Hallow'een has come and gone. That mystic period in the rolling years, when, if not "ghost's troop forth", it is thought by many that mysterious influences fill the air effecting the weal or woe of men, when the youthful scion "bobs" for apples and the coy maiden with half frightened glance looks over her shoulder to catch the image of her future lord. When the tinkling cow bell tells not of "the lowing herd winding slowly o'er the lea," but the presence of the lusty youth on frolic intent racking what he calls his brain to devise some new and impish prank, that will cause the anxious householder to wonder o'er his missing gate or empty cabbage plot; even this has come and gone! And now it is to be noted that the good or mischievous influence that rules the hour seems no "respector of persons" and that even "the cloth" are not supposed at times to be exempt from being made the victim of their sportive fancy. We understand that this was especially revealed in the present year as a certain member of the said "cloth" has been compelled "to acknowledge the coin" of being victimized. The Rev C. F. Wiggins having occasion on Thursday evening to visit the harness shop of the Standard Mfg. Co. for the purpose having his whip repaired, tied his horse with the utmost confidence of security to a post in front of the establishment. On entering he was somewhat surprised to find himself welcomed as an invited guest. He was most politely conducted by one of the foremen all over the building, shown all the objects of interest, the busy hive of workers, the new heating apparatus, etc, etc, as though he had been a bloated capitalist. Having spent a very pleasant half hour, he took his leave and to find his patient horse, when lo, and behold no sad and drooping equine could be discovered, naught but a steed with head erect shining in all the glitter and polish of gorgeous trappings. The old and battered harness had been removed by mystic hands and replaced by a new set of splendid workmanship. The only consolation that the Rev. gentleman received for being the victim of this practical joke was that his missing harness had been spirited away for the purpose of being cleaned and repaired. We are informed further that the prime mover and ringleader of this joke on the parson was one, Mr. Hugh Sutherland, who has alway hitherto been considered a most respectable citizen, but who emboldened no doubt by the liberty of the day did not seem to regret the part he had taken in the proceeding. We are happy, however, to state that the parson seemed equal to the occasion and was in no way put out, and indeed went so far as to heartily thank his entertainers for their most kindly joke at their expense and offered to say no more about it on the promise that they would not do it again—till the next time. And he with a happy heart went on his way rejoicing, thinking after all what a happy season was Hallowe'en. (Rev. Mr. Wiggnis is a brother of Lady Davies.)

MR STEWART continued his argument in the Prohibition case yesterday morning. He contended that the act did not relate as claimed to a matter of a merely local or private nature in the province; that it indirectly prevented importations into this province of liquor by preventing it being sold when imported, and therefore came in conflict with the powers and prerogatives of the parliament of Canada; that the right to import was a right over which the parliament of Canada has exclusive jurisdiction and that right is incomplete and of no use unless it carries with it the right to sell; that the act came in conflict with the Inland Revenue act of Canada which authorized brewers, distillers and compounders in this province licensed under the act to carry on their business, which included the right to sell their products; that it interfered with the systems of revenue and taxation established under Dominion law and other interests which are neither local nor private; that the liquor traffic is as much a part of the trade and commerce of the country as that of any other commodity used in traffic and that this act in interfering and suppressing this traffic transcends the power of the province and directly affects persons outside thereof and if the province can suppress the liquor traffic it has the power to destroy any of the branches of trade and commerce existing in Canada so far as this Province is concerned. That if this act is held to be intra vires of the province the Local Legislature has the power to prevent all banks and insurance companies from doing business within the Province. He concluded his argument at one o'clock and the Court then took the case en delibere. The Court then adjourned until this morning at 11 o'clock.

WARTS ARE UNSIGHTLY.

That is the reason no one is clamoring for a few more warts—make them fashionable and a remedy to grow warts would quickly be made a financial success. Yes, Putman's Corn and Wart Extractor removes them, works quickly and without pain—druggist will tell you more about this remedy.

A NATURAL lace flower as they grow in California is being shown in the window of the Central Drug Store. It shows the wonderful works of nature admirably and is worth a look over.

MR. W. W. Clark, agent of the Pikford and Black Line has received the following: The City of Ghent has gone down to the S. S. Kong Haakin with wrecking appliances, and so will not be able to sail on her regular trip this week, but as soon as she returns she will resume her regular sailings.

AT this morning's session of the Supreme Court the respective rights of the Dominion and this province to the Inland Fisheries of the province comes up for argument. In this case the Dominion claims the right to make and enforce regulations dealing with oysters, trout, and other Inland Fisheries of the province. This is contested by the local authorites and the matter comes up before the court for decision. The Attorney General represents the Local Government and Mr. Haszard the Dominion Low Agent represents the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

A DAILY NUISANCE.

A Simlpe Remedy Which Will Interest Catarrh Sufferers.

In its earlier stages catarrh is more of a nuisance than a menace to the general health, but sooner or later, the disease extends to the throat, bronchial tubes and even to the stomach and intestines.

Catarrh is essentially a disease of the mucous membrane, the local symptoms being a profuse discharge of mucous, stoppage of the nostrils, irritation in throat, causing coughing, sneezing, gagging and frequent clearings of the throat and head.

The usual treatment by local douches, snuffs, salves, etc., often gives temporary relief, but anything like a cure can only be obtained by a treatment which removes the catarrhal taint from the blood and the disappearance of the inflamation from the mucous surfaces.

A new remedy which meets these requirements and which so far has been remarkably successful in curing catarrh is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

These tablets act upon the blood and mucous membrane only. They can hardly be called a secret patent medicine as they are composed of such valuable remedies as Sanguinaria, Hydrastin, Eucalyptol and similar cleansing antiseptics which cure by eliminating from the blood and mucous surfaces the catarrhal poison.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are large, pleasant tasting lozenges taken internally, allowing them to dissolve in the mouth, in this way they reach the throat, fauces and the entire alimentary canal.

If desired, they may also be dissolved in water and used as a douche, in addition to the internal use, but it is not at all necessary to use a douche; a few of them dissolved in the mouth daily will be sufficient. However, when there is much stoppage of the nose, a douche made from these tablets will give immediate relief, but the regular daily use internally of these tablets will cure the whole catarrhal trouble without resorting to the inconvenience of a douche.

Dr. Bement states "that the internal treatment for catarrh is rapidly taking the place of the old plan of douching, and local application and further says that probably the best and certainly the safest remedy at present on the market is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, as no secret is made of their composition and all the really efficient remedies for catarrh are contained in this tablets."

Druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at fifty cents for full sized package. Ask your druggists and if he is honest he will tell you there is no safer, more palatable, more efficient and convenient remedy on the market.
