A HUSBAND TO MARCIA

By CAROLYN BEECHER

Chapter XIII

"It does seem good to be back, old dear, even if I did have the time of my life," Marcia said to John a few days after she returned. "And, John, please send word to the garage that I must have my chauffeur. I hear he is working for some one who uses the garage."

"But, Marcia, I had hoped you would be willing to run the car yourself for a while. It was a close squeak for me to keep things going with the flat tire."

"Nonsense! You would have adopted that boy if I hadn't sat up on you hard. It won't cost any more for a chauffeur than it would have cost to dress and feed him. Anyway, I must have a man. It looks so poverty stricken to be without one. Claire says that."

"I know that people are judged by the sort of car they have and the shape of the chauffeur's nose."

"Why, John! I don't see how you can talk so!" Marcia's sense of humor was all. "I don't care about the shape of his nose, but I must have a man who is tall and can wear clothes. They cost too much to lay aside."

WHEN HAIR THINS, FADES OR FALLS, USE "DANDERINE"

35 cents buys a bottle of "Danderine." Within ten minutes after the first application you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, helping your hair to grow long, thick and luxuriant.

Girls! Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, thin and scraggy. A single application of Danderine will double the beauty and radiance of your hair and make it look twice as abundant.

Doctors Give Up His Case of Eczema

Wonderful recovery of a very sick man

This is one of the many striking stories we are publishing of what the D.D.D. prescription is accomplishing among Canadian sufferers. Cases from your own neighborhood will be sent on application.

I was laid up all winter with weeping eczema. I tried every doctor in reach. Both hands, arms and legs to my knees were a sight. I have used several bottles of D.D.D. and am well on my feet. D.D.D. is certainly cheap after the doctors." Peter Mercer, Ft. Burwell, Ont.

The first drop of D. D. D. and the skin is gone. Your money back if the first bottle does not give you $1.00 a bottle. Try D. D. D. Soap, 10¢.

"Very well, if you must have something to match the car and the clothes get him but I know you always do in the end. You just love to tease me." Then "You don't know how you spoil things for me. Why can't you say I can do and have things at first, instead of pretending?"

"It isn't pretending, Marcia. Many things you demand are really more than a man in my position has any right to grant. But I want you to be happy and contented, and to let you do these things seem the only way. It would be fine if you would talk things over, would try to understand that I cannot afford to give you as much as old, wealthier men give their wives."

"I hate talking business. You know I know nothing about it, absolutely nothing! I thought when a girl married it was her husband's duty to take care of her. And?"

"It is, Marcia. But perhaps if you understood how hard I worked, I am sure other men aren't so fortunate in getting the extra work to do when they need it. If you insisted upon getting what you are worth for your regular work we would have a lot of things I have to do without just because you are stubborn."

"If you don't mind, Marcia, I would like you to drop the subject. I must use my judgment as to what is the right thing to do in that direction."

"That's so like a man! You say you want me to understand business, talk things over with you, and then when I tell you anything you just the same as say, 'I don't know what I am talking about.' As usual John said nothing more. Marcia's reasoning was beyond him, as he said to himself. The queerest things about it was that he was really angry. He tried to look upon it as the reasoning of an ignorant child, but somehow he felt that it shouldn't be so that she should understand and understanding, help instead of hinder him."

"In New York you must look right, dress right, live nicely or you are just nobody at all," Marcia was fond of saying. "A person who wants a good time, to be received, simply can't afford to be a freak. This latest airing of this view was when John, too tired to care if he brought a storm about his ears, had refused to dress for the theatre."

More definitely than ever before he had the feeling that nothing really counted in his life was a failure, as far as he himself was concerned. So much of his time had been given to working for Marcia's happiness that his own happiness had not been considered. Yet he longed for rest, for companionship, perhaps the more eagerly because of his striving to please her. When they returned from the theatre he sought his den.

He wondered sometimes if ever he would cease to hurry, to struggle. He thought of the peoples of the East. They were never pressed for time. They spent their time loafing, their fellow men, "the cool sun" down and "the blaze of noon" and all the beauties and wonders of the earth. The ancients of history loved such things passionately. They had time to think, to feel, to love.

"I have time to nothing except grabbing for the almighty dollar," he declared as he threw down the book he had been reading and which had started this train of thought. Then for an hour he handled his china, rearranged his cabinet until he had grown less resentful toward life. Then with a sigh of regret because of the late hour of the hour, his need of sleep, he locked the cabinet doors and went to bed.

At breakfast Marcia said: "Aren't you sorry you were so cross to me last night?"

"Was I cross?"

"I should say you were, refusing to dress for the theatre. I saw Claire looking at us when we came out. I know people blame me when you are so careless in your habits. And goodness knows I try to make you do as others do, to have you enjoy yourself. I am always doing things I think will please you."

COUGH REMEDY

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION TO MR. HATFIELD DYMENT

On Saturday evening, Oct. 8th, a number of the brethren of Bell L. O. L. drove to the home of Brother Hatfield Dymont, Northam, who was due to leave in a few days for the island of Trinidad, where he intends to take up teaching and other works along missionary lines. After a short time spent in music and singing the meeting was called to order by Brother Albert Moore, who was appointed chairman and in a few well chosen words explained the object of the visit. He then called on Brother Alfred Frost who read the following address:

To Brother Hatfield Dymont, On this the eve of your departure, you, our brother members of Bell L. O. L. No. 1609, wish to convey to you in this address a small part of the affection and appreciation that we, as members of our Lodge have felt and still feel for you. As an Orangeman you have always had the best interest of the order at heart, and your wise counsel in our meetings and the high ideals you set before us have helped us to attain a much higher standard than we otherwise would have reached. And now in this great work which you have undertaken we, as your brethren in this Lodge feel that we have been greatly honored to have had you as a member of our order and you may rest assured that wherever you may be the best wishes of each member of Bell Lodge will follow you and we trust that the one you have chosen to serve will guard and watch over you and eventually bring you back to renew the pleasant friendships that we have enjoyed in our association together.

Warning! Unless you see name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting Aspirin at all. Why take chances?

Please accept this present, not for the intrinsic value but as a small token of the regard held for you by the Brethren of Bell L. O. L.

Signed in behalf of the Lodge.

A purse of money was then presented to him by Brother Roland Bryan.

Brother Dymont replied in his usual pleasant manner and thanked the Brethren cordially for their kindness and good wishes. Luncheon was then kindly served by Mrs. James Dymont assisted by the Misses Eleanor and Annie, mother and sisters of the Brother, after which the National Anthem was sung and the company dispersed to their homes.
