Mr. George Wotton brought the couple to the hall where they were received by Mrs. Arthur Simmons and were then escorted to the seats of honor by Miss Lorraine Lowther and Mr. Wendell Horton, to the strains of the bridal chorus, played by Miss Glenda Simmons. Mr. Wotton then made a few very fitting and humorous remarks. The Misses Esther Johnston and Valerie Myers carried the gifts to front and they then, along with the Misses Glenda Simmons and Lorraine Lowther, proceeded to open them. Miss Emily Higgins read the accompanying verses and Miss Frances Sherry arranged the gifts on the table, which was well loaded, and this goes to show the popularity of John and Florence. Following this Mrs. Annilea Taylor read an address and Wendell Horton made the presentation of a table lamp on behalf of the Y.P.U. of which both were valuable members. John immediately rose to the occasion with a very fitting reply on behalf of Florence and himself, thanking one and all for their kindness and inviting everyone to visit them when they become settled. The crowd then joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and on being escorted to the rear of the hall the boys bounced John close to the rafters. The ladies served a dainty lunch, after which the younger set danced, thus bringing the memorable evening to a close.
