the support of the Liberal provincial governments would help Liberal leader Mackenzie King in the election of his candidates, but he thought intelligent electors should feel apprehensive of the consequences.

"The prospect that these provincial governments may, by electing Mr. King to office, eventually succeed in obtaining the direction and control of the Dominion Treasury constitutes in my opinion a grave menace to the stability and credit of this Dominion." Mr. Cahan continued, "I believe it would prove of great advantage to the taxpayers of Canada if the Dominion government and the several provincial governments were composed of men with different party affiliations, and if each of these governments were compelled to assume full and independent responsibility for the efficient and economical administration of its own financial affairs."

Responsibility for maintaining the economic growth and development of this country and for the improvement of social conditions rests largely upon the shoulders of business men and those engaged in finance, industry and commerce. Mr. Cahan stated, "On the other hand," he concluded, "opportunistic and ill-considered legislation and excessive governmental interference can only serve to restrict the normal growth and development which is otherwise inevitable."

MONEY PAID IN DIRECT RELIEF

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) OTTAWA, Sept. 12—The total cost of direct relief during August was $6,416,603, of which the Dominion's contribution was $1,733,000, exclusive of additional grants of $292,700 for residents in the Saskatchewan drought areas, Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Labor, said here today. For the same month a year ago the total relief cost amounted to $5,297,812. Distribution of direct relief by provinces last month was made as follows:

Prince Edward Island $1,168; Nova Scotia $67,765; New Brunswick $3,000; Quebec $1,600,000; Ontario $3,000,000; Manitoba $367,670; Saskatchewan $246,000; Alberta $274,500 and British Columbia $524,500.

These figures include the relief of the Saskatchewan drought areas. In July payment of direct relief totalled $6,884,044. A statement issued by the minister yesterday showed that the number of heads of families receiving relief throughout Canada during August was 234,728, a decrease of 16,111 from July, or 7 per cent, but relief costs declined only by six per cent.

SASKATCHEWAN PREMIER AT MONTAGUE

Premier James G. Gardiner, after the usual preliminary remarks, stated that in his experience there were always two provinces which were in better condition than Saskatchewan. They were Quebec and Prince Edward Island.

There was danger in the present campaign, Mr. Gardiner declared. Few people had any hope that Mr. Bennett could win, and some people doubted if Mr. King could get a sufficient number to carry on a government. There was a danger that other parties might join together, and thus any small group might hold up legislation, he said.

He illustrated from experience in Saskatchewan, and said that the Liberals alone could give stable government. The speaker recalled that in 1919 Mr. King was given a constituency in Prince Edward Island, and related the manner in which he had been chosen party leader. He dwelt upon the Liberal leader's experience in dealing with labor matters. He had been leader of the opposition in what Premier Gardiner admitted were five of the most trying years of the country's history. During that time he conducted himself with great restraint.

Mr. Gardiner asserted that Mr. Bennett failed to keep the promises he had made. Protection did not do what he had said it would do. He compared policies of Liberalism with those of Conservatism. Governments Not Responsible Premier Gardiner said he had heard Liberal speakers say that from 1896 till 1911 there were good times because there was a Liberal government during that period, that there had been hard times from 1911 till 1922 because there was a Conservative government in those years, that there were good times from 1922 till 1930 because then a Liberal government was in power. "If I came before you and said we have had hard times since 1930, because we have had a Conservative government you would not believe me," said the speaker.

If he said that all hard times were due to Conservative governments he would be wrong, he admitted. "I am not going to say it is not correct," he said. "Nevertheless Conservative policies have had their effect."

International economics, international politics, and international trade had a great effect, he believed.

Looks For Cause

"Let us go back and review conditions and find what is the real cause of depression."

Times were really hard in the 80's and 90's of the last century, Mr. Gardiner recalled. At that time the speaker was a boy in Nebraska, and had heard the same things those advanced by Mr. Stevens today. "I believe that there was a Liberal government in Canada, there were international difficulties which were ironed out by establishment of a Franco-Russian alliance, and nations began trading with one another. While danger and difficulty existed between nations it was impossible to obtain bank credits. World depressions have never been caused by anything else than misunderstandings among the nations. Depressions had never been cured except by understandings or by misunderstandings in the form of war."

