

Stamina.. more characteristic than ever of new Hupmobile performance

THE widespread public belief that Hupmobile builds a stronger as well as a more finely balanced motor car, has never been more strikingly demonstrated than in the Hupmobile Century Sixes and Eights. Here are modern high compression engines whose power may be utilized to the full without wear or strain. At high speeds, for example, oil is forced at pressure to piston pins through drilled connecting rods. Lanchester dampers eliminate the last trace of engine vibration. Advanced oil, air and crankcase cleaners provide much longer life to the wearing parts of the motor. Throughout from chassis to the sturdy and beautiful coachwork, the Century models reveal the century's greatest advance in car design. You will own a Century Hupmobile as soon as you complete your first test of its remarkable riding and driving qualities.

24 body and equipment combinations, standard and custom on each line. Six of the Century, $1815 to $2215; Century Eight, $2495 to $2895. All prices f.o.b. Windsor.

FOR THE WOMAN READER

BY FLORENCE RIDDICK BOYS

GARDEN LOVELINESS

The back yard, without its furniture, looks almost as bare as the living room without chairs and davenport. Along with landscaping has more charming than the living room and a step farther out into the open than the sun parlor. Here the birds are not in cages, and the flowers may run riot and the housewife and her husband may raise Canterbury bells and larkspur and forget-me-nots and oriental poppies and Japanese lanterns and hibiscus and coreopsis and galleria and a dozen other varieties of delight. Here peace reigns and sweet home comfort and Nature presents a new joy each new day.

But as to the furniture—there are the most come-hither benches, some simple cement frames, some elaborately trimmed Italian settees; and here is the sun dial, the bird bath, the gazing globe on its pedestal. What is the use of the gazing globe, nobody seems to know, but it looks beautiful with the sun shining on it and its rays refracted into varicolored beams. The trees and grass and skies are reflected in it, too, and it adds a charming note to the little, sequestered garden. And when the moon shines softly on it, you think that glory has slipped down out of the heavens into your wee back yard. Other garden furnishings are the ornamental urns and pots, the fountains, figurines, the stone lantern, and the cool rockery.

The flower beds of the modern garden are not formal, as of yore, but follow natural lines of curves with no square corners. Around, in and out, among the shrubs and flowers are flagstone walks, made from irregular pieces of broken cement sidewalks imbedded in the sod. And back in a silent corner, where the vista is longest, and yet the retreat is most secure, is a little arbor or pergola. Here is a spot to rest on a quiet evening or a Sunday afternoon, or between times when pulling weeds.

If you haven't a back-yard garden yet, start one today. Mother Nature is no respecter of persons and she will make the hollyhocks bloom just as brilliantly in your garden as in anyone's. You don't know what you are missing in a forlorn, gardenless state. Do not grieve if you cannot spend a lot of money on your garden. A garden is a love-sown spot, not a place for the display of wealth. Coax Mother Nature and she will smile on you. You do not have to court her with riches. And do not take your garden too seriously. Do not expect it to be done. The joy of a garden is in making it, not in having it. And there is always anticipation. Next year you will add lilies and a new variety of roses.

COOLING DRINKS

If anything will make one forget the weatherman on a hot day it is a cooling drink. Iced tea is an old stand-by. Use good tea and make it in an earthen pot. Scald the pot each time you make fresh tea, before you put the tea into it. Let it stand for five minutes on the tea leaves, then drain off the liquid. When cool, add ice and serve with lemon slices into which cloves have been stuck. Oranges may be used instead of lemons, or a little orange juice may be added to the beverage before the lemon slices are passed. A bit of grated lemon or orange peel adds a pleasant flavor. Sprigs of mint look pretty and give another flavor when added to lemonade or iced tea.

Punch may be made with any combination of fruit juices. Some thoughtful housewives keep a can of sugar syrup and a selection of fruit juices constantly in their ice box in summer to be ready to welcome the tired guest who happens to come their way. It is a nice, hospitable habit. Lemon is desirable in almost every combination of fruits in a punch. Whatever else you may have, it seems to need the tang of the lemon before it is complete and lemon juice brings out the flavor of the other fruit juices. A pink or green fruit color added to summer drinks cheers the eye as well as the palate and makes them more festive and refreshing.

