

AN ADVENTURE ON THE ISLAND

In Which an Island Girl is an Interesting Principal

A Lynn, Mass. Woman Hires a Special Train and is Taken to the Cape Where She Meets Her Husband.

It is not often that Supt. Harris of the N.B. & P.E.I. Railway at Sackville is called upon by a lady to provide her with a special train to Cape Tormentine...

The woman in the case was a Mrs. Dr. of Lynn, Mass., a native of Quebec, and the most interesting fact in connection with the case is that she was after her husband who has been on the Island.

Some months ago Miss — left her home on the Island and went to Lynn where she secured employment. She is rather prepossessing in appearance, dresses nicely and has a very taking way with her.

There are several stories going the rounds all more or less confusing, but the truth so far as can be learned is as follows:

Some months ago Miss — left her home on the Island and went to Lynn where she secured employment. She is rather prepossessing in appearance, dresses nicely and has a very taking way with her.

As a consequence she was not long in Lynn without admirers. Among them was a wealthy old man who seized every opportunity to make violent love to the fair Islander.

Another admirer was the old man's son and between them the poor girl's life was made miserable, so that she finally decided to return to her old home, which she did a few weeks ago.

In the mean-time the old man was bundled off down south by his family for the good of his health and the young man at once opened up a correspondence with Miss — with the object of trying to induce her to return to Lynn.

In this he seems to have failed, for his next move was to arrange with a friend of his, Dr. — to visit Miss — in her Island home and if possible prevail upon the young lady to accompany him back to Lynn.

The doctor cheerfully undertook the journey and the task of changing Miss — mind. Just why the young man did not make the journey himself could not be learned.

The doctor arrived at his destination a few weeks ago, and after some difficulty accomplished the object for which he was sent. Miss — would accompany him back to Lynn. But just about this time the steamer got caught in the ice and even the ice boats had the greatest difficulty in making regular trips between the Island and the mainland.

So that the doctor and his fair companion postponed their trip from day to day, hoping for a favorable day upon which to cross the straits.

But the doctor's wife had been left behind, and when day after day passed away and her spouse did not show up, she became uneasy, and finally decided to start out in search of him.

She arrived in Sackville on Saturday and went to the Cape on the regular train having heard that her husband intended to cross that day. But the husband did not put in an appearance, and the much agitated woman returned to Sackville and sent him a telegram that would make an ordinary man's hair curl.

As a result of this Mrs. — learned Sunday morning that her husband would cross that day, in order to be on hand to welcome him she hired a special train at the cost of $30 to convey her to the Cape. Here she found the doctor and his companion and after giving them a piece of her mind they kissed all round and made up. The trio arrived in Sackville about 7 o'clock Sunday evening and took the midnight train or the west. — Post.

The story told The Guardian some days ago by a commercial man well acquainted with the Doctor differs somewhat from the foregoing and is probably more correct. The son referred to was not in love with Miss — but rather was endeavoring to prevent his father marrying her. The Doctor was working both the young man and his father. The old man was sent South by

HOME AGAIN FROM NEW YORK

The Birthplace of the Prettiest and Best in Millinery

Miss King and Miss Doiron of Paton & Co. return from New York and tell interestingly of their trip.

Miss King and Miss Doiron of Paton & Co. have arrived from New York and Boston, where they were purchasing the firm's Easter and advance stock of Ladies' Fashionable wear.

Miss King worked while in New York City with one of Broadway's up-to-date Millinery hustlers — right on Broadway, where the latest and newest is copied from models imported direct from Paris and other birthplaces of chic novelties, and where American ideas are born which are worn everywhere.

The New York millinery specialists are very pleased to get Canadian brains into their work-rooms, to trim and copy to stock show and sell their eastern and western Canadian friends, thus making easy selling to the late prospective buyers from large cities such as Montreal, Toronto, Quebec, St. John and Charlottetown.

This gave Miss King an opportunity seldom given, and we have no doubt but that her patrons will benefit from her American experience. Miss King is now getting up models for the firm's Easter display.

Miss Doiron, the fancy goods and ready-to-wear millinery buyer, employed most of her time visiting the leading fancy goods houses buying America's newest fancy goods. She speaks highly of the silk waists she saw and bought while in New York.

