FUNNY THINGS THAT GET INTO PRINT

In the rush and clam of getting the paper to press" many laughable mistakes creep into the news as "she" I wrote." Many gems of humor are ruthlessly discarded by the proof reader. Others escape, some due to carelessness, others to mechanical defects, and some for unknown reasons.

For instance, how would the editor explain the following: "Being what they have not sewed." This is the way an operator set up the copy which read: Reaping where they have not sowed." Again there came to the reader: "Out of the mouths of babe and ducklings." The pen quickly stabbed the "d" and marked it as "a." The eminent choir leader at the Baptist Temple would no doubt have been greatly annoyed had the reader not inserted an "o" in the last word of the phrase: "Temple Choir of 20 voices." Or imagine the horror of letting this sentence appear, in an account of a church social: "At the conclusion of the programme refreshments were served in the library and a social bowl followed." It should have read "hour followed."

One would suppose that in these days of the open Bible no one is intelligent enough to be a printer would be guilty of setting up: "Ever the Fourth Gospel and H. Paul's letters." Who is H. Paul? Perhaps it was the same man who set up "Fease I leave with Lou." Even very bad manuscript is no excuse for "murdering" a phrase so well known as "Peace I leave with you."

cannot say too much in praise of the large ones. "The Lives of Great Men" written by Great Men, which are so given, this winter, to all who really earn them by sending in extra good essays in the competitions.

We have been resting on our oars, somewhat waiting for these books, at now there is no reason why we should not get right down to work or the winter in earnest. And remember that all boys and girls up to the age of 16 or 17 are eligible for these Senior Beaver contests. After that they are expected to graduate into the Roundabout Club class.

Our next competition, then, will be on the following subject:
 "Should home-work be abolished?"
 Rules:—(1) All compositions must be received at this office not later than December 20th.
 (2) All compositions and letters for this department must be addressed to "The Beaver Circle," Farmer's Advocate and Home Magazine, London, Ont.
 (3) Full name and address, age and class at school must be given.
 For the best essay the award will be one volume of "Stories of Great Men" (large volume, splendidly illustrated in color). Smaller books will be given for second and third class essays.

VELVET SUITS SIMPLE.

The prettiest of the velvet suits are simply built, for this fabric is so rich in itself that it is a pity to break the lovely lines it forms by too much trimming. Velvet coats are rather loose and are cut in tunic style, to avoid marring seams. Much handsome braid is used on the coats and the braid trimming, in band motifs and crochet buttons, is repeated on the skirts.

Practically every other factory produces from five to six times this number of models and grades; it is therefore but a logical conclusion that the Howard watch, the product of specialists in men's high grade watches, is a watch of superior merit.
