always keep it in the house. I took it first for pains in the abdomen and bearing-down pains, headaches and pains across the back. I have my home to look after and many a day I could not get up at all. I saw the advertisement in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Mrs. John Miller told me about it, too. Every time I take it, it makes me feel better and I always recommend it to my friends. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about this medicine and you may use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. F.J. WASSMANN, Mitchell, Ontario.

The merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is told by women to each other. Many women know by experience what this medicine will do and they are anxious for others to know.

Such testimony should cause any woman suffering from the troubles so common to her sex to give this well-known medicine a fair trial.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial. C

The Iron Horse

BY EDWIN C. HILL

The next morning, at breakfast, they rolled into North Platte, the strangest, most fascinating town that Miriam had ever seen. In less than two weeks, as if raised by the magic power of Solomon's djinns, a city of more than three thousand had sprung from the prairie sod, to play its brief and violent part in the swift-changing drama of the building race across the continent. It was a city of canvas tents and flimsy, wooden houses, with a fringe of shacks and sod dugouts. One long street divided it, every other house a saloon. Surging in the main street was a motley crowd—railroad workmen, Mexicans, Indians, black-coated gamblers, swearing mule-whackers, soldiers, merchants, miners, pioneers, mixed with the shifty scum of all creation. There were many women in the throng some young and pretty, some faded and hard-faced, all drifting with the railroad as it spurned a dying town and leaped ahead to raise a living one. Every few weeks, as the road raced forward, the town was packed upon a freight train and moved bodily westward to the new headquarters site. The train that bore than fantastic jumble of rowdies and adventurers, the tools of their trades, their eatables and drinkables, and the very roofs over their heads, had a name of its own, a name it had earned in a dozen uproarious journeys—"Hell on Wheels."

Marsh delayed only to visit Union Pacific headquarters, one of the more pretentious shacks, and to meet his engineering and construction staff. Leaving Jesson there, he had an engine coupled to his car and went forward toward the end of track, half a dozen miles to the west. There Miriam had her first glimpse of the driving labor of track laying. First to catch her attention were the soldiers, half a company of regular infantrymen, guarding the workmen. Their Springfields were stacked in little pyramids along the graded way ahead of the oncoming rails. Sentinels constantly patrolled the right of way, alert for the first warning of raiders. In the distance she saw mounted men. Her father told her they were friendly Pawnees, scouts for the army, bitter foes of the hostile Sioux and Cheyennes, and used by the Government to protect the railroad forces.

"There's a big bunch of them," he said, "all under Major North, of the Army. They are far ahead, or on the flanks, as the road advances, but you don't see them ordinarily as they range a long way off, scouting for hostiles. You'll see their smoke signals some day when they have news to report."

For half a mile along the grade gangs were working at high speed. Miriam's first impression was one of disorder and mad confusion, men running up and down the line, lifting burdens and dropping them, and stung to greater exertion by the rasping orders of brass-lunged gang bosses. Then she caught the rhythm of the swift, smooth system of track laying. It thrilled her like the beating of drums. She saw the trackmen, two by two, carrying ties, and dropping them quickly but accurately-spaced upon the smooth, bare grade. A light car, drawn by a single, galloping horse, clattered down the track, bringing two rails. Before it could stop, two men seized the end of a rail, heaved it up and started forward, the rest of the gang taking hold in pairs, until the rail was clear to the car. The bearers went forward at a run, and at the bellow of the gang boss, dropped the rail upon the ties. On the other side of the car, with a second rail, the same game was played. Miriam timed the job and found that it took less than thirty seconds to swing a heavy rail from the car and run it forward to its exact place upon the cross-ties. Breathless work, but the men were driven by demons, fired by the spirit of the race. The moment the car was empty it was tipped over the side of the track to clear the way for the next load, then it was tipped back and sent flying to the rear.

At the heels of the first gang trod the gaugers, the spikers and the bolters. Sparks flew as they locked the rails to ties. First the gaugers made the true adjustment, then the spikers and bolters went at it with swinging sledges in a grand anvil chorus that sent echoes clanging over the prairies. They worked in triple time, three strokes to a spike, four hundred rails to a mile. Miriam did a little mental arithmetic and the sum startled her. Those sledges were to be swung forty million times before East and West were linked.

"They're working well," Marsh told her. "They have caught the spirit. They know it's a race. If we keep them well fed and if the Indians hold off, we'll burn up the prairie. I have told Dodge that I will give him three or four miles a day, maybe five, when the best weather comes."

