THE CLAIMS OF LABOR.

The dignity of Labor is something that should receive more consideration than is the case with very many people,—both of the class of those who labor with their hands and those whose efforts are of a mental kind. Philosophers and political economists of every age and of all civilized nations have from time to time impressed the dignity of Labor upon their followers and the sentiments they propounded should be encouraged and spread abroad. For Labor is the lever on which the world's welfare is poised and laborers should ever have in their minds the higher missions entrusted to them to do well that which their hands find to do, and to deserve the application of the words "for the laborer is worthy of his hire" Nowadays, the ideals and dignity of Labor are from time to time obscured by petty strikes, and by oppression on the part both of employers and employed. But on the whole the status of the laborer is admitted, the dignity of his calling recognized, and his rights freely acknowledged. It is fitting that a day should be set apart as a holiday in honor of the claims of Labor, and the happy celebration of Labor Day in this City on Monday showed a proper appreciation of the fact onthe part of all concerned.

TO ADVERTISE A CITY.

The Board of Trade of Springfield, Mass., offer a handsome reward for the best plan of advertising that city, so as to bring quick and satisfactory results. There is no question in the minds of these business men of Springfield as to the value of advertising in general, or in particular,for a mercantile establishment or for a city. They are thorough believers in publicity. What they want is to hit upon the best paying plan.

No doubt Springfield will have many plans suggested and will profit thereby. But some man in our more northern latitude may inquire why should a city advertise itself, especially if it be a large and growing city as Springfield is? Why should Charlottetown advertise? What has it as a city to gain by publicity? The answer is that the same rules apply in many respects to a city as to a mercantile or other business.

The merchant advertises in order to attract customers and to extend his business; also because other and rival merchants are advertising and he knows that if he neglects to keep his business before the public his trade will fall off. The city should seek publicity for like reasons. It is ambitious to grow in population and wealth, and to keep pace with other cities which make their attractions widely known. Wherefore the city should advertise, and the widely circulated newspaper affords the best means to this end.

Charlottetown would be benefited by a large increase in its resident population, and by the establishment of new industries and the extension of those already existing. The way to attain these ends is by making known as widely as possible the advantages of our city as a place of residence and as a centre for industry and trade and a few moments consideration will suffice to show that these advantages are many. But if we do not think of them ourselves and try to make them known they are likely to be overlooked.

Charlottetown is a good place to live, it is well governed, has a low rate of taxation, reasonable rents, excellent broad streets, good sidewalks, unequalled water supply, and is one of the healthiest cities in the world. It has a noble harbor, which the largest ships can enter. It has railway connection with almost every port or considerable center of population in the Provinces. It has excellent churches, colleges, schools, hotels, park, gardens, theatres hotels. It is the largest city in the Island and third among the cities of the Maritime Provinces.

So one might fill many pages with a recital of the advantages and attractions of our city. Visitors who come for the first time express both their surprise and pleasure and return to their homes carrying a good report. That is a good form of advertisement. The Tourist and Two Hundred Thousand Club has done excellent work which has borne good fruit. And still it is worth while to do as Springfield has done, by seeking out new and desirable plans for making the great world better acquainted with the summer attractions of our City and Province. Both the city and provincial Governments ought to deal with this vital matter on a scale of increasing liberality.

Dr. Andrew Macphail who has spent the summer in the Island, does not approve of the prohibition of intoxicants or motor cars, and wants better and cheaper transportation for passengers and freight and better telegraph and telephone communication. He has also a strong impression, as we have that the present high tariff is an oppressive burden to any farming community. But free whisky would not cure our transportation difficulties or lighten our burdens. Some day we may get educated up to allow the motor cars to run, but the days of the open saloon are past in this Province.

The following letter has been posted to the Directors of Y.M.C.A. the Ladies' Auxiliary and prominent women of our Association. During the past summer the Y.M.C.A. has been repainted inside, the hall is now in excellent condition and prospects never brighter for the Gymnasium classes and general work. We bespeak for the Young Men's Christian Association the continued hearty support of citizens..

Charlottetown, P.E.I.,
Sept. 4, 1808.

Dear Fellow Worker:—We have about $900.00 to provide for, within the next two months, to end our current year free of debt. I believe with your valued assistance, the Board of Directors, the Ladies' Auxiliary and the rank and file of Association workers, this desired end will be accomplished. It means hard work and some self denial, but after all isn't it worth the effort. We will win out with God's help and hearty co-operation.

Let me once more as President of Association thank you most sincerely for your hearty assistance during past years. God is not unmindful of your work and labor and love on behalf of Association.

Yours faithfully,
WILL S. LOUSON.

The death of R. B. Norton removes a citizen who took an active interest in the civic, commercial and political life of the City and Province. He had strong convictions, and expressed them fearlessly, without regard to whether those whom he addressed agreed with him or not. Few persons were more outspoken than he, and such men are needed in this time-serving age. We very sincerely regret that he has been called away, at an age when life should be broadest and most useful. Mr. Norton will be much missed, and especially in the family circle where he was greatly beloved. Much sympathy is felt and expressed on all hands for those whom his death most closely touches.
