NEW WONDERLAND

There is a complete change of program tonight at the People's Theatre. It comprises another of those wonderful travel pictures which are much enjoyed and are so instructive. It is a journey by Quatre Canon's Lake, and is one of the finest travels produced, from every point of view. Thomas Hood's famous "Song of the Shirt" will be shown too! A strong lesson here, one sure to impress itself on all.

Cashier's Romance is a powerful dramatic film, and beautifully photographed. Making sales is laughable comedy, sure to mean fun in abundance. Educated Aboard, is another clean cut remedy, and the program is well balanced as far as variety goes. Percy Sayce sings "Some one who I know and you know too." Five cents admission. Biggest, best and best chosen picture show in the Province. Five pictures for five cents. Come!

SPECIAL.

By special request the grand picture, "The Drunkard's Reformation" will be added tonight, as a fourth picture, so that all who have not done so may see it. It will not go on again, for the program is full enough without adding specials.

McGREGOR AND MacKENZIE DEFENDED.

Sir:—The insertion of the following item in the columns of your paper will be greatly appreciated by a large constituency in this city, and will help to comfort the parents and friends of two young men, who, because of the very circumstances in which they were placed, became involved in a sad and unfortunate incident which has been before the courts of this city for three weeks or more.

Early in March last an unfortunate man by the name of Richard Mitchell, a compositor on one of the daily papers of this city, became violently insane and was confined to the insane asylum known as the "Pierce Farm." Owing to the violent character of the unfortunate patient he was transferred to ward 8, known as the violent ward of the institution, of which Munlock MacGregor of Cape Breton and Roderick C. MacKenzie of P. E. I., were attendants. With them were two other young men who had charge of 30 or 40 violently insane men. Mr. Mitchell, who was suffering from paresis, as is testified by the physicians, was set last transferred to ward 4, known as the Infirmary ward, in which he died about the latter part of March. His friends insisted on an investigation of the circumstances connected with his death and after an autopsy performed by a medical examiner of this city it was found that he had several broken ribs. This led to the arrest of young MacGregor and MacKenzie who were in charge of ward 8. After an eight days trial the jury brought in a verdict of guilty of manslaughter, much to the surprise and grief of their many friends who believed them absolutely innocent of the charge for which they were indicted. The First United Presbyterian Church of this city of which MacGregor is a member, at once secured the necessary bail of $7,500 which the court required in the interval between the verdict of the jury and the passing of the sentence by the judge. After his arrest the sum of $5000 was at once provided, which the lower court fixed as bail.

Judge Schofield, who sat on the case, gave us every opportunity to present any evidence which might throw some light on the case before he passed sentence. Last evening our counsel, Mr. Gove, called eight or ten attendants, who knew the men well to the witness stand. They all testified to the kindness and gentle methods of MacGregor and MacKenzie with the patients. A mother and daughter and two men testified to the kindly treatment received by their relatives who were inmates of the institution, from MacGregor and MacKenzie. To offset the favorable testimony one O'Reilly, gave "casting" evidence against them. But his statements were so manifestly false that even the District Attorney who had charge of the case for the Government warned the jury and pointed out the contradictory character of O'Reilly's testimony. The Judge gave sentence last evening giving MacGregor three years, being head attendant, and MacKenzie two and one half years in the House of Correction on Deer Island.

While feeling sad and disappointed, the 1000 men and women who attend the services of the church of which I have the honor of being pastor, believe absolutely in the guiltlessness of the two defendants. Moreover it is evident that the judge did not consider the verdict of the jury inconsistent with the facts of the case. The 1000 men and women who attend the services of the church of which I have the honor of being pastor, believe absolutely in the guiltlessness of the two defendants. Moreover it is evident that the judge did not consider the verdict of the jury inconsistent with the facts of the case.

The young men behaved nobly throughout, in the trying ordeal which came to them. Their honest, manly bearing, together with their straightforward testimony in direct evidence and under the severest cross-examination, clearly showed to all unprejudiced minds that they were innocent of the indictment with which they were charged. With the public sentiment of the country against them, because of recent developments in similar institutions, and with the press of this city altogether antagonistic to them, we are thankful to God that we had a fair-minded judge who was capable of discerning the real character of the two young men and eliminating the false from the true.

