Stanley Cup Had Interesting Life

Greater Money Getter Than All Other Sport Trophies—Donated By Earl Of Derby Over Thirty Years Ago.

Amongst all the sporting trophies, which at different times have been put up for competition, the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the professional hockey championship of the world, and which was won this year by Les Canadiens, of Montreal, is about the most interesting.

It is over thirty years old, and considering its intrinsic value has been a greater money getter than any other sporting trophy known, for in the course of its existence it has caused the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars on the part of people who desired to see it played for.

Not Silver.

In appearance, the Stanley Cup on a wooden base is quite an imposing affair. It looks like a big silver bowl, ancient workmanship, only it isn't silver. Everyone thought it was silver for years, till it became so battered and dented from constant travel, and handling at banquets where filled with the finest brands of wine, it was passed from hand to hand, and mouth to mouth that it had to be repolished.

Compared to the Mann Gold Cup given for amateur lacrosse, or even the silver O'Brien trophy, emblematic of the championship of the National Hockey League, and which was donated by Ambrose O'Brien of Renfrew, one of the magnates of the Cobalt silver district, its value is very small, indeed. But notwithstanding, it has caused more trouble at certain times, and aroused more enthusiasm at others, than all the other important Canadian sports trophies taken together.

And the latter include a silver Minto Cup for professional lacrosse, donated by the Earl of Minto, a silver Connaught Cup donated for soccer, by the Duke of Connaught, an Earl Grey trophy for figure skating, a silver tea-kettle for ladies curling, donated by Lord Ava, the Earl of Dufferin's son, and equally well-known trophies donated by others than Governors-General.

Got Lost.

At one time it disappeared for many months, and was finally found in a customs shed, but such was its remarkable hold upon the hockey people, that they played for it even without knowing where it was.

Upon more than one occasion, disagreement about the rules, and other vexatious questions in connection with its existence, have been the cause of violent statements to the effect, that it should be discarded; but when it really came to the point, the clubs directly interested were only too glad to play for it again.

There was one serious break like that late in the last century or early in the present one, when some clubs desired to play for the cup before the regular season was finished, and others objected to this. Long articles for and against appeared in the papers as well as cartoons, and one of these by Racey showed a pirate ship, labelled "The Sport" carrying at the mast-head, a flag which instead of the skull and crossbones, was emblazoned with hockey sticks and pucks, and the deck of which was piled high with various Canadian sport trophies then in existence.

Pugilism's Pet Names

ELIGIO SARDINIAS TOOK THE NOM-DE-GUERRE "KID CHOCOLATE" FROM "LITTLE CHOCOLATE" DIXON.

Jack SHARKEY.

"ORIGINALLY JOSEF CUCKOSCHAY, HE ADOPTED THE RING NAME OF SHARKEY, MADE FAMOUS BY TOM AND LITTLE JACK.

YOUNG CORBETT 3RD (ALIAS RALPH GIORDANO), SPORTS ONE OF THE MOST ILLUSTRIOUS OF RING NAMES.

Corbett, Gans, Nelson, Ketchel and Dempsey must be the most popular pugilists of all times judging from the number of boxers who have adopted their names. We knew five "Young Battling Nelsons" personally some years ago who never rose above local fame, and among the negro battlers there have been (and probably are) more variations of "Joe" Gans than there are shades of black and brown among the dusty sock peddlers!

Most of the boys who adopt greatistic names seldom live up to them, but even the lordly "Jim" Corbett can feel proud of Young Corbett XII, Fresno southpaw, who recently earned a 10-round decision in an over-weight bout with Jackie Fields, welter champ Corbett the Third is and Al Ketchel, Connecticut's "Yankee Boy" of a decade and a half ago, was not bad, but the rest of the clout clan Ketchel "caught it" in the ring. Jack Dempsey took his nom de guerre from the immortal middleweight of that name and he added much to its lustre. Other Dempseys have been but a motley of mediocrities. The Sharkeys—old Tom, little Jack and the current big Jack—make that name stand out.

As evidence, perhaps, of how the popularity of fight champions lives after them in the form of names, note that a thorough search of the records reveals only one "Young Gene Tunney." Selah!

No Gold Pot At End Of Rainbow
C. C.'s Followed

The Moncton Times Says: In bringing the Maritime intermediate hockey championships to Moncton, which incidentally is the first title of its kind ever to rest in this city, the financial structure of the city league which sponsored the play-downs and in a large measure made it possible for the tri-colors to carry through to the end of the rainbow, was greatly affected. Contrary to the old adage about the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, there was no gold at the end of the rainbow the gallant C. C. J. A. team followed. Instead they found there the handsome shield, but an empty treasury and a substantial amount on the wrong side of the ledger.

Rather than close the year with a deficit, leaving those who supported the team out considerable money, Fred Moore, President of the City League and to whom much credit is due for his untiring efforts during the season, sought permission from the City Council to hold a Tag Day. The request was graciously granted by the Council and today a number of young ladies will be on the streets of the city soliciting support for the team and the league. The sporting public may show their appreciation of the efforts of the C. C. J. A. team and the league by wearing a red tag today.

