

Rheumatism for Several Years— Now as well as Ever

647 Main St., St. John, N. B., Nov. 27, 1908. Father Morriscy Medicine Co., Ltd.

I am writing to tell you I have been a victim to Rheumatism for several years, and have been treated by seven doctors without finding any permanent relief until I got Father Morriscy's medicine. It has cured me so I am able to do my work and find I am as well as ever in my life.

Rev. Father Morriscy

Rheumatism cannot exist when the kidneys are in perfect working order for then they take out of the blood all the Uric Acid, which alone causes the Rheumatism.

Father Morriscy's "No. 7" Tablets act directly on the kidneys, toning them up and helping them to clear the blood of the Uric Acid. If the Rheumatism is of long standing it may take some time to clear out all the poison, but almost from the first "No. 7" Tablets relieve the pain, and if used faithfully they rarely fail to cure.

Even if other remedies have done you no good, do not give up till you have tried Father Morriscy's "No. 7" Tablets.

Yours truly, JOHN CRAWFORD.

Every Farmer Needs this Book

Write for the booklet "Paints and Varnishes for the Farm." It's free. It contains 115 pages of information on Paint and Varnishes specially made for farm use. It shows convincingly in dollars and cents how you are losing money if your house or barn is unpainted or poorly painted. It tells how to make a wagon last for 20 years. It's a practical book for the man that lives on the farm. It's well printed and illustrated. There's no easier way to make money than to save it, and for the farmer there's no surer way to save it, than to use GOOD PAINT TO PROTECT HIS BUILDINGS, IMPLEMENTS, ETC., FROM THE WEATHER. You can buy good paint from every Sherwin-Williams Agency. Better write for this booklet to-day—now—a post card will do.

When you buy Paint, get the real thing

It is extravagant and foolish to buy and pay for paint, and instead of paint, get a mixture containing cheap adulterants. Pure paint—the real thing—spreads easier, covers more surface (and covers it better) and wears longer than adulterated paint. Pure paint is far more economical to use. Pure paint gives the handsomest finish. Pure paint insures you against paint "troubles", the cracking, the peeling, scaling, etc. that comes from the use of impurities. "English" Liquid Paint is pure paint—made from 70% pure white lead (Brandram's B.B. Genuine) 30% pure zinc white, pure linseed oil, pure turpentine and driers. It will give you the greatest satisfaction and save you money on your paint bill. Made by Brandram-Henderson Limited, in 45 shades in addition to black and white. Come in for a color card.

THE GUARDIAN'S WEEK END SERMON

Rev. Dr. A. S. Hobart of Crozier Seminary preached recently in the Emmanuel Baptist Church, Brooklyn, on the following subject.

"The Unlisted Asset," and his text was Matthew xii:44-45: "While the Pharisees were gathered together Jesus asked them, saying: 'What think ye of Christ? Whose son is he?' They say unto him, the son of David. He saith unto them, How, then, doth David in spirit call him Lord, saying the Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool. If David then call him Lord, how is he his son? And no man was able to answer him a word, neither durst any man from that time forth ask him any questions." Dr. Hobart said: "Sometimes in the summer the thermometer runs up to the nineties, and we call it hot weather, but we take off our coats and attend to our business and say to our friends: 'This is summer, but after all rather like summer. I do not see that the summer is so much to be dreaded.' And the next day the thermometer stands just as it did the day before, but we are all nearly smothered, and we say: 'I cannot stand it at all. I think this is about the worst climate it is enough to kill a man.' What is the difference? The thermometer does not tell the whole story. To-day there are only sixty degrees of humidity, but yesterday there were ninety. There is a certain unlisted element in the weather that the thermometer does not make any account of, but that unlisted element makes all the difference in the world. A man is sick and his doctor tells him that he has an incurable disease and cannot live, because the single cords do not show a single degree of recovery from that particular disease. Nevertheless the man recovers completely, and the only way the astonished doctor can account for it is by saying that the man had a great fund of inexhaustible vitality. That vitality is the unlisted asset in the case.

This is the idea I have in mind when I speak of you concerning the unlisted asset of Jesus. These people wanted to know certain things and He wanted them to believe certain things. There seemed to be some doubt as to the Messiah, and Jesus asked them what sort of a man they thought the Messiah was going to be. "Whose son will he be when he comes?" and they said, "Why David's son." Then he said, "Have you not read the psalm wherein David said, 'The Lord said unto my Lord?'" In the Jewish realm no man would ever call his son "Lord." How was it? They did not know. He found in the Old Testament Scriptures that there was an unlisted asset. Now, history presents a similar problem. Things have happened that we cannot account for in the ordinary way. Before or soon after A. D. 300, the pagan kings of Rome ceased to be, and a confessedly Christian king sat in the center of the Roman Empire. Now the teachers of that gospel did not have philosophy like the Romans or literature like the people of Rome or Athens.

