Gehrig never Gave up

NEW YORK, June 3—(AP)—For months before his death Lou Gehrig withstood a series of injections that would have "thrown a horse," President Ed Barrow of the Yankees disclosed today as he mourned the tragedy of his former great star.

"He knew there was no known cure, but that couldn't stop him from fighting—not that boy," said Barrow. "He insisted on taking this terribly strenuous treatment, despite his condition, and he stood up under it. He never mentioned he was going to lose."

"When I left him the last time Friday night he was sitting up looking out serenely across the Hudson. I kissed him on the head and as I walked out he said: 'I'll beat it. Keep those Yankees up. It was the last thing he said to me.'"

Gehrig was wasted down to about 150 pounds, Barrow said, a loss of some 60 pounds from his playing weight.

Dodgers Ride Into First Place Tie Blanking Cards

BROOKLYN, June 3—(AP)—The high-flying Dodgers rode into a tie for the National League lead again today on the shutout pitching of Whaley Wyatt.

Applying his fourth coat of whitewash of the season, the lean right-hander handcuffed St. Louis Cardinals with six hits for a 6-0 victory.

It was Whaley's ninth triumph of the year against two defeats, and he achieved through a nine-hit Brooklyn blast off Morton Cooper and Sam Nahem, featured by home runs by Pete Reiser and Dolph Camilli. By taking the victory, the Dodgers finished on top in the series, two games to one.

At New York, young Bob Carpenter, the rookie right-hander from Knoxville who has proved the Giants' surprise package pitcher of recent days, tossed his second straight five-hitter to lead the New Yorkers to a 7-3 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

The 23-year-old elbow, turning in his third victory of the season without defeat, had the benefit of a 13-hit Giant attack which blasted Paul Derringer off the hill in two innings under a five-run barrage.

At Philadelphia, twenty-one-year-old Tommy Hughes gave Chicago only one hit—a single by Lou Novkoff in the eighth inning—as the Phillies shut out the Cubs 7-0.

The tall right-hander, purchased from Baltimore this spring, pitched a flawless ball against the Cubs for seven innings, facing just 21 men.

At Boston, although out-hit, Pittsburgh Pirates defended their sixth position against Boston Braves by rallying behind Lefty Ken Heintzelman for a 9-5 victory in the series finale.

Chess is the oldest known game, and is recognized as the world's best, and is very desirable that the game should be more generally understood, and it is the intention of the players in general to form a Maritime Chess Association, and through it encourage the formation of chess clubs in the towns in the Maritimes.

The Tournament is being held in the Shediac Inn, the dining room being made available for the play, and a number of chess tables in the Hotel or in Summer Camps in the vicinity, there are no fees whatever in connection with the competition, the only cost being the individual living and travelling expenses.

Funeral For Lou Gehrig Will Be Held Today

Softball series Opens tonight

The Senior Softball League gets underway tonight at Victoria Park. The league schedule has not been announced yet but it is known that three teams are definitely in the hunt for the city title with a possible two more to enter. The teams which have already signified their intention to play are: Holman's Vets; No. 6 District Signallers and an R.C.A.F. team. It is possible that an R.A.F. team and one from the H-Y Grads will also enter.

NEW YORK, June 3—(AP)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Lou Gehrig in the same semi-privacy in which the great first baseman of New York Yankees battled disease for two years.

From many parts of the country messages of condolence today poured into Gehrig's home and the offices of the ball club. Baseball notables arranged to be here for the last rites and fans who never had been closer to him than the benches of Yankee Stadium filed past his bier for one final look at the unforgettable "Iron Horse," who played 2,130 consecutive games in 14 years.

A minute of silence in Gehrig's memory was observed at the National League games at the Polo Grounds and Ebbets Field and flags on public buildings throughout New York City were lowered to half-staff at the direction of Mayor La Guardia.

Yankees lose 4-2 to Tigers

DETROIT, June 3—(AP)—New York Yankees should have started today's game with the Tigers in the second inning. As it was the Detroiters got off on the right foot and scored all their runs in the first inning for a 4-2 victory.

Young Steve Peck, rookie right-hander up from Newark, was the fellow with the shaky start. After the first inning, he blanked the Tigers with four hits the rest of the way, but the door was locked too late.

