"Ice Follies Of 1939" At Prince Edward

Hitting a new high in entertainment "The Ice Follies of 1939," starring Joan Crawford with James Stewart, Lew Ayres and Lewis Stone.

The "Ice Follies of 1939" contains the nappy combination of plot, extravaganza, and some of the best tunes to come out of Hollywood this season.

The story centers about Mary McKay, a singing ice skater who, through a series of strange twists of fate, finds herself on the top rung of the ladder to film fame.

Her quack agent, however, leaves husband Jimmie Stewart behind and the manner in which the two are finally reunited supplies plenty of punch to the dramatic action of the story.

As Mary McKay, Joan Crawford soars to new heights of film popularity. She lends herself to the role with a new abandonment, her voice, in three popular songs, is individual and appealing and her ice skating routine leaves no room for improvement.

James Stewart, as Miss Crawford's husband, has been happily cast. Sentimental, sincere, he gives to his role that naturalness which characterizes all of his screen appearances and which has placed him in the category of the screen's most popular leading men.

Lew Ayres, too, will add to his already long list of loyal fans as Jimmie's partner, Eddie Burgess, whose wise-cracks dominate many of the drama's lighter moments. The spectacular ice ballets include the entire troupe of the original Ice Follies.

TWO PLATINUM FOXES BRED.—Platinum blondes will now be able to have natural platinum for fur. The first breeding propensities of a female fox on a fur farm located in the vicinity of Chipman, on the lines of the Canadian National Railway in New Brunswick, continue and the strain can be stabilized. Two platinum foxes were born in a litter of three. One of the other is a light straw color. The third has the ordinary markings of a silver fox. Platinum foxes are a man's dream, very valuable, and are being bred on several ranches in this Province.

In Memoriam

DOUGLAS E. NORBTHROP

The funeral of Douglas Ross Norbthrop, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Norbthrop, whose death in his year occurred on the 14th, following a protracted illness, was held from his parents' home, 16 Prospect Street, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and was largely attended. Rev. Dr. E. H. Ramsay, minister of St. David's United Church officiated. A choir sang the hymns "Abide With Me" and "Nearer My God To Thee."

Mr. Norbthrop's body was brought to the city Friday accompanied by his widow, father and mother. Mrs. Norbthrop had been in Halifax for several weeks previous to her son's passing.

At the funeral Sunday the pallbearers were Messrs. F. M. Stevens, of the Moncton branch, Bank of the Pacific from China. The Amoy did it in 1922. The Hummel-Hummel did it a few years later.

With five other young college men such as Hillburton himself had been 17 years earlier, and a crew of nine, Hillburton set forth from Hong Kong on yet another adventure. The war in China, the wintry season, did not deter him.

The liner President Coolidge picked up March 23 what may have been the last message from the Sea Dragon. It was then 120 miles west of Midway Island, where it was due April 5. The message said the junk's ice ad- venture was swash. As junk, highly seaworthy vessels, ride high in the water, this was taken to mean that the craft was in grave danger. Search of the area by the Coolidge offered no clue.

Nothing has come since from the Sea Dragon. It is still possible that the stout junk, blown off her course perhaps by typhoons or gales, may come limping into some port or cross the course of some other ship in the far Pacific. The thousands who found vigorous romance in Hillburton's adventures still hope.

But each day makes it more nearly certain that Richard Hillburton found at last the Royal Road — to Death.

MADE VAGABOND DREAMS COME TRUE

Instead of going into the bond business as Princeton men of his generation prevalently did, Hillburton went to sea, and a vagabond itinerary took him slowly to Switzerland, Andorra, Gibraltar, Egypt, India, the Himalayas, Tibet, Siam, Angkor, Bali, China, Siberia, Japan. After two years he returned home. He had with him the manuscript of a book which he called "The Royal Road to Romance."

It proved to be just that to 100,000 readers, who reveled in the way this slim young Princetonian did just the things they had always wanted to do.

"Adventure is merely making dreams come true," he wrote, and thousands of women, sighed and murmured "How true!"

