Four Days Left in Which To Become A Santa-Pal

or almost anything. I am in need and can't get much. I would be very happy with anything.

Merry Xmas and Happy New Year.

From Little Dorothy

This letter points out clearly the predicament of not only that particular family but of dozens of others. Almost one hundred percent of the Guardian readers are potential Santa-Pals. Can any person conscientiously enjoy Christmas with the memory lingering in his mind of disappointed kiddies to whom Christmas means so much more than to himself?

Step into the breach NOW, choose the child who is to be your Christmas ward, mail your gift to The Guardian with your name written on the ticket. What a happy Christmas you can make for some child! What a much pleasanter Christmas you will spend yourself! Last year Santa-Pals did not leave one child uncared for. This year less than ever is requested of the Pals as toys, candy and fruit are the only articles called for.

Following are the names of needy children with those who have been already adopted omitted:

Old Man You!

NOT actually you perhaps—but isn't it possible that you may be like this some day—old, still trying to work, and poor?

No, you may not look like this. Probably nine men out of ten who read this will cheerily assent and pass on to take whatever fate has in store for their old age.

If you are the tenth man—you will stop and think. You will realize that you have about 20 years in which to provide for your old age—only 240 months of good earning power to accumulate enough to retire upon.

What are you going to do? Expenses are high. It IS hard to save money. Only 1 man in 10 can do it.

Solve the problem through an Imperial Retirement Income Policy. Total disability income and protection for your family should you pass away prematurely are also provided.

Old Champs Vs Young Abegweits

Taking for granted that Fred Kelly is to be home from Acadia at Christmas time, there will be no less than ten of the old Abegweit Maritime Championship hockey team in the old home town. Some of them have wandered hither and thither in far places, 'tis true, and all of them are not as keen on the winter sport as formerly, but every one of them is still capable of having a fling at the game.

Counting up the ten men we find: Harry Morgan, Fred Moore, Roy Prowse, Fred Kelly, Ches Campbell, Frank Cronin, Whackie McEachern, Chick Williams, Jack Gordon, and Percy Rodd. Quite a surprise that this band of stars are in the city, when most everyone speaks of them as being scattered to the four winds.

Realization that the old champs are intact prompted one of them to ask: "Why not an Old Abbie vs. a Young Abbie match in the holiday season?" To which enough people to crowd the rink will answer, "Why not, let's go."

Have the older boys lost their cunning? Are they hopeless hasbeens or can they knock the new crop of players out of the picture?

There's only one way to answer these questions and that is by bringing the sextettes together. Its what in fight parlance would be called a "natural."

Jan. 3rd is the date of the first Island league game, and between now and then this local dispute should be settled. Give the old time champs the rink for practice and rteam the battle up.

Y SERVICE OF SONG

There was a large attendance at this service Sunday night both of young folks and older people. The special speakers of the evening were Mr. J. A. Stiles, Scout Commissioner of Canada and his assistant Mr. W. J. Courier. Mr. Courier gave a very interesting account of the trip of the Canadian Scouts to the great jamboree held last summer at Birkenhead, England. After an intermission during which the Trinity Quartette effectively rendered Steal Away to Jesus and a hymn was sung, Mr J. A. Stiles continued this discourse with an account of the jamboree and trip back to Canada. An account of this jamboree has been given in special form by Scout Will Burnett who with Robert Beer and Dick Filliter represented the Island. Mr. Stiles gave a very interesting account of this jamboree with its many amusing incidents and also its more serious aspects. The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. M. S. Fulton. Mr. Wilfred Boothroyd and Miss Thelma Teed accompanied the singing. This is the last of these services for this year. They will be continued after the Christmas holidays.

EARLY MISTLETOE

He—And what's the big idea of hanging the mistletoe so early?

She—Some of the guys in this town need practice before Christmas Eve.

THE MISTLETOE BOUGH

Brittany is the place of origin of a great deal of the commercial mistletoe for the foreign markets.

Christmas Cheer

For many years the Salvation Army has befriended the poor and needy at Christmastime and tided over many families through the winter months. The local Corps announces with pleasure it's activities for this season. To meet the constant demands made upon the organization, however, sufficient funds must be available.

[illegible] during seven day's ap[illegible] "Tri-pot" in the care [illegible] Renouf, the sum of $68.20 was [illegible] by thoughtful friends. This sum was found to be totally inadequate to meet the bona-fide demands of the season. It is felt that if a greater number of benevolent citizens contributed to this fund, a more effective work would be accomplished in this direction.

Adjutant Martin asks this year of the contributing public the sum of $200.00 for this particular fund to do a greater work in this way for the community. If every citizen will give as "God has prospered him and blessed him," there will be no strain felt in giving this nominal amount. The "Tri-pot" will appear all next week till Dec. 24th.

It is suggested that probably certain ladies organizations, orders or societies, in the city or country would like to make to the Army a grant for this branch of work. The same would be much appreciated. The Oyster-bed Bridge Women's Institute has already led the way, and acknowledgment is herewith made of the sum of $5.00 donated last week.

Summoned at Ryde for disorderly conduct, two Indian students pleaded: "On the evening in question we felt somewhat melancholy and imbibed unwisely; hence our consequent hilarity." Fined one pound each.