Governments Responsible

Mr. Bennett in 1930 promised to blast his way into the markets of the world, the thing which creates wars and depressions, Mr. Gardiner believed.

The speaker decried narrow nationalism, and objected to the use of the three-cent stamp. He discussed duties on woolen overcoating. Conservative tariffs were protective. Liberal tariffs were revenue tariffs.

Men who were employed by the government in public works should be considered as employed, the speaker declared. Interoceanic highways should be recognized as Federal, and should be paid for 100 per cent, by the Federal Government. Mr. Bennett had promised that.

Barrett - MacKay Nuptials

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in Lot 11 Presbyterian Church on Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock when Miss Ruth M. Mackay, daughter of Mrs. Mackay of Lot 11 and the late William Mackay, became the bride of Mr. Wylie Barrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barrett of North St. Eleanor's.

The church was profusely decorated with autumn flowers. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. J. White, of Tyne Valley in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The bride who was given away by her brother, Mr. Sinclair MacKay, was very charming in a lovely white satin dress with long white veil and wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and fern.

Her sister, Miss Anne MacKay, was bridesmaid and was dressed in blue chiffon velvet with small blue hat. Her bouquet was pink roses and fern. Dr. Hillard Clark of Summerside supported the groom.

Mr. Elmer Hardy and Mr. Wendie MacKay ushered the guests to their seats. Immediately after the ceremony the wedding party drove to the bride's home where a sumptuous wedding supper was served. The dining room was tastefully decorated in mauve and yellow.

Later that evening Mr. and Mrs. MacKay left for the mainland for a brief honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside in St. Eleanor's. The Guardian joins a host of friends in heartiest congratulations.—S reached the age of 60, Mr. Gardiner said. Mr. Bennett himself was 65.

Wheat Problem

Upon the purchasing power of the great mass of the people depended domestic trade. In the West it was no longer possible to sell wheat profitably and therefore they entered into competition in mills and butter with Eastern Canada. The speaker wanted a government which would market the wheat properly, and thus the West would not compete with the East in other lines.

Mr. Gardiner discussed the question of marketing wheat at considerable length. Canadian wheat should be kept on European markets, he believed. Transportation of wheat across Canada would provide a great deal of work. Trade treaties, were advocated by the speaker. Governments must be prepared to trade. Mr. Bennett was aggravating the trade situation, Mr. Gardiner insisted. He was the wrong man to make trade treaties, he believed.

Dr. T. V. Grant the first speaker in his address said he had one thought to express, that it was always better to have the two governments in line. He voiced a welcome to Premier Gardiner.

Mr. James Larrabee was sure it was a great pleasure to welcome a distinguished visitor. In nine by-elections out of ten the Liberal platform had been vindicated, he said.

Mr. Peter Sinclair spoke in glowing terms of Mr. Gardiner, and described Canada as being in a chaotic state. He referred to trade and to reciprocity with United States.

Mr. A. E. MacLean, M. P., eulogized Mr. Gardiner, and commended Dr. Grant as an energetic worker. The Bennett government was on trial. The Conservative party was known now as the reform party, said the speaker and proceeded to condemn the government. He reviewed the government's financial record, discussed trade with United States, and the Cuban trade.

Mr. B. W. LePage, M.L.A., said he was present because the Premier was absent from the province and the acting premier could not be present. He wanted "to extend a right royal welcome" to Mr. Gardiner, and concluded by introducing him to the audience.

Coincidence Lasts Through 68 Years

STETTLE, Alta., Sept. 12—Jim Clarke and Charles Pringle, two pioneer farmers of the Erskine district, were born the same day 68 years ago, in the same hospital, and were attended by the same doctor. Both were in normal health last Thursday. Both died in hospital here the next day following shocks. Mr. Clarke came from Clairmont, Minn., in 1910, and Mr. Pringle came to Alberta from Keota, Iowa, where they were born, in 1904. His body will be sent to Keota for burial. Mr. Clarke will be buried at Erskine, Alta.

