Discouraging Trap Stealing

A Basque sheep herder convicted of trap stealing in Lassen county, California, recently was fined $100 and sentenced to jail for six months. The case was brought to trial and settled within four weeks. The field operations in predatory animal work conducted by the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture have been seriously interfered with by the stealing of traps, and it is believed that as a result of convictions and heavy sentences the nuisance will be lessened.

"These jellies all seem the same flavor to me, dear," Mrs. Flatbush said. "But you can tell the difference by the labels," Mr. Flatbush said. "Positively, I never thought of tasting the labels."

Minard's Liniment Relieves Pain.

Painless Birth Is Now Achieved

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Within the last few months, 1,000 babies have been brought into the world without pain to the mothers by a new and safer form of "twilight sleep" at the Lying-in-Hospital here. It was announced at a convention of the Eastern Society of Anaesthetists.

The discovery, made by Dr. James Gwathmey, is claimed to eliminate the danger of poisoning the child, which was the cause of the "blue babies" under the first method of using "twilight sleep."

Dr. Gwathmey's discovery consists in the use of scopolamine and morphine in a solution of epsom salts. The salts make it possible to obtain the same degree of insensibility from pain with one-fourth to one-sixth the quantity of scopolamine, thus reducing the danger of toxic effects on the child. The treatment is completed with ether and chloroform.

Dr. H. H. Johnson, of Hampton Iowa, reported a somewhat similar method which he had been successful in approximately 1,000 cases.

Dr. R. E. House, of Ferris, Texas, an authority on "truth serum," described his experiments with minutes of persons, who were reduced to a state of insensibility in which only their memories remained. While in this state they were asked questions which in the absence of a conscious will-power they answered from their memory and truthfully.

TRAGEDY OF THE SAN BERNARDINO MOUNTAINS

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Oct. 24.—T. C. Kelly, missing since Sunday, was found dead at the foot of a precipice off the State Highway in the San Bernardino Mountains today. His wife was alive but injured and Meredith Waterbury, aged 5, also was alive, kept from death by thirst and starvation by blood from Mrs. Kelly's arm, which she gashed to save the child.

Jimmy was sitting on the doorstep playing with his marbles. After a while a man approached and asked "Is your mother at home?"

"Yes," was the reply.

The man rang the bell, but no one came to the door. So he rang again. After a third unsuccessful attempt he turned to Jimmy, despairingly. "I thought you said your mother was in."

"So she is," answered the boy, "but she doesn't live here."

May A Christian Approve Of War?

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—To decide whether a Christian is ever justified in going to war is one of the difficult problems that was submitted this morning to the Biennial Convention in America of the Lutheran Church in America at its session here. Five hundred delegates, representing more than 2,800 Lutheran congregations, are called upon to define the position of the church on that point.

The war issue comes before the convention in the form of four memorials from as many different synods which have already taken their attitude on that question. The issue was raised also by the Committee on Moral and Social Welfare, which includes in its membership some of the most advanced progressives in the Lutheran church organization.

Several months ago the committee adopted the statement that it believed that the assertion in the famous Augsburg Confession, formulated 400 years ago, that "Christians may engage in just wars," was a correct interpretation of the teaching of Jesus Christ.

This caused a protest from three of the synods which are constituents of the United Lutheran Church in America. They have adopted memorials emphatically opposing the idea that Christians would be justified in going to war.

Lutheran leaders expect a lively clash in the convention when this issue arises for debate on the floor next Tuesday.

Brazil Has Another Big Sensation

RIO JANEIRO, Oct. 23.—A widespread plot to overthrow the government has been discovered and the leaders have been arrested, it is announced officially tonight.

The news, following the three weeks rebellion in Sao Paulo in July, caused a sensation, but the Government appeared to have the situation well in hand.

Widespread arrests have been made in connection with a sedition movement designed to overturn the established authorities, said the official statement.

"The plot has been so fully worked out that even cabinet posts at the proposed regime had been distributed."

"The Government has had knowledge for some time," the statement said "of the criminal intentions of the plotters and awaited only the proper time to repress action."

"When full proof was obtained surprising the malcontents, who had evidently planned their outbreak for today."

The leaders were arrested at a meeting where preparations were being completed for the uprising and compelled to reveal all their plans with the names of persons participating, and those who had knowledge of the affair."

In a rural court the old squires had made a ruling so unfair that three young lawyers at once protested against such miscarriage of justice. The squires immediately fined each of the lawyers $5 for contempt of court.

There was silence, and then an older lawyer walked slowly to the front of the room and deposited a $10 bill with the clerk. He then addressed the judge as follows: "Your Honor, I wish to state that I have twice as much contempt for this court as any man in the room."