They suffered persecution and were called "the off-scouring of the world." They had no armies, nor temples, and yet inside of 150 years they displaced the Emperor on his throne by the Gospel of Jesus Christ. How are you going to account for that? Somehow these untrained fishermen, and that cast-out Pharisee, had gone some ahead with the unlisted power and won these marvelous victories. Something was there besides, something greater than a son of David. A peasant's son in Palestine prophesied that his name should be above everything and that all nations of the world should know it and bow down to it. What do we see today? Why the statesmen of the world are being guided by the fundamental principles that that peasant taught. To-day the philosophers of the world are sloughing off all the speculations that are not in harmony with the fundamental conceptions and the peasant's ideas of God. All are admitting that they must come to the recognition of the existence of an Infinite source and a personal God who controls all things, and this is the specific statement of Jesus when he said: "Pray, our Father, who art in heaven." Every statement and every theory of the sociologists of this time is pre-empted in the language of the old Jewish peasant's son and every great principle that guides us is stated better by Him. When you look over the world you find that where this Gospel has gone the world has new conceptions of man. Nowhere else do you find the conception of man "in the image of God" and standing in all fundamental essentials on a common platform. It has given new conceptions of man's attitude toward God of his duty with his fellow men. There was no conception of international law until Christianity brought it. And this peasant's son in Palestine prophesied all this recognition of these principles eighteen hundred years before. What are we to say about that? Is He more than a peasant's son or is there some unlisted element there?

We must look around to find the cause of this unaccounted for phenomenon of history? We have exhausted the assets of David's son, and we must find something else. Some things, it is true, can be accounted for as the son of David, but not all. The times and the character of Jesus will account for some, but there is a large residue left that cannot be accounted that way. Some say, "Jesus is undoubtedly the pre-eminent teacher of the world. Nobody ever equaled Him before or since or is ever likely to, but," they say, "Shakespeare was undoubtedly the highest genius in his line, and he went so high that nobody aspires to touch him. Socrates was a philosopher, and in his line nobody aspires to take away his crown. And so Jesus in His line was the product of His day. He came from the Jewish people, a most pious family, in a time when the world was trying to be so wicked, and He was a splendid religious genius and he bow down to Him pre-eminent in His sphere." Will it do? We will admit that the circumstances and times did for Jesus about all that could be done to make Him pre-eminent as a moral teacher, but why did not other people—the martyrs, the disciples—why didn't Paul rise to the same pre-eminence? No man could lay a finger on Paul's life and say, "Here is a moral weakness that accounts for it." If Jesus was no more than a peasant's son He never could, then or since, have commanded the respect of a single man such as He now has. Suppose a man came from England and wanted us to start Spurgeon clubs in every town in America and worship Spurgeon; or suppose some one wanted us to start Phillips Brooks clubs and become Brookites, we should say, "There is a sanitarium over there; you had better go there." You see that if Jesus were nothing more than a pre-eminent son of David he would be on the same plane with Spurgeon and Brooks. We will honor such men and take counsel from their wisdom, but never bow down to them. And men would never bow down to and worship Jesus Christ if he were not something more than a son of David. "But," you say, "that hypothesis does not account for the fact. We admit the mystery, but there is a certain unlisted element we cannot see yet." Let us see what His apostles say.

Paul had his own theory when he said that He was "in the form of God; yet he made himself of no reputation and took upon him the form of a servant, and was found in the likeness of the flesh and suffered death, even the death of the cross." There is a notion of pre-existence. That is Paul's conception of the unlisted asset, that pre-existing glory which God. That does not answer the question, but it answers something. He did what David never did. He took on Him our form here and went back to accomplish the finish of the work. In the Hebrews we read that He was the "express image of God and by him all things consisted and held together." So you have the hypothesis of His being larger than David's son, who took on him the form of David's son. Then we find Jesus speaking with authority. "It hath been said by men of old time, do so and so, but I say unto you do so and so." Again, I came down from my Father, and all authority is given unto me and all judgment is given unto me that men may honor the Son as they honor the Father, and he that hath not the son hath not God." It does not solve all the mystery, but it tells us of a certain element of divinity about Him which no son of David ever had.

Then again He says that whosoever believes and follows Jesus will be with God. That does not solve the mystery, but it tells us that so far as God can teach mankind He teaches.

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH

plays with the children—and a rare good playfellow it is

It furnishes music for their marches, it sings songs to them, it tells stories, and it is never tired of doing the same thing over and over, a very important thing in playing with children. Children are fond of repetition. Repetition is one of the favorite stunts of an Edison Phonograph.

The mother who wishes to get a little time for herself will find that the best way to keep the children from bothering is to start the Phonograph.