Visitors came to the car that evening after supper, among them General Jack Casement, the principal contractor, a little man all fire and steel, not much to look at, but a terror along the line. His blue eyes were as keen as the point of a Bowie knife and his voice snapped like a whip. Miriam liked the red-bearded General and could understand how he had won his war record and the fear of bullies.

But her eyes went mostly to a tall young man who stood straight as an Indian at her father's side. She thought him very handsome and gallant. He reminded her of one of the dashing Frenchmen of old romantic days, with his glossy black hair which fell to his shoulders, his mustache and imperial, as black as his hair, and his brilliant eagle eyes. Her father introduced this romantic figure.

"Miriam," he said, "this is Billy Cody of North Platte, one of the finest scouts in the West. Mr. Cody is going to hunt buffalo for the road. We have made a contract and he has engaged to feed our men."

Cody, always quick to admire a pretty woman, bowed with graceful ease. Miriam was charmed with his manner. She sensed that she attracted him and it pleased her. Jesson saw it and could not prevent annoyance showing in his face. But Miriam was used to her fiance's irritability over the attentions paid to her by other men, and lightly ignored it. Cody kept her enthralled for half an hour, telling her tales of the West—of Indians, of buffalo hunting and the pony express. He had once covered more than three hundred miles in twenty four hours as a pony express rider through the Indian country, wearing out twenty horses, utterly without a rest. He thought it was the record. He explained how he hunted buffalo, telling her of the movements of the great herds that shook the plains with their lumbering gallop.

"It's fear of losing the buffalo that has set the Indians against us more than anything else," he said. "They can see that the railroad will open the country to white men and that towns and settlements will follow. To the Indians the buffalo is life itself, Miss Marsh. I have fought Indians ever since I was a boy. I have red enemies and red friends, so I can understand their side and sort of sympathize with them. But they are up against something too strong for their medicine. Only a few are intelligent enough to see that resistance is hopeless. So I suppose they will keep fighting until they're wiped out or all coralled into reservations."

"It does seem a tragedy," said Miriam.

"It's progress," said the scout.

Stomach Troubles Are Due To Acidity

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid and make it bland and harmless a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or when ever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antiacid, such as Bisurated Magnesia which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestents. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

REPAID THIS MAN A DOZEN TIMES

"I have been repaid a dozen times over in improved health for every dollar I spent for Tanlac, and the medicine is still building me up every day," is the striking statement of Joseph DeSarne.

"Tanlac has driven pains from my body that had troubled me for ten years. Besides backache, which almost killed me at times, I had rheumatic pain and swelling in my hands and legs, my circulation was poor, feet always cold, nerves undone, my stomach didn't feel right, I had regular headaches and I was a discouraged man.

"I have never seen the equal of Tanlac in my life. It has more than doubled my appetite, my stomach feels great and my general health is so improved that I can not praise Tanlac enough for what it has done and is still doing for me."

What Tanlac has done for others, it can do for you.

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 millions of bottles sold.

Little Two Eyes

COLOR CUT-OUTS

THE PRINCE COMES

This is the next to the last chapter of the famous, old fairy story of "One Eye, Two Eyes, and Three Eyes." If you have been saving the color cut-outs you will have the whole set tomorrow.

• • •

Then the Mother sent Little Three Eyes up to see if she could pick the fruit. But she was no cleverer than One Eye, for every time she reached out for an apple it sprang from her grasp. At last in desperation they let Two Eyes try, and the fruit, instead of springing away from her, came and fell into her hand.

One day they were all out under the tree when the Prince of the land came riding by. On seeing the wonderful tree he stopped to inquire to whom it belonged.

"She who gives me a branch of this tree shall have whatever she wishes," said the Prince.

(Here is the handsome, young Prince. Color his hair and eyes both a golden brown. His suit should be of royal blue velvet, trimmed in gold.)

General Jack was describing to Marsh his troubles with the rowdies and bad men who followed the road like birds of prey.

"They're the off-scourings of creation," snapped the peppery little man. "But I'll tame 'em! We've got a nice little graveyard going already in North Platte. Last week Dodge sent me orders to fumigate the town. He'd heard stories, plenty of 'em—killings, men robbed right and left. One night my boys rounded up the blacklegs and thinned 'em out considerable. Bill Hickock got a little revolver practice."

Miriam had learned already that the raw West was very different from the settled and civilized East, but she wondered why the railroad endured the wanton towns that mushroomed and decayed along its path. She was to grasp the truth that fierce toil provokes fierce reactions. Men who worked as hard as the railroad builders demanded hard play. They craved the excitement which boiled in these mad towns — the whiskey, dancing, gambling; the caresses of womanhood's outcasts. Their appetites could not be satisfied with thin gruel. They could not have been driven to such superhuman labor by day—they would have turned their backs upon the road—if denied equally violent amusement by night. Wise heads, such as Casement's, knew this, but endeavored to curb the killers, discourage the bandits and generally to hold in leash the worst elements of the headquarters towns.