Huge Fruit Shipments Leave Montreal For British Isles

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) MONTREAL, Sept. 12—Sailing of the liner Montcalm, for England today signalled the start of one of the largest shipments of soft fruit ever to leave Canada for the British Isles. Similar consignments will be taken aboard the liners Alaunia, Antonia and Duchess of Richmond and the freighter Kastalia. Large amounts of Ontario plums, early apples from British Columbia and Ontario and pears from the Niagara district of Ontario will be included in the shipment. More than 20,000 tons of fruit were shipped from Montreal today waiting to be loaded aboard ships. One of the worst fruit years in the history of England has resulted in the shipments. Last year Canada shipped only 24,000 pounds of plums to the British Isles while so far this year 11,000,000 pounds have already been shipped, it was stated. The plums have been inspected by government inspectors of the fruit branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture and packed under government jurisdiction after 2 p.m. Only canned meat can

Alberton Man Has Foot Badly Lacerated

A rare accident occurred at the Alberton wharf on Wednesday afternoon when Mr. Sandy Bennett had his foot badly lacerated, and torn when it got caught in the propeller of his fishing boat. Mr. Bennett was pushing off the boat, with the engine going slowly and when only a few feet from the shore his foot was caught in the propeller.

Dr. J. B. Champion of O'Leary was called, and found the side of the foot torn open, and the ankle bones fractured, and lacerated Mr. Bennett was brought to the Prince County Hospital late that evening where his wounds were attended to. He is now resting comfortably.

Stevens Winds Up Campaign In Nova Scotia

NEW GLASGOW, N.S., Sept. 12—Making his final appeal to a Nova Scotia audience here tonight, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction Party leader, expressed doubt as to Prime Minister Bennett's "death bed repentance" on monetary and credit matters.

He said reports of the Prime Minister's recent speeches quoted Mr. Bennett as favoring an easier money policy.

"When Mr. Bennett is on his political death bed, he comes and says he is in favor of an easy money policy," commented Mr. Stevens. How did the Prime Minister reconcile this attitude with one he had taken recently in the House of Commons when he at the last minute "gullitoned" the Coteau bill providing for lower interest rates.

"Tightening up of the tight money policy of Mr. Bennett by Canadian banks was responsible for much of the distress in Canada. I welcome Mr. Bennett's death bed repentance, but there is not even having an opportunity to put into effect the policy which he now embraces."

A whirlwind, final tour of Cape Breton Island, ending with two meetings on the mainland, kept the Reconstruction Party leader working at high speed through his entire day. Tomorrow Mr. Stevens will leave for Charlottetown, P.E.I., where he is to speak in the evening.

Hauptmann Case Decision Impends

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 12—Attorneys here believe that the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals will rule on Bruno Richard Hauptmann's appeal from a death sentence in the murder of the Lindbergh baby when the court reconvenes Thursday.

It is not certain that the Court's decision will be made Thursday, or even on the following day, Friday the 13th, but most lawyers believed that the court would dispose of its most publicized case first.

Counsel for the German carpenter have said that they will appeal to the United States Supreme Court if the decision here is adverse. Grounds will include alleged discovery of a boy who "might be" the Lindbergh child, now said to be on Long Island.

Other possible defence courses would be application to the trial judge for a new trial, based on a claim of new evidence, or appeal to the Court of Pardons for clemency or a full pardon.

If the first degree murder verdict is upheld by the Court of Errors and Appeals, Hauptmann in absentia, probably would be electrocuted late in November or early in December.

Pretty Autumn Wedding

A very pretty autumn wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon at two thirty at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Pickering, Convent Street, Summerside, when their daughter, Miss Helen Ruth, became the bride of Mr. Nelson Pope Compton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Compton, St. Eleanor's.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Walter MacCleary. A profusion of flowers in rich autumn tints turned the reception room into a bower of loveliness, making a charming setting for the bridal party. Pale yellow streamers lent additional charm to the setting.