Dizzy Trout gave up eight hits to the Yanks, compared to the seven the Tigers tallied. He had a shoutout through the third inning, was tagged by a homer by Joe DiMaggio in the fourth and was in trouble only twice after that.

REMEMBER WHEN

Lord Derby's "mud nose", San-ovino, ploughed through to victory in the English Derby 17 years ago today, bringing the stakes to the sportsman Earl for the first time. It was also the first winner for the Derby family since 1787 when Sir Peter Teazie was winner.

Red Wings Even series

NEW YORK, June 3—(AP)—Rochester evened its series with Jersey City today by taking the second game of the set 5-2 behind the eight hit-pitching of Hank Gornicki.

Gornicki, winning his first International League start against two defeats, settled down after the first inning to limit the Little Giants to four hits over the remaining distance.

Many New Gadgets In War; Nazis Try Confetti Barrage In Air

British have developed valuable devices to stop enemy; Plane detectors are remarkable.

(By Gladwin Hill, Associated Press Staff Writer) NEW YORK, June 3—(AP)—The old saying "there's nothing new under the sun" wasn't describing the warfare of 1941.

If it were possible to stand on a hillside and watch an army in operation with all the new devices, techniques, gadgets and methods, it would hardly be recognizable as a development of the ancient columns of foot-soldiers that confronted each other and blazed away point-blank.

The basic military principle of getting the most out of the men means employed for attaining this has changed an impressive display.

Some notable British innovations have been barrage balloons, which have proved effective at keeping enemy planes out of low altitudes; anti-aircraft shells that discharge spiral springs to tangle enemy propellers; innocuous-looking cards made of gun-cotton and phosphorus and dropped from planes, which when they dry out, start fires; and armored, moored "invasion" barges, used in Norwegian forays.

burner and a motorless, propellerless plane propelled like a rocket by the discharge of tanks of highly compressed gas. . . . from Britain comes reports of an anti-aircraft range finder that works with the speed of light.

Some Nazi Novelties

Germany seems to have produced many novel war techniques. Some of the recently reported German devices:—

An explosive gadget that opens parachutes quickly, permitting jumps at low altitudes.

A new type of mine, to foil the British anti-magnetic belts, which is exploded by the vibrations of a ship's propeller.

A concentrated dye attached to lifebelts that quickly colors a large area of water, so that dunked aviators can be easily spotted and rescued.

Confetti barrage so that airplanes can blind pursuers (apparently not very effective because British aviators remarked "If they want to turn the blitzkrieg into a paper chase, it's O.K. with us";)

Buoys that look like the tops of submarines and thus by their profusion confuse anti-submarine work;

Midget submarines, judging from pictures, about 20 feet long.

Italians Too

The Italians are believed to have used in close-range shipping attacks at Gibraltar a strange device consisting of two torpedoes attached to a narrow raft, about 30 feet long, powered by compressed air and operated just below the surface of the water by two men in unsinkable rubber suits. The idea is to sneak up close to a ship under the cover of darkness and let go the torpedoes point-blank.

Plane Detectors

One of the remarkable inventions the war has brought out is a new plane detector.

Ever since the airplane came into military use, the standard method of spotting planes and aiming guns at them was with super-sensitive sound pickups—usually clusters of horns, working in reverse.

Recently the United States army developed a different type of detector that worked by picking up the infrared light rays in a plane's exhaust flame. It is said to be effective at a distance of 100 miles.

Britain also has been working with the infra-red principle and when her anti-aircraft fire suddenly picked up in effectiveness last fall, it aroused conjecture as to whether she had instituted some device like the American one.

Little out to Retain title

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 3—(AP)—Having made an enviable habit of holding on to what he'd won as an amateur, 200-pound Larry Little hopes to be able to do some more of the same when he steps out in the United States Open G-1 Championship Thursday as defending titleholder.

HOLMAN'S LINEUP FOR TONIGHT'S GAME

Other members of the team are also asked to be present at the game.

QUEEN'S FUND TOTALS

MONTREAL, June 3—(CP)—Headquarters of the Queen's Canadian Fund for Air Raid Victims announced tonight contributions to the fund had reached $24,785 compared with yesterday's total of $308,551.

At the same time it was announced that $1,100 had been received from the English ladies committee of Bogota's Columbian through the British Legation at Bogota.

Do not dry out of doors during very cold weather.