She says she bought something very pretty in White and Cream Wash Summer Silk Shirts waists trimmed with insertion and medallions, also a good assortment of Linen Pique—all of the American manufacture, all direct from the maker in New York City.

The newest have the grape effect embroidered on linen and pique. Then there is some very handsome neck-wear, turn-over collars and stocks, which are very much in evidence in New York at the present time and will, no doubt, continue popular.

Then the Skirts are elaborate—fancy lace over silk drop-shirts (a distinct novelty); some pretty plain cloth skirts made narrow at the hips and flaring towards bottom, trimmed mostly with self-strappings and a few with satin; and a nice line of American Walking Skirts.

The Wrappers have fancy white yokes and large frills and some have braid trimmings. Then there is some lovely White Lingerie, consisting of Night dresses, corset covers and skirts.

It is impossible to specify any particular shape in the Tailor-made or Ready-to-wear Hat, but she considers them in advance of last year's styles, which is saying a good deal. They will speak for themselves when they get them over from Picton. There will be hundreds to choose from.

Miss Doiron's selections last year were very much sought after, and we predict the same quick selling for this year.

Dr. — at the instigation of the son. When it was heard that he was returning the son had the girl sent to the Island. But the old man was determined to have the girl back and so Dr. — started for this Province, this time the agent of the old gentleman.

Whether the father will be successful and marry the fair one, or whether the son will win in preventing him, is a matter which is still in doubt.

ANOTHER LARGE GIFT TO CANADA

Rockefeller Promises $100,000 to the Baptist College

Dollar for Dollar Says the Millionaire—President Trotter Writes that Remittances will be Made Every Three Months.

John D. Rockefeller, the millionaire Standard Oil Magnate will give the Acadia University, Wolfville N. S., one dollar for every dollar the college will raise between now and January 1st, 1903 up to $100,000.

Dr. Trotter, the president, of the college who has been interviewing the oil king, sends this word from Clifton Springs N. Y., where the doctor is recuperating his health. The details will be found in the correspondence here given Mr. Rockefeller recently gave this university $15,000 on condition that they raise $50,000 and this was done.

B. H. Eaton K. C. Halifax, has received the following letter from President Trotter of Acadia University. CLIFTON SPRINGS, N. Y. March 6, 1903. My DEAR MR. EATON.—Owing to the absence of Mr. Rockefeller from New York on a trip to the south, there has been some delay in obtaining his final word with respect to the recent proposal of the board of governors. At last, however, I am in a position to inform you definitely that he has endorsed the proposal, and has promised to give to the governors of Acadia one dollar for each dollar raised by them not later than January 1st, 1903, up to one hundred thousand dollars.

There are certain provisions, with which I need not now trouble you, all of them however, entirely satisfactory. In order that the moneys may be available for the board as soon as possible, Mr. Rockefeller has arranged that remittances shall be made from New York at intervals of three months, beginning with April 1st next, each remittance to equal in amount the amount certified as having been raised by the board for the three months preceding.

For the board to raise one hundred thousand dollars within the next five years means a heavy undertaking; but in view of the noble enthusiasm and generous giving of our people in connection with the recent Forward Movement, in view of the inspiring and assuring character of the recent meeting of the governors, and in view of the imperative demand for some comprehensive scheme such as is now contemplated in order that the permanence of the college may be secured and its efficiency guaranteed—in view of all this, I do not doubt for a moment that the undertaking will be faced with faith, courage and determination, and that with God's blessing it will be carried to a successful issue.

In accordance with the board's considerate arrangement, I am taking a few weeks of rest at Clifton Springs. I hope shortly to be in the enjoyment of full vigor, and to be ready to enter upon the new campaign. When I return home I shall desire to meet the executive committee of the board, and with their approval I will then address an open letter to the constituency, explaining in full the situation and outlining the plan of campaign.

Least there should be a misgiving in the minds of any of our people as to the effect of this new undertaking upon the Twentieth Century Missionary Fund, I think it would be well that they should understand from the first that, in all probability, the churches as such will not be canvassed (ill the term assigned to that fund by the convention shall have expired). A campaign among individuals with larger means will necessarily be demanded as the first stage of the new undertaking.

I shall leave it with you, as chairman of the board, to make public announcement of the facts as given above, in such form as may seem best to yourself. Yours very truly, THOS. TROTTER.