"I want," he said, "with little money, but with an enthusiasm and excitement that magnified every happening and glided it... Greece was no run-down-at-the-heel country to me, but the land of pericles and Plato. It was everything I expected, because I knew exactly what I wanted it to be."

WINDHOEK, Southwest Africa—Special message from Adolf Hitler to his followers in this former German colony commends their loyalty and bids them "live hand in hand in full Nazi brotherhood."

Vernon Nordrop of Montreal, accompanied by his little daughter, Marjorie, arrived on Saturday to attend his brother's funeral. Mrs. V. H. Sjoland, Halifax, wife of a banking associate of the late Mr. Nordrop, accompanied the funeral party to this city. The burial service was attended by a large representation of Bank of Montreal employees, among whom Mr. Nordrop had been a co-worker for 13 years.

Floral tributes included remembrances from friends and bank workers in Halifax, Pictou, Charlottetown, Moncton, Vancouver, Yarmouth, Lunenburg, Detroit and Montreal, besides those of Saint John.—The Telegraph Journal.

THE Royal Road to Romance appears to have come to an end somewhere in the Pacific, and the Glorious Adventure would seem now to have brought Richard Hillburton to the common adventure of death.

It was at the end of March that the Chinese junk, Sea Dragon, en route from Hong Kong to Midway Island, lost touch with its radio contacts in San Francisco. Severe typhoons were known to have swept the area.

Hillburton and 14 companions and crew were sailing the junk to San Francisco to exhibit it at the fair there. No trace has been heard of seen of them since.

The parents of the young adventurer remain hopeful, though they must sit quietly in their Memphis, Tenn., home waiting for word which does not come.

SPECIALIST IN DANGER

"We just don't know what to do or think," says Wesley Hillburton, a Memphis real estate dealer. "Since the last message of March 24 we have heard nothing. Richard has been through dangers before when we had about given him up for lost, and all we can do now is to wait and hope. But it is a terrible suspense just waiting, and not knowing what the next word may be."

When Richard was on a 50,000-mile journey around the world in his plane, "The Flying Carpet," in 1932, Mrs. Hillburton was fearful for his safety. "He's always come back before," she says, "but I hate to think of his crossing those wide oceans."

Exactly 10 years ago, Hillburton wrote a story in which he told how he became a professional romantic adventurer. He said: "I must have at least 10 years more of traveling." That was in 1929. Death would appear to have been unwilling to grant more than his minimum request.

Hillburton, graduating from Princeton in 1921, soon found that he had the steepest pair of feet of his generation

WAVES HOLD STORY'S FINISH

He did the things other people only dreamed of doing and he described them starry-eyed. His adventures lost nothing in the telling. A million copies of his books were sold.

Hillburton always deplored some of the stories which had contributed to his reputation. Once on a visit to Memphis, he laughed and said: "Two things people will remember me by, and neither of them is true. One is that I am a tea-party lecturer, which I'm not, and the other is that I took a high dive into the pool of the Taj Mahal. Since it's only three inches deep in most places, you can see how true that was. I did take a swim in it, in the middle, where the water is some five feet deep. It was a good swim, too."

The present expedition on the junk Sea Dragon had precedents. Hillburton found at last the Royal Road — to Death.

Royal Road Led Thrill Master To Many Lands, Gave Readers a Diet of Real Romance

BY WILLIS THORNTON NEA Service Staff Writer

The far countries and the adventures which Hillburton described in his books were exactly what everybody else wanted them to be, too, and he rapidly became the most widely-read travel writer of the time.

He secreted himself and remained overnight in the gardens of the Taj Mahal. He climbed Mount Olympus and swam the Hellespont. He followed the odyssey of Ulysses and jumped into the sacred well at Chichen Itza, walked the battlements of Christopher's Citadel in Haiti, lived like Robinson Crusoe on Tobago. He visited the Foreign Legion in Algiers and the French prisoners on Devil's Island. He tried to fly over Mt. Everest in his plane the Flying Carpet. He crossed the Alps, like Hannibal, on an elephant. He swam through the Panama Canal. Always the cameraman was present to record the event, certify the exploit.

The smallest "vessel" ever to make the Panama Canal transit. Richard Hillburton as he looked 10 years ago at start of canal swim.
