MAIL COURIER REMEMBERED

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Williams North Piver on January 26, 1939, when the North River and York Point box holders assembled to show their appreciation to their mail courier Mr. Nelson Williams.

Despite the unfavourable weather and the fact that only forty of his friends gathered at 10 o'clock in the parlor, as Mr. Andrew MacEachern acted as chairman, Miss Mackenzie read the address, which was a most interesting one. Mr. Mackenzie presented Mr. Williams with a real Mail Courier's fur lined coat also leather lined coat with accessories to match both.

Although taken by surprise Mr. Williams thanked them in a few well chosen words, after being bounced and the singing of "For a Jolly Good Follow." Mr. Williams was seen on the floor for the first time.

The rest of the evening was spent in games and dancing, music furnished by Messrs. Lyman Dunsford and Francis Doyle in their usual good style. Step dancing by Messrs. Parker Macaskell and Herbert Scott was enjoyed by all. Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by some of the ladies present.

Before leaving a vote of thanks was given to Mr. Andrew MacEachern seconded by Mr. David White to Mrs. Williams for the lunch and her hospitality during the evening.

In the week some short hours of the morning they departed to their respective homes knowing they had spent an excellent evening.

Following the departure of Mr. Williams, "Mail Carrier" Dear Sir—We, your friends and box-holders on the rural mail route served by you as carrier express our appreciation of your services.

For many years you have given the route a most courteous efficient service under all conditions of weather and roads.

Many a morning as we looked out on bad storms and adverse travelling conditions we scarcely thought of you, but your mail-carrier could make the rounds. Yet a few hours later the faithful "Nelson" was exceeding our expectations by delivering the mail.

On many occasions we have observed and remarked often your loyalty to the public whom you serve, and the cheerful and obliging manner in which you perform your duties.

One of your consolations, however, Nelson, is that your salary is never likely to make your liable for income tax.

We desire to show our appreciation in some tangible manner, we ask you there fore to accept these gifts not for their pecuniary value but as a token of our hearty goodwill, and as evidence of our recognition of the splendid manner in which you have served us.

We desire also to express our very best wishes to you and hope that you may be spared to serve us for many more years to come.

Inspiring Sermon By Rev. Dr. Legate

"The Prophets of the Old Testament stand amongst the giants of history," the Rev. R. Moorhead Legate, D. D., minister at St. James' Presbyterian Church, said in the course of his sermon at the morning service yesterday. Speaking on the text Malachi 1:1-3, "and he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver," the speaker, concerning the prophets, "... reformers before the Reformation, prototypes of Martin Luther, John Knox and John Calvin. No men have ever shown a truer devotion to the highest standards of life than these men."

The value of history is that it is rich in lessons for the individual and the community, Dr. Legate pointed out, not to his own times alone, but everywhere and always.

The main outline of ecclesiastical and social conditions prevailing in the day of Malachi have quite an uncanny resemblance to the conditions that exist among us today. "And the four chapters composing this book (Malachi) and I warrant you will be struck by the resemblance," Dr. Legate declared.

There was the same indifference to God, the same questionable aspects of church life, the same self-seeking on the part of individuals.

There were men and women in the days of Malachi, too, who longed, just as men and women do today, for the reformation of those evil forces, which then, now seem to be all hostile to the Kingdom of God.

They saw the spirit of materialism cramping the soul and marring the greatness of the mad pursuit of pleasure blinding people's eyes to sober estimates of life; they saw a younger generation that seemed to be losing interest in the things of God, the best things, the doctrines of heavenly truth doubted, shelved or ignored altogether.

It was under such circumstances people came to Malachi, the Prophet of God, and sought light in the darkness and guidance in the tangle of involved affairs. Malachi spoke as a prophet, short, vivid, apt. He said to them and to us—"You would have all these wrongs righted. And you think that if you had the going out of you you would make quick work of eliminating these glaring evils. You are impatient—impatient, with God for allowing these things to persist. Interest in His own way for doing them. He is still the sovereign God, the controlling power. Things have not got out of His hands." And Malachi spoke a parable, that of the purifier of silver.

The work of the refiner is radical and slow, the process of God's governance which will find and exhibit the gold that there is in human nature. The process is going to be a long one, at times, a harsh one, but the gold is going to appear at the last," Dr. Legate said.

There is not the predominating thing in the world. The reason why we are sometimes tempted to think that there is more evil in the world than good is that goodliness does not, as a rule, get into the world as evil does.

Neither is the Church of God in the minority in which so many people seem to think it is. W. B. Boyce, was the one man and partially blind and other in their copper property here Saturday.
