INSTRUCTIVE LECTURES AT THE SHORT COURSE

At the Agricultural Hall yesterday afternoon the students of the Short Course were given ample opportunity for judging dairy cattle, a number of classes of Ayrshires being shown for judging purposes. The cattle were of very high quality coming from the herds of Messrs. McRae and Simons. After a thorough inspection of the cattle the students were afforded an opportunity of giving their placings and their reasons for such. Prof. Robertson, who was present, then went over the animals giving their correct standing, and showed numerous points of value in judging to the students. Prof. Reid went over the class more minutely substantiating Prof. Robertson's decision. Mr. McRae's "Milkmaid 7th" was then brought into the ring and Prof. Reid showed a number of points about this valuable animal in form, strength and quality, which indicated high producing capacity. He pointed out the possibility of improvement of animals, no matter how good they might be, as was shown by the fact that Milkmaid's daughters were going to be better than herself. This should encourage breeders to greater endeavours. The second class of Ayrshires was then brought in and gone over, Prof. Reid giving the final decision, after the students had judged them, advancing lucid reasons for such. The last class was two year old heifers, which were excellent representatives of the breed, one being reserve champion at St. John Exhibition last fall. Prof. Reid going over the animals answered many questions put by the students.

A couple of Ayrshire bulls were taken in for the purpose of showing the type which should be looked for in a good dairy sire. Mr. Reid mentioned a number of points which apply to the bull as well as the cow. One should look for greater weight and better muscular development, a good neck and head, heavier shoulders, and all fore parts showing masculinity from shoulders back. These should be the same as in the cow, a strong back and loin, with a deep barrel and a long, wide, full quarter, with thighs showing good muscle. The individuals shown were both excellent animals, coming from strains noted for high production.

In all the afternoon proved to be highly interesting and instructive, and the students by the knowledge gained in the judging of dairy cattle, should be in a far better position when they return to their homes to select and improve their herds for dairy purposes.

Professor Ross took up the first of a series of lectures on the "Feeding of the Stock" with the knowledge gained in the Short Course in the forenoon. He began by stating that plants were the Noteworthy Progress of French Army in Alsace. Extraordinary Achievements of Gallant Servian Army. Effect of Russian Victory on Turkish Hopes. Germany's Former Advantages in Preparedness and Strength Have Diminished While Those of the Allies are Increasing. A Triumphant Result Assured.

(Special to The Guardian)
LONDON, Jan. 6.—The House of Lords met to-day, a month earlier than the House of Commons, chiefly to hear from Lord Kitchener a review of the military operations for the six weeks since Parliament was prorogued. While the speech of the Secretary for War contained nothing of a sensational character, and little that is not already known, it was listened to with great attention by a distinguished gathering of peers and peeresses, members of the House of Commons and public men.

Lord Kitchener read his speech from a typewritten document. He referred briefly to the operations on every front, laying particular emphasis on the Turkish defeat in the Caucasus, the Austrian defeat in Galicia and what he considered even more important, the severe check of German aspirations in Poland.

Of the army which comes directly under his command, the War Secretary told a surprise reverse suffered by the Indians at Givenchy on Dec. 20, when they lost a trench, which they afterwards regained, and he added, "the British line thus resumed since then has been entirely maintained."

(Special to The Guardian)
LONDON, Jan. 6.—War Secretary Kitchener seized the occasion this afternoon at a meeting of the House of Lords to inform the nation of the progress of the war and of the military situation so far as military exigencies permitted. The House of Lords had reassembled for a brief session. Addressing it Lord Kitchener said:

"During the month of December the Allied forces made progress at various points, but the tide of battle ebbed and flowed with varying success. In spite of unfavorable weather the French army made noteworthy progress to the East of Rheims in Southern Alsace. Notwithstanding the transfer of German troops to the Eastern theatre of war, they left sufficient strength to hold their trenches in the West. German operations in Poland suffered a severe check and it is evident that they realize the infinite difficulty of winter operations in Russia. One of the brightest spots in the military operations during December has been the extraordinary achievements of the gallant Servian army. Last night we received news" Lord Kitchener declared, "of a Russian victory

SUMMARY OF THE SITUATION

(Special to The Guardian)
LONDON, Jan. 6.—Apart from the Russian victory over the Turks in Transcaucasia, which was described in a despatch to the Russian Embassy from Petrograd as complete, interest in the warfare now lies in the stubborn fight which the French and Germans are carrying on for the roads to Cernay and Muelhausen, in upper Alsace.

In the battle in that region, which has been raging for a week, is described in a Berlin despatch as the most violent of the war. The Germans succeeded in regaining one of the trenches they had lost, but on the whole the French reports show the French maintain the advantage for every bit of which they had to fight, in many cases with the bayonet. Along the rest of the western front the battle continues to ebb and flow.