Before completely dry, press material or garment on the reverse side, under a cloth with a moderately warm iron. Press the same place several times.

Striking or stripping of materials occurs when the dye-bath is too small; there is not enough water; when material is placed in dye-bath before dye has completely dissolved; where material is placed in a boiling solution instead of being plunged into a lukewarm solution to obtain uniform coloring; you neglect to stir and turn the materials in the dye-bath.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD USING THE SMALL CAMERA

The organ-grinder's monkey—snapped on the street with a miniature camera. Carry a small camera in your pocket—you'll reap a reward in interesting pictures.

To get the most fun and benefit from photography, you should have a camera that you can keep with you at all times. Such a camera will enable you to seize upon a picture chance wherever you observe one—and, at the same time, having the camera handy will keep you alert, so that you actually observe more snapshot opportunities.

Up until a few years ago, most cameras were relatively bulky; but that is not the case today. Modern folding cameras, even those taking rather large-sized pictures, are relatively compact; and many miniature cameras are so small and neatly built that they can be carried in a pocket or woman's purse without the least inconvenience.

The miniature camera is an ideal choice for "everyday" use. It need not be an expensive model—in fact, it may be that a very inexpensive one will cover your needs. The chief advantage of the medium-priced and finer deluxe cameras in this class is that they have fast lenses and fast shutters, so that pictures can be taken under adverse light conditions. Many of the newer models can also be used for picture-taking in full color—an extremely valuable feature.

If you buy a camera for pocket use, plan to keep it with you constantly—not just on weekends or during leisure hours. Take it with you to work. Watch for subjects on the street—such as the organ-grinder's monkey above. Carry the camera when you go for an afternoon walk. You'll get many an excellent picture, by this practice, that would otherwise be lost.

For everyday shooting, in black-and-white, load your "miniature" with a fine-grain panchromatic film, and your good shots will yield superior enlargements. If your camera is a deluxe model with ultra-panchromatic film; then you can get night snapshots in any well-lighted room, and at many night sports events. And don't forget that you can make gorgeous color "shots" with it.

Make the small camera your "daily notebook"—use it to jot down the things you see in the everyday round. Street scenes, oddities, amusing occurrences, snaps of friends—these and many other types of pictures can be captured quickly with the pocket camera, and they'll add interest to your snapshot collection.

MAGIC FROM THE DYE-POT

There are few farm households where the "dye-pot" isn't employed at certain times of the year to work the magic of transformation. Flour and sugar sacks washed, bleached and dyed to harmonize with the room, become window curtains and drapes, couch and cushion covers, linens, bed spreads and dresser scarfs; to say nothing of those ragged, worn, faded, and stained articles of months, which, cut into strips one-half inch in width, are washed carefully and dyed in fresh, glowing colors to end up as floor rugs and mats.

There are certain scientific rules laid down for successful dyeing and these you must follow.

If you desire strips of numerous tints or shades of one color, knot the material in strips of two feet in length, tie them to a location, directly over the dye-bath, allow only one part of this to soak in dye-bath should not contain more than one-quarter of the quantity of water usually employed. Boil for a few minutes, add some water to the solution, then slightly lower the strips; boil for a few minutes longer and repeat this performance for each shade of tint. Every time you add water to the dye-bath you reduce the coloring strength, so that a strip dyed red will give a deep red, and will gradually become lighter, to end with a light pink color.

If using wool to work your floor rugs or mats, you may find it advisable and more practical to buy white wool and dye it at home.

Silk takes dyes very well, hence good results are seen when old silk stockings are dyed and hooked or braided into rugs. Wool is next and cotton is hardest of all to dye.

It is important that your pans be clean, the material thoroughly soaked before putting it into the dye bath. Dressing must be left in the material. To guarantee success first dye a scrap of your material and observe results.

When the article is dyed, spread it on paper to dry, but whatever you do, don't hang it over a line.

All colors from orange red to yellow orange dry more yellow than when they are wet and all colors dry a little lighter.

Generally three gallons of water is enough for each pound of material to be dyed. By looking through a single layer, while it is still damp, you can tell fairly well what the color will be like after the material has dried.

In dyeing wool and silk, after obtaining the desired color, take the article out of the dye-bath and rinse several times in warm water, or until rinse-water is almost clear; then press with hands to remove as much water as possible, but do not wring. Allow to dry in shade.
