BRITISH DESIGN PARACHUTE PLANE

LONDON, Aug. 26.—A new parachute aeroplane, destined to make air transport absolutely safe, is being tested by British air authorities. If future tests prove as satisfactory as those made to date, it is possible that all British passenger planes will be converted in the near future. The one difficulty however, lies in the fact that the parachute arrangement in its present form calls for radical changes in construction.

The parachute plane provides for the descent of the entire aeroplane by means of a parachute in case of emergency. It is designed in two parts—engine fuel tanks and undercarriage, being constructed of a steel chassis, and the second part consisting of the body, wings, rudder, tail-planes, joy stick and pilot's seat. The second part is attached to the chassis by slip locks.

Over the roof of the cabin is a steel rod to which the cabin is attached by steel cables, looking something like an umbrella with the covering removed. Above this is a long streamline cylinder containing a parachute made of a new fireproof material and of sufficient strength to support nearly double the load of the machine, minus the heavy engine and the undercarriage.

If the pilot suddenly finds himself in difficulties he has only to pull a lever beside his seat. This unlocks the chassis, which drops off, and at the same time operates the rip-cords of the parachute. The double action is timed so closely that little drop is experienced before the parachute takes effect.

With the chassis detached the pilot is left with what may be termed a safe glider, over which he still has a good measure of control. Without much skill he can land safely, and he and the passengers will experience little more than a bump when it reaches the ground. Provisions are also made for landing on the water. Under the floor of the cabin are air containers which will support the machine for an indefinite period.

SEA PLANE AT STANLEY BRIDGE—On Saturday, August 23rd, the people of Stanley and vicinity watched a plane circling over the land and then they got a great kick when they saw she was going to light in beautiful New London Bay, and motor up towards Stanley Bridge. Teams were left standing in the fields, bread burning in the ovens, dinner sizzling on the stoves and everyone hastily made their way to the waterfront. Contractor Cotton and his staff, who are building the new church, laid down their saw and square and were soon on the scene also. Mr. John McLeod, past master, who is eighty years young, was running to the wharf. Owing to the delicate fabric of the machine she could not approach the wharf. A dory was soon manned by Fred Bennett and Dannie McLeod and went along side the sea plane, piloted by Mr. Ray Clark and commanded by Mr. Hayter. The genial boys came down on account of slight engine trouble. After righting this the big bird glided down the Bay, rose in the wind and was soon out of sight. Mr. Clark was formerly of Stanley and Mr. Hayter of Murray Harbor.

In Agony With Severe Case of Eczema. Healed by Cuticura.

"My father had a very severe case of eczema. His hands, neck, and different parts of his body were affected with it. It started in blisters and itched terribly. At times he was in agony and could not sleep nights. He suffered about six months with it. He tried different remedies but none of them seemed to help the trouble. Finally he tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after six months' treatment he was completely healed." (Signed) Bert T. Carroll, Lunenburg, Nova Scotia.

COMPETITION LIFE OF TRADE
—A brisk fruit war has been in progress during the last few days on Weymouth Street, near the railway station, bananas being the standard article for hostilities. The battling hosts are three Syrian fruit vendors, who have been cutting and slashing fruit prices with extreme bitterness. Neutral powers, as is always the case in war time, are having a period of prosperity at the expense of the belligerents, buying large ripe bananas during a hot skirmish yesterday at 5c per dozen. Pears have dropped correspondingly, but do not seem to enjoy the popularity of their tropical brethren. Latest reports from the seat of war indicate that the market is firm at 12c. "Yes, we have some more bananas."

There was nothing for me to say; and I stood and stared out over the gulf.
The governor continued in a cold, brittle voice—
"Pennsylvania has sent out scouts for three years on the Ohio and the Mississippi to learn what the French are doing."
"Yes, Governor Spotswood, only this last spring, reported to the Lords of Trade that the French have a settlement at Habbanalas." I was told this in Canada by a friendly Carolina. It shows that Spotswood's scouts have been ten years in learning of the French occupation of Alabama. It would seem that the English scouts are a small danger."