The bride entered the room on the arm of her father in the strains of the Wedding March played by Mr. Alfred Collwill, of Northam, sister of the bride.

The bride wore a lovely dress of white crepe with silver buckle and silver trimmings. Her smart felt hat and accessories were in matching shades of the same rich colour. She wore a bouquet of snapdragon and fern.

The bride was attended by Miss Francis Muttart who was dressed in olive green crepe and green felt hat and carried a bouquet of maid of the mountain and phlox.

Mr. Lawrence Compton, brother of the groom, was best man. Immediately after the ceremony a buffet lunch was served to the relatives and friends who attended the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Compton will reside in St. Eleanor's after their honeymoon. Their many friends wish them a happy journey through life. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cotton, Miss Amy Brvan, Charlottetown and Mr. Leslie Phillips, Worcester, Mass.—S

Dr. R. B. Cochrane, Toronto, Secretary of home missions for the United Church of Canada, at a meeting of the Edmonton presbytery here today.

German Grumble As Food Prices Soar

BERLIN, Sept. 12—With food prices soaring, despite frantic measures to curb them, and eggs and certain kinds of meat often unobtainable or rationed out in small quantities, Germans are preparing to tighten their belts still another notch during the coming winter.

Grumbling among the workers and among all housewives has become increasingly more audible despite the fact that it may mean a concentration camp for those who protest too loudly.

Nazi official figures, it is true, claim that the cost of living has risen by only 4 per cent in the last three years. But they do not tell the whole story by any means.

It is certainly true that certain commodities, included by the statisticians in their figures, have not risen and at least one, cabbage, is even cheaper than last year. But aside from bread, the price of which has been kept down to last year's level a good share of the foods consumed by the masses have soared in price.

Food Costs High

A private investigation of shops in Berlin showed the following increase of prices since last year: Potatoes—30 to 50 per cent, higher. Eggs—20 per cent higher and difficult to get at any price. Meat—20 to 40 per cent, higher, and certain kinds especially pork, which is the favorite meat of Germans, not always obtainable.

Fruit—30 to 40 per cent higher with lemons very scarce. Italy, which formerly supplied them is diverting large quantities to her army in Abyssinia.

The high price of pork, and its scarcity, have hit the German right where it hurts most, since in ordinary times it was his main item of food. A year ago pork was quoted at 45 to 50 marks a 100 pounds. At Christmas it rose to 70 marks. It is now hovering around 100 marks.

The reason for its scarcity, admitted officially here, is that last winter German farmers were faced with such shortage of feed for their pigs that they were forced to slaughter large numbers of them. The ordinary market could not absorb them. With government aid, the pork was canned so as not to be lost.

Don't Like Canned Food

It is now being thrown on the market and butchers, with hardly any fresh pork on hand, are urging their customers to buy it. In some butcher shops, for instance, it is impossible to buy fresh meat after 2 p.m. Only canned meat can

Funeral Of Mrs. Alexander Campbell

Many friends from town, and country attended the funeral services yesterday afternoon in Trinity United Church, Summerside, for Mrs. Alexander Campbell who passed away in Prince Edward Island Hospital Monday evening. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Davies pastor, assisted by Rev. Dr. Legate, pastor of St. James Church, Charlottetown.

The mourners were Hon. Thane A. Campbell, K. C., and Mr. Clark O. Campbell, sons of the deceased. The pall bearers were Mr. Justice Saunders, Mr. A. E. MacLean, M.P., Mr. L. R. Allen, M.L.A., Mr. P. S. Sharp, Mr. B. Graham Rogers, and Mr. W. J. Whiteley.

HOARE

Sir Samuel told his hearers the two chief objectives at Geneva had been "to express, first of all, our universal desire to live as free men in peace and, secondly, our determination to keep our word that we have solemnly given under the Covenant of the League of Nations."

"How much I hope that in striving for these two objectives and in doing justice to Ethiopia we shall still be able to remain friends of our Italian ally in the Great War. More than most people I hate the idea of differences between Great Britain and Italy."

