HUNTING SPIRIT IN THE AIR

How it Affects the Sons of Nimrod—Guns and Dogs and Shooting Togs the Talk of the Day

Signs have already appeared—signs of the hunting season, which is near at hand. Signs of a good season, too. Over the hills and mountains, at about this time of year, hovers a sort of mist, visible only to the sons of Nimrod. It is not inert, but strangely beckons. By those who have the eyes to see and the gift and grace of understanding it is called "the spirit of hunting."

If you would smile at this fancy, remember the story that is told of Whistler, the artist. A tourist stood beside the famous painter in a country of lakes and mountains. One was seeing the same sunset that the other was only looking at. "I don't see anything in a sunset," complained the tourist. "But don't you wish you could?" said Whistler. The spirit of hunting, perhaps, will some day be embodied in marble—the masterpiece of a Bergium. The zest and exhilaration of the hunt are not to be known vicariously, by proxy. They are learned only through experience, but it doesn't take very long. After the first hunting trip there is a cure for the malady that results. Some friend of yours, for example, He disappeared into the woods with rifle and camping kit, and when he came back he was a different man. His beard was shocking. He never acted the same again. Like Harkis, however, he was a "willin' victim; and every year when the fever comes and he takes to the hard miles and crooked trails, there is no holding him back. The best thing you can do is to go along with your hunter-friend. You can easily get your doctor to advise it.

Now is the hunter's time of anticipation. It is the time when the office caged man has hallucinations even in business hours. He looks out of the window and sees a herd of mountain sheep feeding in their sky pastures. His ear catches the far drumming of a partridge. He knows of a happy hunting-ground that he could reach by train. A railroad timetable, bearing evidence of such us, is locked in a drawer of his desk, and with it lies a copy of the game laws. The boss is similarly affected, so he doesn't notice that anything is the matter. Go home with either man and you find that some room in the house looks like a sporting-goods store, and all through dinner you know that he is thinking of a camp menu of grouse, trout and venison. Finally, after all the necessary small-talk, he discovers that you belong to the hunting-fraternity. That settles it. Big-talk, then, for the rest of the evening, and nothing else. After dinner your host makes you examine his Remington, aim it and look through the shining barrel; he proudly calls your attention to the antler on the wall (though you had seen them before) and tells you the whole story; and when it has grown late he urges you to stay overnight, apologizing for the bed he offers you by saying he wishes it were a bed of balsam boughs.
