BLACK WATCH VETERAN AND HIS SOLDIER SONS.

Skymen's Trip To The Front.

Ex-Sergeant Albert Andrew Neal, a veteran of the Black Watch, has had some remarkable adventures at the front, says a special correspondent of "Lloyd's Weekly News." He left his home at Portree, Isle of Skye, three weeks ago to see if he could get news of his four sons serving with the Black Watch in the Expeditionary Force. He reached Paris on Tuesday last week, having learned at Havre and Rouen that they were probably serving on the east of Paris. Armed with only his Black Watch discharge parchment (3rd Royal Highlanders), he succeeded in getting right out to the front, and was assured there that all his sons were well. One is a colour-sergeant, one a corporal, and the others are privates.

"Don't know any French," said this fine old soldier on his return to Paris, "but I got through all right. My discharge paper passed me everywhere, and at the last I got a loan of a suit of khaki, which saved all further trouble. I rode from Thelles on a transport wagon. Chelles is twelve miles from Paris. When I got to it, I was taken before a French General, who spoke English perfectly and after he had listened to what I had to say, said, 'You stay here, and if you will give me your sons' regimental numbers, I will make inquiries and find out for you if they are all right.'"

"Won't you tell me where they are," I asked, and he replied with a smile, 'No, I won't, and you must swear not to tell anybody of what you have seen, and to go straight back to Scotland, or I must put you under arrest and keep you here.' Of course I gave my solemn promise. I wish I could tell you all I did see, but you understand that I can't. The General, sure enough, sent for me in half an hour, and said, 'I'm glad to tell you all your four sons are quite safe, and if you will write a telegram to your wife to say so, I will frank it, and see it goes through at once.' I thanked him, and wrote just 'Boys quite safe.—Albert,' and he sent it off for me. He was very kind indeed to me, and so were all the Frenchmen I met, and I met a good many. I can tell you."

SINCERITY IN WRITING.

(From the Metropolitan Magazine.) Sincerity is at once the most precious quality of any piece of writing, and the most difficult to define. Sincerity may be of all sorts of degrees of intensity; it may even become the very faint and still be sufficient to serve the purpose of the tale. The most intensely sincere writer, the greatest novelist who ever lived, Tolstoy, said that no writer was sincere who just sat down and wrote a story merely for the sake of writing a story, and must have something to disclose to other human beings, some message which you had either to deliver or suffer the consequences of your own soul—the process of writing a story must have something personally inevitable about it. This was all very well for Tolstoy, tragic and ever serious giant that he was, but as a dictum it amounts to nothing more than a statement of his own noble, but only personal but racial, for the great Russian to work in that spirit. Tea or Coffee Hurt You?

No need to get mad now, tear up the paper, or shout "nonsense, good tea or coffee never hurt anyone."

You know better than that, for you can point out all around you folk who are the worse for their smoking.

Think over a few tea or coffee drinking friends and casually enquire if they are entirely as perfectly well and just how tea or coffee treat's them.

If it hurts others isn't it just possible—some day Nature will haul him up short.

It's a Poor Bargain

to swap health and a clear, business-like head for a few cups of tea or coffee each day.

Every tea or coffee toper tries to wiggle round and charge his aches and ills to weather, overwork, too much or too little food, this, that or the other thing, but how he hates to admit that the real enemy is his Master, tea or coffee.

A Sure Personal Test

will locate the exact cause of your steady destruction of health, if that cause be tea or coffee. It's worth knowing the plain, sober fact before organic heart trouble or other disease sets in, which perhaps cannot be cured.

The test is pleasant, accurate and satisfying—Quit both tea and coffee absolutely for ten days and in their place use POSTUM.

Postum now comes in two forms Regular Postum must be boiled. Instant Postum—soluble form made in the cup instantly, with hot water. Both kinds of this famous food drink have a delightful flavour and are absolutely free from caffeine (the drug in tea and coffee) or any injurious substances.

VEN CROSS, SICK CHILDREN LOVE SYRUP OF FIGS

If feverish, bilious, constipated, give fruit laxative at once.

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. So if tongue is coated, this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of California Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the old waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeiters sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

ers of other nations and races seldom reach any such pitch of pure sincerity, and when they seem to do so it is usually by dint of so much self-conscious effort and strain that the quality itself is lost. The younger novelists in England are today perpetuating all sorts of monstrosities of realism under a continental influence, which is too strong for their native gifts. There are many writers in England, and in America also, who feel forced by their admiration of the profound and passionate continental realism to imitate it in their own work, and so throw away their own gift of sincerity in the attempt to reproduce the quality of another. The same process obtains throughout the entire field of fiction writing, with the difference merely that whereas an ambitious young novelist effaces himself and clouds his talents by producing strained imitations of famous masters of the art of fiction, the writer for the magazines simply tries to imitate all of the successful magazine stories he has ever read. Perhaps he does it so well that the editor buys and prints his story—magazines must be issued on their regular day, and there are not always any really good stories to go round, but no one feels very happy over the story and the search for genuinely good ones goes on all the harder.

Your Health Question

Keeping well is largely a matter of keeping every organ normally active. Livers that slow down and stomachs that falter need this Tonic Laxative—
