

The Guardian Pictorial Page

Lillian Lorraine, musical comedy and vaudeville star, has been compelled to sell great quantities of her jewelry and now declares herself bankrupt. Some time ago she fell while dancing and injured her spine.

Miss Lucille Kreinick, pretty French modiste, arrives from Paris with a warm smile and a cool pose.

Countess Agnes Esterhazy, one of the most beautiful Hungarian women on the continent, became infatuated with the movies. Despite papa's objection, she is now the leading woman on the German screen.

The Duke of Connaught unveiled the war memorial in honor of the Canadian troops who fell at Ypres. The monument is the gift of the Canadian Battlefields Committee.

France and England joined in homage to the memory of Georges Guynemer, greatest of allied air heroes, when a memorial was dedicated at Poelcapelle. Guynemer died after downing fifty-three enemy planes.

Viscountess Maitland is seen presenting the Diamond Scull to M. K. Morris, the English champion, who defeated Walter Hoover, the former American champion, at the races recently.

An incident in the game of the first day's play of the annual cricket match between Eton and Winchester. The game was left drawn after two days' play.

Photo shows Harold Lloyd and his leading lady bride, Mildred Davis, whom he won many times in his various screen productions, finally to lead her to the altar in real life. The couple are honeymooning at Atlantic City.

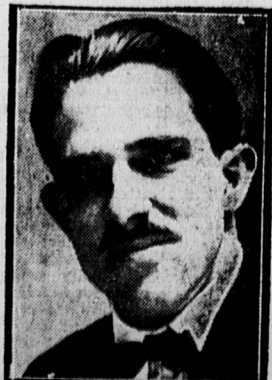

Can you imagine this big nose monkey of Borneo being killed by a bad case of hay fever. This is the only one alive in captivity.

Tired feet or not, anyway, she's champ. Marie Miller shattered the world's dancing record when she went 103 hours and 5 minutes at Milwaukee recently.

Walter Hoover, the former holder of the Diamond Scull, has returned from Europe, where his laurels were lost to W. K. Morris, English oarsman.

Lee Rombotis of the University of Pennsylvania, has been awarded the Paris prize of the Society of Beaux Arts Architects for his conception of what the White House should be.

The Deva Dasi of India is the dancing girl—the darling of the temple. She is trained from childhood for her profession to sing and dance before the god to whose temple she is dedicated.

Sir John B. Robinson, a well-known South African, is photographed with his son, on his present visit to the city where he is selling his famous collection of pictures.

Cont
He had shoulders
ed. "You h swered. I when spe than the over here
"I am
ways tau little."
"Then
something
I glance
caught th
want to l
suggested
"The l
Some f
patrons a ready go
the door,
moved to place. Th
peared.
Mr. Na
about try
across th
It was a little get best art painted strange and curl where l
trees ma large as corner around couches
was cen
and the illumina
forest.
It was create n
Mr. N.
his fing piano. I
for him,
my vote
complim
he throu game. T lude, a Tchaiko
and Des
"Ah,
those sl
leaning
piano.
I said
the key going wanted
bring hi want a
I bro
the mu skill to something ing an since I
trial so
"The
cried.
very w
There
only th ano, w
could:
I saw
there,
little tended,
thing
the m
well."
"The Gwen
questi
fully s
"The
while heard cared listen
could
I saw
arm,
diverts
ant th gather hers a
For
fingers
was th
listen
togeth
as I r
the lo
of the ped fro
"Let
with th
man h it ro door I me.
"But
cried,
back.
"No
fired,"
now."
"Am
—alon
sing—
"To
el. I Gwen
gather
the c
It ach
tensil
to sw
"as th
If you will fe
short v
A
Make 9 part time: t
the th
Absol
subje
etc
Lynn