To make ginger punch, flavor the punch with preserved ginger and tiny pieces of orange and pineapple. Raspberry lemon and mint is a fine combination. Spiced lemonade is always good. Grape drinks are nutritious as well as refreshing. Iced mint cocoa is less familiar but delicious.

PORCH SETS.

Found in the shops are porch sets for serving iced tea or lemonade. They are made up of a basket tray with a handle on it, and compartments to hold the apurtenances. There is always socket to hold the tea pot or lemonade pitcher, and small sockets to hold the tea cups or lemonade glasses. A stand is built to hold the basket tray, and there is a special shelf for the plate of bonbons or tea cakes.

COLORED BED LINEN.

For some time we have accustomed ourselves to pink, lavender and green lingerie. Then color began to invade our window curtains, supplanting the conventional white of ecri. Lately we have been accustomed to colored tablecloths and napkins, but now comes a new invasion—colored sheets and pillow cases.

For ages we have thought of snowy bed linen. Can we sleep in blue sheets? The answer is: people are doing it. But it is disconcerting to get in among 'em, wearing pajamas of a clashing color. It makes one stop to think to be sure his famous and poetic "shades of night" harmonize. A lavender nightgown among Nile green sheets, reminds one of heliotrope, but how can one forecast what color sheets a hostess is going to offer, and how they will go with your daffodil yellow pajamas? Life is becoming constantly more complicated, and the last straw is colored sheets and pillow slips.

HATS.

Paper hat boxes, almost as gorgeous as in colonial times, accompany many of her trips these days; for the big hat has come back again, and it is not sufficient itself (as the small hat was) to venture forth on a trip. It is not appropriate for all occasions.

In the hat-box grip, which looks like a drum, the travelling lady may carry her big hat and her wardrobe, allotting about equal portions of room to each. The big hat is much like the old-fashioned hat which mother used to wear in her girl-hood. It is beginning to be trimmed with ribbons and flowers and wreaths and stick-up pins. And the decorations are not flatly applied down either, but gaily stuck forth and make the big hat look quite like a flower garden. Another thing about these big hats, they are not cheap. We saw one in the shop the other day, priced at $30. But they do have less expensive ones. The big hats are made of regular straw and not the fine soft braid of the small hats.

THE BLACK DRESS.

It may seem a bit sombre, when the shops are abuzz with gay frocks; but just the same it is the good old standard and it will look smart when the roses of summer are faded and these colorful, flower like gowns are wilted as the roses.

Black never seems to go out of style and it never ceases to be chic. In a season when everyone else is color mad, it is refreshing to see a dame with the poise to ply her peaceful way in the cool, rich color of the night. Black is stunning at the party, elegant at the banquet, at ease at the afternoon leavay, and just the thing for the morning shopping tour, for the day in business, for train travel, and for summer sight-seeing trips. The efficient woman will never permit herself to be minus one utility dress of black crepe or satin, which is always ready, always appropriate and always becoming.

TO WASH SILKS.

Such pretty, filmy, silky things are in shops these days and almost any woman who likes to have a few of them to wear, if only she felt that she could wash them when they become soiled and keep them pretty after laundering. Most eyes are fast these days and gentle handling will usually turn the trick. To wash silks, dip them in luke warm suds made from a mild soap. Souse them around and dip them up and down and squeeze them out. To rub and wring them breaks the delicate fibres. Rinse them thoroughly and hang in a breeze to dry. If they do not come clean upon one washing, repeat the process and you are likely to have success.

BUGLESS ROSES.

To keep bugs off roses, get a bag of dry sulphur powder; put it in a sieve, and sift it above the roses in the morning, when the dew is on them so that the sulphur will stick.

WEDDING BELLS

On Wednesday morning, June 27, a very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Joseph's Church, Kelly's Cross, when Myrtle Gorman became the bride of Leonard Macdonald, Cornwall, P. E. I. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Pope McMahon. The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss M. A. Kelly, who also rendered appropriate music during the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mabel Gorman, R.N. The bridesmaids were Santurion, N. B., while the groom was assisted by his brother, George, a recent graduate of St. Dunstan's University. After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the home of the bride, where a wedding breakfast was served to the home of the friends of the bride and groom, after which the happy couple left by auto for the mainland. On their return from a two weeks tour of the Maritimes the bride and groom were welcomed by a number of their friends to the home of the groom where a very pleasant evening was spent by all. Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald intend making their home in Cornwall, where they are both very favourably known.
