TUESDAY SEPTEMBER, 10, 1901.

A SAD LAMENT.

The esteemed Examiner draws a wofully sad picture of the Island being passed by in the matter of the royal visit. The ships will go by, he tells us, far from our shores against which the sad sea waves moan a requiem. Perchance through a glass darkly the Heir Apparent may catch the gleam of the Island's red shore and languidly inquire what land it is, but nobody on board will be able to answer. "Once it was not so." Once we entertained the Prince who has since become King. Now the humiliation of Prince Edward Island is all but complete. Our Liberal rulers—for of course from the Examiner's view point it is all their fault—have but to go one step further, vote away the name of the Island and its status as a Province and have it incorporated as a county of Nova Scotia.

A man must feel very badly when he writes like that, and we therefore extend our sincere condolences to the editor of the Examiner. Possibly it was he that Mr. Cooper met while in Charlottetown, and who impressed upon the western editor the notion that the Island "had given itself up in disgust." At least there is a striking similarity between the views of the Canadian Magazine and the Examiner with regard to the Island. It is a bad thing for any man to get "the blues." It is doubly bad when the malady falls upon an editor and he becomes a disseminator of gloom in the homes of the land. Therefore we feel moved to remonstrate with our brother editor and to cheer him up, if that be possible.

"Why should a man whose blood is warm within him sit like his grandsire out in alabaster, sleep when he wakes and creep into the jaundice by being peevish?" So wrote the immortal William. "Fish not with this melancholy bait," said William. The sturdy citizens of Prince Edward Island were never very much indebted to the presence or the smiles of royalty for their prosperity or their happiness. They would like to see the Duke, no doubt, but they will lose very little sleep because he does not pay them a visit. The sun has shone brightly, the rain has fallen, the fruits of the field have been abundant. The potato crop is excellent; the pumpkins and squash have grown to ample proportions and the blueberry crop has seldom been more plentiful. Our merchants are prosperous and cheery, our work-people well employed, and our population generally as comfortable and happy as falls to the lot of any similar community around the world.

Wherefore we bid the editor of the Examiner to be of better cheer. Make not the Conservative organ into a winding sheet. Those terrible Grits will not hold power forever, and by and by there will again be "fat takes" for Tory newspaper men, who will enjoy their then good fortune all the more for a temporary fast. Then will be sun shine, the birds sing, the rivers run merrily to the sea and the skies be bright again. Cheer, Brother Editor cheer up!

Winnipeg has had this year a decidedly successful industrial exhibition. The attendance was larger by 7,000 than ever before; the receipts exceeded $50,000 and there was paid out in prizes over $10,000. The directors were able to expend $3,000 on capital account and pay off one half their debt of $10,000.

This year the apple crop almost throughout the United States is short and prices are ruling high. One man in Missouri who has a large orchard and a good crop has sold the fruit on the trees for $75,000. The orchard in question promises a crop of 100,000 bushels, it is said. The owner would have needed to produce 107,000 bushels of wheat at 70 cents, or 214,000 bushels of oats at 35 cents to have yielded a like monetary return.

An official of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, writing to the New York Bulletin on the Canadian attitude toward reciprocity concludes his letter as follows: The Canadians do not need reciprocal trade relations with the United States. They have, by prudence and energy, placed themselves in a position where they can calmly regard any overtures we may make. In a word instead of the Dominion being the suitor, it is we who must make the advances; we who must be the petitioners. To such a point has the mistaken policy of our Government brought the Republic.

TOO G EAT A RISK.

It is dangerous to neglect a simple case of itching piles as the trouble is likely to become chronic and develop into fatal incurable fistula or cancer of the rectum. A simple application of Dr. Chase's Ointment will quickly relieve the itching and burning sensation, and a few boxes will cure any case of piles. This standard ointment has probably relieved more suffering than any preparation you can mention.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF HISTORIC STRUCTURES.

The National Photographic Record Association of Great Britain is making an attempt to secure photographs of all historic structures before they are destroyed by the advance of progress.

WHERE RUSSIA GETS HER TOOLS.

Russia buys her cheaper tools from Germany, while the best qualities come from France and England. Pitchforks, spades and garden tools are rarely imported, although the home industry does not supply the market to its full extent.

GERMANY'S BLIND PERSONS.

Since 1871 the number of blind persons in Germany has decreased from 85 to 67 per 100,000 inhabitants, and the famous Breslau oculist, Dr. H. Cohn, is convinced that with proper care that number can be still further reduced to 40 per cent.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS IN EGYPT.

The demand for agricultural implements in Egypt is bound to increase with the great progress made in cultivating land. Farmers are rapidly finding out the value of improved machinery, and have in use already a number of threshing machines.