Sir Samuel who was Chief British Intelligence Officer in Italy during the war, continued: "Let them (the Italians) believe me, when I say I am as anxious as any in Europe to find a settlement that will do justice alike to Ethiopia's national rights and to Italy's claims for expansion."

"Let the air carry tonight to Italy these words: 'Whatever bitter things may be said, they are the words of a real friend.'"

Blunt Statement

Sir Samuel began by stating bluntly: "The chances for a settlement between Italy and Ethiopia are no better or worse than they were a few days ago." Asserting that he and Anthony Eden, British Minister for League of Nations Affairs, had "done our very utmost to make them better," he added: "Whatever may happen in the end, none shall say the British Government and its representatives have not made every possible effort to avoid what we believe would be a great calamity."

"My most vivid impression in the last few days is the respect with which our country and, indeed the whole British Empire, is held by the world," the Secretary continued. "I feel over and over again the weight of responsibility of representing a government to which so many countries seem to be looking for guidance and advice."

Heavy Responsibility

"It means a heavy responsibility to help the cause of peace in Europe. That is why I made it clear in my speech (delivered to the League Assembly yesterday) that we stand firm in our support of collective resistance to all unprovoked aggression."

"It means also a heavy responsibility for the whole world. We, as a great Empire, must remember the responsibility of great possessions. We must neither be tempted to use our advantages in a churlish nor a selfish manner."

WAGES INCREASES

CARDIFF, Wales, Sept. 12—Speaking at a luncheon welcoming 50 representatives of the Empire Parliamentary Association to Cardiff, H. H. Merrett, president of Cardiff Chamber of Commerce, said that in a few years the market for Welsh coal in Canada had been built up until they were now exporting more than 1,000,000 tons a year.

There was no reason why the trade should not be doubled, he said. He had after that hour. Never used to preserved foods the Germans are balking at buying canned meat.

Prices of sugar are more than 50 per cent higher. Potatoes, the staple food of most Germans, are way up in price and in some districts scarce. From the Rhineland it is reported that housewives have had to substitute cauliflower for potatoes. Tomatoes have doubled in price. Onions were for a time practically unobtainable but bartering arrangements with Bulgaria and other states brought them back in the market. Imports of other foods are held up because of lack of foreign exchange.

Stocks Running Low

The food shortage has left many wholesale dealers with very little to do and many of them are reported to be working only half time, with half their trucks inactive. Their stocks are very low.

The shortage of imported raw materials is also causing considerable anxiety in German business circles. The magazine of the Deutsche Bank warned this week: "The problem is whether it will be possible to hold out very much longer with the present volume of imports. From reports received from many industries consuming raw materials it becomes all too evident that the import of raw materials cannot be lowered much more."

Battle Is Staged By 'Home Towns' Child Is Disfigured As Pig Attacks Her

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 11—One of Will Rogers' two "home towns" in Oklahoma flared up against the other recently over a memorial for the cowboy humorist.

Oologah, Okla., near the ranch on which Rogers was born, wants to build one. So does Claremore, Okla., which claimed Rogers as a citizen.

Today, J. B. Wise, president of the Oologah Chamber of Commerce, charged its plans were "coolly ignored" by a memorial committee in Oklahoma City Wednesday. He added that the Oologah committee favored letting the nation as a whole settle the question of the site. Claremore has proposed the erection there of a $2,500,000 museum.

CHAMBORD, Que., Sept. 12—A sow attacked the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonie Bolduc and disfigured her for life when the child attempted to coax a little pig in their Lake St. John district farmyard here. Savagely bitten on one cheek and one arm, the child is reported not critically injured but will carry the scars through life.

The little girl caught up the suckling pig in her arms to pet it, when the sow rushed at her, knocked her down and attacked her. The child fought off the sow and climbed onto a woodpile for safety. Her screams attracted Mrs. Bolduc just as the enraged sow was preparing to charge the wood pile. The mother beat the sow off with a stick and took the little girl to a doctor.
