National Income Three Times What It Was In 1938

OTTAWA, Oct. 29. (CP) - Gross national income for 1946 is estimated at $9,464,000,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. This compares with $3,072,000,000 in 1938.

Prepaid Health Plan Under Way In Alberta

(Canadian Press Staff Writer) - EDMONTON, Oct. 29. (CP) - Alberta doctors hope to have in operation by April 1 a province-wide, voluntary prepaid medical care plan under which subscribers can choose any medical practitioner in the province for treatment.

Dr. W. Bramely-Moore of Edmonton, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Alberta, said in outlining the plan that it will be along the lines of the scheme which has been operating for six years in British Columbia. He described the latter as "very successful."

Any member would be eligible for medical, surgical or obstetrical care from any registered medical practitioner and membership would be possible through industrial or company groups, through municipalities and through individual subscription.

Actual operation will not be possible until approval by the provincial legislature of an act incorporating the Medical Services (Alberta) Inc. The Alberta division of the Canadian Medical Association has approved the plan.

He said he imagined that Churchill, after attacking the Government's policies, would offer an alternative "for which we have waited a long time." The Prime Minister said that Churchill "talked a good deal about this free, thriving business. As I understand it, he considers that if we can get everything free from controls, we should get over all our difficulties. He believes in the free play of competition now."

Then, turning and looking at Churchill, Attlee asked sharply: "Would he do away with food rationing now? We want to know." Churchill rose quickly amid cheers of the Conservative Party members and said:

"In my speech I was striking a note. The note was to let the people free. When you have loaded them with chains all the shackles cannot be struck off in a day."

"This is the note he has given to the nation," Attlee retorted. "He is saying you should be free, but not just now. It is an I. O. U."

"We intend to carry out our program and take precautions to see that we do it while our mandate lasts," said the Prime Minister, referring to the forthcoming bill to cut two years to one the House of Lords power to veto Commons legislation.

Opposition leaders in the debate charged the Government with hampering free enterprise, inefficient handling of the economic crisis problems and squandering of British prestige and power.

"The Government has no leader, no team and no plan," said Oliver Lyttelton, former Conservative Minister in completing the Opposition's attack.

Under Labor Britain had sunk to a "mediant nation, now snailing and now fawning."

In a surprise intervention in the debate, Arthur Greenwood, former Deputy Leader of the Labor Party who was removed recently from the Cabinet, said he did not favor postponing nationalization of the iron and steel industry pending a move to restrict the powers of the House of Lords.

If nationalization had been proceeded with, no reason would have arisen for tinkering with the House of Lords, he said.

During the debate, Labor Minister Sidney Silverman, criticized yesterday by Churchill for terming the United States a country of "shabby money lenders," told the House "I have been to America and I think I ought to withdraw part of that statement."

"At least they are not shabby. They are the only people in the world today who can afford to buy good English broadcloth."

Predicts Economic Disaster - Silverman attacked Churchill for praising the lifting of price controls in the United States, adding: "Unless the controls are relaxed in time America is riding for the biggest and most sensational economic disaster in all history. I hope to God when it comes they will not be throwing their atomic bombs about the world."

The remark was greeted by cries of "shame" and "withdraw" from Conservative members.

Harold Wilson, newly-appointed president of the Board of Trade, announced that international trade organization negotiations had resulted in agreements on reduced tariffs between Britain and the United States and 14 other countries.

The 31-year-old minister said that at the same time the agreements have strengthened economic cooperation among Commonwealth countries.

Under the new international trade charter and the multi-lateral agreements, a "code of fair customs practice" is provided.

Actual operation will not be possible until approval by the provincial legislature of an act incorporating the Medical Services (Alberta) Inc. The Alberta division of the Canadian Medical Association has approved the plan.

Other Proposals - Other proposals under the scheme are:

1. The entering into agreements with, and if possible and desirable, to amalgamate with all existing medical pre-payment plans for which legally-qualified medical practitioners now are rendering service;

2. Maintenance of effective collaboration with the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Alberta;

3. Assisting the Alberta government upon request in strengthening health services and in provision of services to specified groups;

4. Assisting in developing an informed public opinion in matters of health;

5. Provision of statistical and other information, counsel or assistance in all matters pertaining to the giving of medical services on a pre-payment basis.

The plan is similar to a plan going into effect in Ontario Nov. 1 and along lines of medical service plans now operating in Toronto, Windsor, Regina and Saskatoon as well as in Manitoba. All these have been sponsored by medical men.

No rates have been definitely set for Alberta but it is estimated the annual cost will be between $40 and $50 for a family. The Alberta company will have a board of directors and subscribers will be eligible to vote at elections for these executive positions. Alberta now has approximately 700 doctors and any of these would be available to give services and care.
