Prince to Live on Battleship

LONDON, July 26.—Social aspirations will be much disappointed by the news that the Prince of Wales when he visits the United States will live aboard the British dreadnought Renown.

According to the official explanation of his residence aboard the battleship, the Prince desires to return American hospitality "in his own home."

It is stated in court circles that the Prince's American program is entirely in the hands of the United States Government. President and Mrs. Wilson, it is expected will probably be his guests aboard the Renown.

It is doubtful whether the British heir will make an elaborate tour of the United States. At present, his plans do not provide for more than a fortnight's tour. The Prince is most eager to visit the Middle West, but this part of his trip has not been decided upon.

Powerful Was Labor Council At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, July 26.—The morning session of the civil court, hearing the case of the Winnipeg strike leaders, was given up to the examination of Leslie Parker, a citizen, who testified that he was unable to buy milk during the early part of the strike without a permit from the strike committee. A note of pathos was struck when Parker stated that he tried to get milk for his sick wife, who has since died, but was refused milk by the Crescent Creamery Company, although there was plenty of milk in the plant. Parker had to walk a couple of miles to the Labor Temple and fetch a permit before the milk company would consent to sell him a supply.

Officials of the telegraph companies told of messages, bearing the stamp of the Trades and Labor Council, being sent by telegraphers who remained on duty by permission of the strike committee, but without the knowledge of the telegraph officials. These messages were said to be of a character likely to prolong the strike, while the understanding had been that the wires should be used only for messages of urgent private matters.

F. W. Law, an official of the Great War Veterans, declared that R. E. Bray, one of the accused, who is declared to be a leader of the Veterans, had no authority to represent the Veterans.

Great Britain Facing a Crisis

LONDON, July 26.—Damage amounting to more than $1,300,000 was done on Peace Day at Luton, Bedfordshire centre of the English straw hat industry, because discharged and demobilized soldiers were refused permission to hold memorial services for their dead comrades in the local public park.

This refusal really merely furnished occasion for a riot, which had been brewing for some time owing to unredressed grievance of the soldiers. The Town Hall was burned to the ground, all the municipal documents were destroyed, and 40 policemen and 16 firemen were injured by the mob.

In Cork and Limerick, in isolated disturbances between soldiers and Sinn Feiners, the police charged with their clubs and ultimately used their rifles. One policeman got a shot in the leg. The men arrested will be tried by court-martial and will receive heavy sentences. No arrests have been made in Luton, and the Mayor has fled.

In Coventry, Warwickshire, the great motor industry, the mob smashed plate glass windows wholesale and looted boot and other shops.

Unrest is General

These are merely local manifestations of general and menacing unrest. The strike of the miners to show their discontent with a wage increase of six shillings a ton furnishes a formidable example of the general feeling. Mines have stopped operations, and are becoming flooded and sailors have been sent from the fleet to pump them out.

The mining situation is regarded as critical, for the miners claim solidarity with the soldiers and sailors. If that is the case, a vista is opening for new and greater trouble than the Government has yet had to face.

Industrial work throughout Yorkshire is becoming steadily paralyzed. There are strikes of one kind or another in most of the industrial districts. At Greenock, near Glasgow, 100 transport workers, having been refused pay for peace day, decided not to work on any future Saturday but tying up the transport business.

Nearly 50,000 Derbyshire miners are idle. Eighty five mines have shut down in the Midlands and the north. It is feared miners all over Great Britain will strike as a protest against the use of sailors for manning the mines. Altogether the situation has caused the most profound fears and misgivings in the House of Commons. The Premier has been unable to say anything to dispel this feeling.

All the morning newspapers emphasize the gravity of the coal situation. Disaster is ahead if these developments continue, the Daily Telegraph says: It urges all who bear the responsibility of leadership to say if they are for or against the infliction of ruin upon millions of their fellows. The Daily News foresees a "Calamity that cannot be measured" and says the only thing to do is to make peace in the sphere of the coal industry upon which depends everything else in the life of the commonwealth. It says resort to force would be madness and that the single hope of a satisfactory solution of the troubles lies in a prompt and daring policy of conciliation.

LONG HOLY PLACES

Near the resting place of the first great apostles of their faith it is the dearest wish of all points Moham medans to lie after death.

The shrines of Najaf, Kerbela and Kazimain, the resting places of Ali Hussein, and the seventh and ninth Imams, lie on the edge of the desert in the country British troops now occupy in Mesopotamia.

One often meets a corpse on the road packed in a long crate or bundle of palm leaves and slung across the back of an ass, says Edmund Chandler, the press representative in the Mesopotamian forces. The pilgrim behind is taking his relative to swell the population of the cities of the dead which these sanctuaries are surrounded.

Of the three shrines, Najaf is the richest, and to some minds the most sacred. Like Kazimain, it is approached by a horse car line. The care is not of the platform of those that fly in European cities. I believe the few British soldiers who have seen them rank them with the Clock tower in the mosque as first among the lions of Mesopotamia.

In peace time the dead came from a wide radius. The donkey with the bundle like a bag carpet, bag on its back, draped in white or rich silk according to the means of the pilgrim may have come all the way from Bokhara. A few years ago a corpse arrived from the Persian embassy at Paris.

The rich as a rule are buried in the shrine itself. The fee for interment in the mosque is $250. For burial outside the walls of the city the pilgrim pays anything from four to ten rупes (two to five dollars) according to the distance he has come.

Many pilgrims buy houses in Najaf, and thus the place is gradually becoming a city of the dead. Nine houses out of ten have graves in them. Sometimes the building is nothing else than a tomb.

Najaf has proved impregnable to Wahhabi and Bedouin. It is believed to be fabulously rich. There are two stores of treasure. The old treasury has not been opened since the visit of Shar Nasir-ud-Din, 50 years ago. It is buried in a vault and built over with brick and lime, with no door or key or window by way of entrance. The new treasure is in the keeping of the killidar—gold and silver, and jewels, and precious stones, silks, and shawls, and beaded curtains.

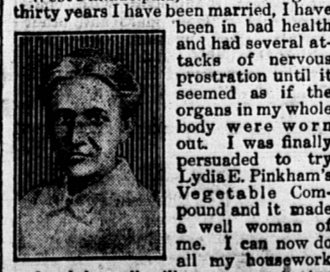

One of the first gifts to the shrines to reach Bagdad after our troops entered the city were fur curved words of gold with diamonds on the heath and hill. They had been dispatched from Constantinople to Bagdad when the British menace was regarded as a madman's dream, and were the inscription "From the servant of all pious Moslems, Enver Bey."

No doubt they were intended to symbolize the night whereby the Turks would defend the city against their hated foes the Christians.

If, when you run a silver knife through jelly, it wrinkles, it is done.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

May be Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—This Letter Proves It.

West Philadelphia, Pa.—"During the thirty years I have been married, I have been in bad health and had several attacks of nervous prostration until it seemed as if the organs in my whole body were worn out. I was finally persuaded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It made a well woman of me. I can now do all my housework and advise all ailing women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and will guarantee they will derive great benefit from it."—Mrs. FRANK FITZGERALD, 25 N. 41st Street, West Philadelphia, Pa.

There are thousands of women everywhere in Mrs. Fitzgerald's condition, suffering from nervousness, backache, headaches, and other symptoms of a functional derangement. It was a grateful spirit for health restored which led her to write this letter so that other women may benefit from her experience and find health as she has done.

For suggestions in regard to your condition write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.