SPORT JOTTINGS

Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is getting ready to adopt a forward passing rule.

The Stanley Cup is back in Canada and should never be allowed to leave the Dominion again.

Baseball gets pretty near us today with the Athletics and Phillies starting their city championship spring series at Philadelphia this afternoon.

All praise to Les Canadiens and all honor to the Flying Frenchmen for bringing the Stanley Cup back to Canada. Morenz, Joliat, Hainsworth, Leduc and Mantha are names which will always be remembered.

Abegweit Banquet

The members of the Abegweit Baseball, Football, Senior and Intermediate Hockey Teams of the past season will be the guests of the Club at the ODDFELLOW'S HALL Tuesday, April 8th, 1930, at 7 p. m.

Others wishing to attend are asked to notify the Secretary, Mr. W. A. Smith, not later than noon Tuesday.

Music will be furnished by the old Prince Edward Orchestra and other well known Artists.

N. Y. Swimming
Star Narrowly
Misses Drowning

CHICAGO, Ill., April 6—(C.P.)—John Rae, New York aquatic star narrowly escaped drowning last night in a pool filled with some of the nation's best swimmers and lined with 300 spectators.

Rae was the New York Athletic Club entry in the 220-yard breast stroke of the National Amateur Championships being held at the Lake Shore Athletic Club. Before finishing the strenuous race he was seized with a violent attack of cramps. He shouted for help, but the cheers of the spectators as the race neared its end drowned his cries.

The New York swimmer went down twice, but the second time he was seen by a spectator, Lawrence M. Barr. Unable to attract the attention of the other ten swimmers as the crowd cheered the new champion, Tom Blankenburg, of Hollywood, Barr jumped into the pool fully clothed, pulled Rae to the edge and held him until he was taken from the water. Rae was semi-conscious and unable to walk, but was revived soon.

Basket-Ball
At The L. Of C.

Before only a fair sized bunch of fans, the Shamrock of the L. O. C. came from behind in the second period and won from the Spartans of the Y. M. C. A., the former having 53 to 39. The game was very fast and exciting and was featured by excellent combination throughout the two periods and the next time these two teams meet a different outcome may be expected.

Manager Gus Rush is receiving lots of congratulations on the way he handled his team during the game.

Referee—W. Goss of the Y. M. C. A.

S. S. Harland Will Run Over Usual
Route This Season

At an adjourned meeting of the S. S. Harland Co., held Friday it was decided to run the steamer on its usual route this season. At a former meeting it was decided that the Harland should not run, but people from several districts of the Province waited upon the government with the object of having the service continued.

The local government has promised to supply $1,000 out of the $3,000 necessary to be raised. The Dominion representatives have taken the matter up, and while they have no definite information they have sufficient reason to justify the company in continuing the service this year, in expectation of receiving the additional $2,000 from the Federal Government.

The steamer is being put in first class condition, and a change is being made in the management with a view of giving the public better service. As soon as navigation opens the steamer will be ready to ply its usual route.

At the meeting the following officers were appointed: President, R. E. Mutch. Vice President, H. V. Buntain. Directors: Messrs R. E. Mutch, H. V. Buntain, J. O. Hyndman, Charlottetown; Mr. E. Boswell, Victoria, Mr. D. D. McLeod, Orwell Cove.

A good slogan

"An acre of alfalfa for every cow" is a slogan adopted in many districts where live stock is kept, and with modification to suit local requirements it is one which receives strong support by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. With the short crops and difficult seasonal conditions of 1928 and 1929 the need of adequate provisions with respect to fodder crops became more apparent. Not only will the application of this slogan to alfalfa, or suitable clover or hay crops, go far to meet the urgency of the present situation but it will also provide a useful and profitable rotation medium for keeping soil up to production capacity and assist in weed control. This slogan of planting not only provides adequate pasturage but allows a surplus for feeding to other farm animals and often provides a carry-over of hay to a lean year.

Oarsmen Are Same Age

By a singular coincidence the famous Canadian oarsmen, Joe Wright, on the LEFT, and Jack Guest, on the RIGHT, were born on the same day and are therefore exactly the same age. Joe was born in Toronto and Jack in Montreal, on March 28, 1906. Both scullers will row at the Royal Henley regatta in England for the Diamond Sculls next July.

Imports of motor vehicles into per cent greater than in the previous 12 months.

Kid Berg Cops
Real Fighting
Win Over Glick

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, April 6—(A.P.)—Jackie Kid Berg, as game a fighter as ever came out of England, turned a crowd of 11,000 of the faithful into a babbling mob tonight with his fierce courage and fighting ability. He belted out a 10-round decision over Joe Glick, the Williamsburg buttonhole maker; amid a storm of low blows that all but incapacitated him and twice floored him in the eighth round. Berg, one of Champion Sammy Mandel's most persistent lightweight challengers, weighed 139-1-4. Glick 137-1-2.
