Save The Children Fund Receives Gift

The Save the Children Fund acknowledge with grateful thanks a splendid donation of $25 from the Abegweit Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, Summerside. This amount will be included with other contributions, and forwarded to London by cable in aid of needy children in the British Isles.

Latest reports from London advise that nine Residential Nursery Centres are now in operation and that four more are about to be opened. This is considered a most valuable and important work in the bombed areas.

Voluntary subscriptions can be sent direct to the Canadian Headquarters in Toronto, or to Mr. J. O. Hyndman, the Island Representative, Box 249, Charlottetown.

HESSION-COLE WEDDING

In a charming ceremony at St. Martin's Church this morning Jean Audrey daughter of Mrs. Harold Cole, Gerrard street, became the bride of Squadron Leader B. Lloyd Hession, M.D., medical officer in charge of the R.C.A.F. station at Camp Borden, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Hession, of this city. Rev. Father McCowell officiated and the bridal music was played by Lieut. Allen Webb, of Woodstock. Flowers in pale tints were used on the altar. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Joseph Murley, of Detroit. She chose for her wedding gown a penny-colored print tulle, with beige red-rose and accessories. Her shoulderette of bronze orchids was a smart accent. Mrs. John E. Callaghan, of Toronto, who attended the bride, wore ice blue crepe with accessories in Bermuda coral tone, and her carriage was a snapdragon in the same color. Sgt.-Maj. Emmett V. Hession, C.M.S.C., Camp Borden, was the best man. Mrs. Cole, who greeted the guests at the wedding breakfast at the 17th Grange, was gowned in dove rose print, with a plain matching redingote and accessories in the same line. Mrs. Hession chose beige accessories to her company her smart orchid gown. Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip, the latter travelling in a green frock with accessories and topcoat of hunter's green wool. Dr. and Mrs. Hession will be at Big Bay Point, Kempefeldt Bay for the summer. The Globe and Mail, Toronto, carried a full size picture of a "Special Wings" presentation ceremony held in the R.C.A.F. Hospital at Camp Borden, when Sergeant Pilot R. H. Middleton of Sydney, Australia, had the coveted Wings pinned on his pilot's uniform by Squadron Leader B. Lloyd Hession, Chief Medical Officer of the station; also the picture of the pinning of the Pilot's Badge on Sergeant W. Landy of Saint Catharines, Ontario.

Squadron Leader Hession has the following brothers and sister serving in the Canadian Army. Sergeant-Major Emmett V. Hession, C.M.S.C., Camp Borden. Edmund Hession, Jr., now taking an Officer's course in Vancouver. John Hession in England, and Lieutenant Patrick Hession, R.N., of the R.C.A.F. Kingston, Ontario. The above are all the sons of Mr. E. V. Hession, formerly of Georgetown and now of London, Ontario, and Lieutenant Patricia Hession is his daughter. Mr. Hession has six of a family, and five are serving in His Majesty's Forces. Mr. S. S. Hession, K.C., is an uncle of this brilliant and patriotic family.

In Memoriam

HUBERT MacBRIDE The very sudden and unexpected death of Mr. Hubert MacBride of Central Bedouque, occurring on Thursday evening, June 14th, was learned with deep regret by his neighbors and many friends in his home village and surrounding district. For some time it was known that he suffered a heart condition that necessitated care and rest for the past year but he had been active as formerly. In the afternoon when calling at Wm. Calbeck's store he seemed to be in his usual health, conversing pleasantly with the proprietor who attended to his order. So it was a distinct shock to learn that when his farm laborer returned from the field at the supper hour he found him dead in the stall beside his horse, having apparently been instantly stricken. Mr. MacBride was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McBride and was born 58 years ago in the home where he died, a home on the brow of the Old Mill Hill overlooking the beautiful Dunk River. He was unmarried, having devoted his young manhood to the care and happiness of his aging mother who was the sister of Dr. James Johnston of English Harbour. He was well liked by all classes, living an inoffensive life and moulding that life by the Golden Rule. One sister, Rosalia, Mrs. James Croken, Summerside, survives also one brother, Dr. Walter P. McBride of Kennington. Another brother, Leonard, died some years ago as the result of a tragic shooting accident. Sympathy is extended to bereaved brother and sister. The funeral service took place on Saturday morning from the undertaking parlour of Mr. Philip Monaghan, Kinkora, to St. Malachi's Church in Kinkora. The large edifice was filled to capacity by mourning friends. His pastor, Rev. Dr. M. J. Smith officiated. Seated in the sanctuary were Father McCobe, Father McKenna, Father Bradley and Father Keane. The following friends were his pall bearers: Ray Johnston, Howard Schurmer, Harold Bassall, Wilfred Hamill, Roy Smith and Swinfin McC... (Copied from S'Side Pioneer)

Interpreting The War

By Kirke L. Simpson Associated Press Staff Writer

Russia's greatest ally is distance and Joseph Stalin seems to be trying to invoke its aid along much of the 2,000 mile battle front. A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters claimed Red Army resistance was breaking under attack of "united armies from the Black Sea to the Arctic." To supplement that, the bulletin told of the crossing of the Prut River front by Nazi-Rumanian allies pressing toward the Ukraine. That is the first intimation of a Russian withdrawal on the Black Sea flank. It implies that all the way from the Baltic to the Black Sea, Stalin's call for a Russian retreat that would leave nothing but "scorched earth" is being heeded. It is the classical strategy of Russia against western aggressors—a strategy that has never failed. But if it is being brought into play now on a scale that staggers the imagination, it is against a Nazi war machine to which distance has proved no barrier.

If a Russian retreat on so vast a front could be made good step by step against German air power and motorized "speed troops," unquestionably the Nazi victories that Hitler has called "historical" in significance could be largely nullified. It would take the devastation of an empire to achieve Stalin's declared purpose. He called upon his people to lay waste or remove, as Red armies fell back, everything that could help the foe. Napoleon's grand army was lured to its destruction in Russia by that means. It arrived at Moscow only to see that city destroyed by flames, Russian set. A fierce Russian winter and the implacable guerrilla attacks that harassed its bloody and hopeless retreat did the rest.

Yet the aid of winter as a Russian ally now is still far away. Hitler and his allies do not depend on horse and ox drawn transport as did Napoleon. His armored divisions leap forward 100 miles in a single day. His planes sweep areas in an hour with deadly bombs and guns that Napoleon's crack cavalry could not have scouted in a week. If Stalin has in fact, as his recent broadcast indicated, ordered the greatest strategic retreat in military history, his success against modern war weapons and efficient Nazi staff work remains to be tested.

Nevertheless, a retreat strategy and widespread devastation of roads, railways, bridges, fields, forests, mines and fuel stocks could deal Hitler a stunning blow. The farther the retreat is carried, the greater the policing task to which his advancing armies must promptly turn. Japan's unhappy case in China after four years of "victories" is a symbol of what Hitler and his allies might expect if the Russians take Stalin at his word.

TELLS HOW TO MAKE GOOD PEA SOUP

To make good habitant pea soup, the kind that "sticks to your ribs," two small onions and a half pound of salt pork are absolute essentials, says Maxime Charbonneau, veteran Canadian National Railways dining car chef. Without the onions and salt pork the soup will be "pretty thin," he says. Charbonneau asserts the best pea soup should be made with two cups of peas, one-half pound of salt pork, a teaspoon of baking soda, three quarts of cold water, two small onions and a pepper. The peas should be soaked overnight in cold water and the soup should simmer from four to five hours.

"My Harry seems so happy over there—when the announcer said 'would you like to say a few words to the little woman back home'—he just laughed and laughed—"