Let not the parents and friends of these young men be overcome with grief. Let them thank God that their boys are conscious of having done no wrong and that a nighty night of their fellow-countrymen believe in their innocence. All efforts will be put forth to shorten the period of confinement and to make their lot as comfortable as possible under the circumstances.

A. K. MACLENNAN, Pastor First United Presbyterian Church of Boston, Dorchester, Mass., June 12, 1909.

HEARTZ-O'BRIEN.

AMHERST, June 16.—At 10.30 yesterday morning, in the presence of only the immediate relatives, a quiet but very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Rev. W. H. Hertz, D. D., when his youngest daughter, Dottie May, was united in marriage to Dr. Garnet W. O'Brien, of Amherst. The bride wore a hand-some gown of white satin with trimmings of Princess Louise lace, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. To the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, rendered by Miss Kate Campbell, the bride on the arm of her brother-in-law, T. N. Campbell, entered the beautifully decorated rooms. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Hertz, assisted by Rev. John W. O'Brien, brother of the groom. After the luncheon, the newly married couple took the noon train. The bride's going-away suit was of dark green broadcloth, with hat to match.

TO RAISE ENTIRE CLASSES

LONDON, June 16.—The real object of education is the life of men and women was forcibly pointed out by J. E. G. Montmercy recently. It is to raise entire classes, and not to impoverish them by taking away their best.

Mr. Matthew Arnold, when he elaborated this by no means original idea of an educational ladder, captured, he says, "in an almost fatal fashion, the minds of the advanced educational thinkers of his time. The importance of the idea contained in the phrase 'the educational ladder' must never be neglected. In the future it will possess a real importance that it has not possessed in the past. The evil is that this idea has been regarded as a sufficient solvent of the educational problems that have been crying for solution during the last half-century.

"In fact, taken by itself, the principle involved is incapable of solving any great national problem of education. Machinery that can detect and capture a brilliant intellect in and from the poorest class and can give that intellect an open sesame from the slum to the Royal Society is no doubt machinery that appeals to the dim sense of justice possessed by most of us. It gives the brilliant intellect its just opportunity, and supplies the community with one thinker more. The village Hampdens, the mute, inglorious Miltons, the illiterate Newtons are provided for, the world's sense of justice is satisfied, and the accumulation of knowledge receives an accession. "But it is to be noted that the educational problem of the country at large is not solved. On the contrary, it is intensified. We take away from the poorest classes their best intellects; we translate those intellects into other classes; but the process as such only leaves the classes from which the great intellect is drawn the poorer unless another principle as well as that of 'the educational ladder' is at work. If the local University merely exists as a sink for the educational ladder, its existence is not justified. It is a very costly expedient to secure results that can be better secured by Oxford and Cambridge.

"It must not be supposed that I do not realize and appreciate the value of the principle involved in the idea of the ladder from the elementary school to the University and the professions. But I have no doubt whatever that, standing alone, it is capable of great injury to the community. To set up an educational ideal before the eyes of a vast community the doctrine that is the duty of every boy and girl is to rise out of the class in which they are born seems scarcely to partake of those moral principles which ought to be at the root of every educational system. To base national education on the doctrine of intellectual scramble for place and power is neither good economics nor good morality.

"That men and women of character and genius should be given the opportunity to rise is essential, but that a vast educational system should have as its chief end the creation of these opportunities is totally unsound. The principle of 'the ladder' is, or should be, but a subordinate part of a much wider principle—the principle that the chief end of educational system is to raise the moral and intellectual standard of entire classes of the population by the process of developing to its utmost limits the peculiar and individual gifts of each member of each class. This principle necessarily involves rapid movement between various sections of the community, but it impoverishes no class, and steadily raises the social standard of all classes."

INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF WOMEN AT TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 17.—Delegates to the International Congress of Women arrived in large numbers today. Several meetings of the International Secretariat committees were held. Mrs. Harry Stephens, of Toronto, reporting on conditions here, said that many young girls were lured to the City by false advertisements, giving the addresses of houses of ill-repute, and that women agents were employed by a Society she represented to meet young girls at Union Station and warn them against certain addresses.

MURDERER REPRIEVED.

TORONTO, June 17.—Walter Blythe will not be hanged today for killing his wife. A reprieve has been granted by Mr. Justice Teetzel on application of T. C. Robnett, K. C., postponing execution until Oct. 1st. The ground for the application was that an appeal has been entered from decision of Justice Riddell refusing to reserve a case.