U. S. Capital Gets Hold Upon German Mines In Poland

BERLIN Nov. 11— Negotiations were concluded today between the George von Giesche estate, one of Germany's largest and oldest mining companies, and W. A. Harriman & Co. of New York, and the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, of Montana, by which the Giesche zinc mines and properties in Poland will be reorganized into a new company.

In this company the American interests will hold a majority of the stock. The Giesche's German holdings, though remaining in the estate's hands, will be under the direction of the two American concerns. The Anaconda Company acquires rights over the sale of all products of the German zinc mines for twenty-five years.

The Harriman and Anaconda Companies guarantee credits sufficient to operate the mines and smelters. The amount of this guarantee sum, which is necessary to enable the Giesche heirs to liquidate credits which will shortly fall due, is said to be $12 500,000 which W. A. Harriman & Co., and the Anaconda Company expect to cover through an American loan.

W. A. Harriman and C. F. Kelley president of the Anaconda Company, met the directors of the Giesche Company at Breslan yesterday. Their proposals were agreed to and announcement of their acceptance was made today. Mr. Harriman said to your correspondent:

"The negotiations were made on the friendliest terms. Though a $2,000,000 loan we made to the Giesches is now due, there was no idea of foreclosure. Our terms are the best they could possibly obtain. New American electrical apparatus for mining and converting ores will increase output and lower production costs, we feel sure. This applies especially to the Upper Silesian mines."

The negotiations were concluded despite the Prussian State Mining Corporation's efforts to acquire control of these mines. In order to keep the American financiers from the field they extended credit to the Giesches to the extent of 15,000,000 marks when the money was needed to keep the mines open. However, their attempt to convert the properties into a stock company with the Prussian State Mining Corporation holding control, of these mines. In order to keep the American financiers from the field they extended credit to the Giesches to the extent of 15,000,000 marks when the money was needed to keep the mines open. However, their attempt to convert the properties into a stock company with the Prussian State Mining Corporation holding control, was rejected in favor of the American financiers' offer to leave the title of the German properties in the hands of the Giesche heirs, and at the same time furnish the necessary operating funds and re-equip the mines.

Stylish "Bobs"

Easy to Keep Thick, Wavy, Lustrous

Girls! Try this! When combing and brushing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can dress your hair immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy, an abundance of gleamy, wavy hair, sparkling with life, incomparably soft, fresh, youthful.

Besides beautifying the hair, a 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" from any drug or toilet counter will do wonders, particularly if the hair is dry, thin, brittle, faded or streaked with gray from constant curling and waving which burn the color, lustre and very life from any woman's hair.

"Danderine" acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, stopping falling hair and helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Auto Ride Ended In Gruesome Rite

NATCHEZ, Miss., Nov .11— Return of the supposed victim of the swamp auto-da-fe mystery, in which the charred body of a young woman was found on a pine log pyre with nothing to indicate she had not been burned alive, today, has thrown police and parish authorities into a frenzy of renewed investigation. This time they believe the victim to have been a white girl, Florence McCurley, 17 a student-nurse, missing since October 6.

Found October 12, in a remote region of the swamp, the body was first believed to have been that of a white girl, but when Cora McKnight, negress, and her husband were found to be missing, it was concluded that the body was hers and McKnight was arrested in connection with her supposed death. Yesterday, however, the McKnight woman was brought to Winnsboro, La., to begin a jail sentence for selling Equor. Then a ring taken from one of the charred fingers of the body viewed here by friends of Miss McCurley, was pronounced similar to one worn by the missing girl.

Miss McCurley came to Natchez several weeks ago to enrol in a nurses' training school. She disappeared October 6 after informing friends she was going for an automobile ride.

Baby Eczema
Soon Disappears with the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment

Only mothers who have witnessed the suffering of their babies when tortured by eczema fully appreciate the remarkable soothing, healing effects of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Most babies at one time or another fall victims to skin irritations, chafing of the skin or eczema. For this reason it is a fine habit to always have at hand when bathing baby a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. You never know when roughness and redness of the skin is going to develop into something more serious. A touch of Dr. Chase's Ointment keeps the skin smooth and velvety and prevents serious skin affections.

There are scores of uses for Dr. Chase's Ointment. Once it finds its way into the home it is soon considered indispensable.