During this season where we are liable to encounter fogs on the country roads, where the dampness from the perspective, it is a good time to practice the use of the dimmers.

Many accidents have been caused through drivers neglecting to give the other driver a chance.

It is practically impossible to drive against some of the headlights used on cars, especially if a fog prevails.

If your dimmers are not working properly, now is the time to have them adjusted and repaired to suit the other driver as well as yourself.

Question—How much primary current does it take to make a secondary spark in a four cylinder automobile.

Answer—A coil usually draws about four amperes, but the condenser absorbs more than half of this.

A Mission in Africa

Letter from Father Cotton

Letters recently received from the Rev. Walter Aidan Cotton, C. R., supply interesting information concerning conditions in Africa and the Christian Missions there. He is now at work in Southern Rhodesia, where a wide field for evangelization has been opened and where large numbers of the natives are accepting Christianity and are under instruction. In a letter written at Penhalonga on the 17th August, he states that "yesterday we had a great baptism. A hundred and eighteen adults and adolescents were baptized, immersion in a deep water tank into which our water furrows flow just outside the church. This is the custom in the tropical and sub-tropical areas."

"St. Augustine's Mission" is the name of the station of which he has oversight. There are several other stations of the mission—some teachers of adults—particularly those natives who are being prepared for ordination to the Deaconate and the Priesthood. The natives already in orders carry on the work at out-stations which are regularly visited by one or other of the resident clergy.

Concerning this station on Father Cotton writes: "Had I the gifts for it, I could have plenty of scope for farming here. There are attached to this station four thousand acres of land—some of it quite good for cultivation—all good for grazing or forest. Under the direction of one of the Community, the boys and men in course of instruction in the principles of Christianity also engage in farm work, and to help provide means for their subsistence while they learn the ways of civilization and the methods of agriculturists. At an elevation of about four thousand feet above the sea, the temperature is not excessively hot."

An idea of farm life in Rhodesia is given in Father Cotton's account of his visit to an out-station. "We have spent" he says "a night at a very nice Rhodesian farmstead with Mr. and Mrs. Tilbrook. Both were born in British Columbia. He was in business in Cape Colony, but he is now an enthusiastic farmer, and was keen to show me his strawberries, bananas, pineapples, and his peach, plum, apple, cherry and many other kinds of fruit trees. He has numerous little dams and water furrows leading from them over the farm. A nice lot of pigs play about in an enclosed and watered space. He has cattle, sheep, horses and goats. The farm is high up on the hill country where no fever or horse sickness troubles them. There is no frost and no oppressively hot weather—our thousand five hundred feet above sea level. This morning we depended in an hour or two two thousand feet to a station where it is much warmer. Parts of the way were very steep, and through a lovely forest—Victoria Park. I led the way walking, followed by three pack laden donkeys and two native boys. It is wonderful how nicely the donkeys follow and how carefully they pick their way. Where possible I rode on one that had formed her to have a very nice step. But as donkeys have no withers in the downhill parts one's saddle would keep slipping forward."

"The weather (August 28th) is changing to summer and P. E. Island August weather would just about describe it. They say that however hot it gets in these parts, there is always a nice breeze blowing. We sleep under nets to keep away the malaria-carrying mosquito tocs, but as yet I have heard nothing of them. People who have been long in the country speak very lightly of the risks or danger of getting fever; sleep under a net and in the winter season take five grains of quinine is the prescribed preventive."

"We are thinking of the Ford for the Mission. Quite good roads about here Saturday from Penhalonga to the going for a car would be splendid. But yesterday I came up hill-sides that the high powered cars could not go on the best roads and the no roads. My donkey was to groom and to me how was. I know quite well the language spoken by Balaam Bishop in Umtali. He was some candidates; and in the noon he dedicated a large stone cross, built of stone and concrete on the top of a high hill overlooking the town, to commemorate the natives of the Rhodesia who lost the war—several thousand of them."

"The most forgiving and the Zoological Gardens, I believe that? What makes me believe that? Why, dear, he looks everything."

BACKING UP YOUR BEST.

You can't afford to lend your time, your effort, your energies, to anything but your best. What would a big business who had the head of the sidewalk and play marbles during business hours?

There are multitudes of people who have splendid business ability and yet they are playing marbles much of the time, doing things worth while, that are unworthy of them.

If backing up the best things in you with all your might will not bring success, certainly the backing up of your second-best can't bring success.

"My dear, you surely haven't spent all the afternoon at the Scandell's?"

"Yes, auntie. They said such things about everyone who left that I didn't care to come away."
