DR. BONNELL AT ST. DAVID'S, GEORGETOWN — Many friends from far and near listened with eagerness to the Rev. Dr. J. S. Bonnell of Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, as he occupied the pulpit of St. David's Church, Georgetown, on Sunday afternoon. The message was a timely one based upon Habakkuk 2; 1, a prophecy which, although 2,500 years old is still moving contemporary literature. In choice diction, with illustrations from his recent visit to the Motherland and with spiritual power, the preacher declared that the doom of the aggressor was sealed, but that unless nations build up God's eternal foundations the present horror will be repeated some years hence. The Lord has no favourites. "The righteous shall live by his faithfulness." A possession of the spirit that flows from the cross of Jesus Christ will alone effect the world's redemption. During the service which was presided over by the minister, the Rev. Sidney J. Boyce, a helpful solo was feelingly rendered by Mrs. Ralph Douglas of Montreal.

Huge Russian

year plan by a United States engineer, the late Col. Hugh L. Cooper.

The dam was situated near Zaporozhe, 50 miles south of Dnieperopetrovsk in an area where the German forces now are entrenched. The Russians, incidentally acknowledged the German claim of the capture of Dnieperopetrovsk.

Its great turbines, which first turned in May, 1932, had supplied a surrounding area of 70,000 square miles and a population of 16,000,000 persons with an annual output of 2,500,000 kilowatt hours of electric current.

Gone now, by Lozovsky's account, are the 140-foot dam structure, one of the largest in the world, its half-mile length, which served as a bridge across the Dnieper, and the nine generating units on the west bank, the largest ever built.

Ruined, too, are the three navigation locks on the east bank, the feature which first had attracted Russians to the idea of a dam as a means of drowning the falls which had prevented deepwater shipping upriver to Kiev.

Lozovsky said that when Germany overran countries in the west, she was strengthened by her loot, whereas even in retreat the Russians are hindering the invader.

"There (in the west) factories, supplies, ammunition and equipment are seized by the Germans, strengthening them," he said. "In the occupied territory the manufacture of planes and arms is going on in addition to what is being made in Germany.

"Here they get neither raw materials nor plants nor food supplies.

"That is the profound difference between the wars on the eastern and western fronts."

German hopes of seizing the Ukraine's crops "came to naught," he said. The populace wrecked or removed tractors, combines and trucks and hid enough food for their own use.

"The Germans will get nothing!" he said.
