Noticing the men working around the door while on his beat, he ran toward them but the would be burglars raced from the scene on his approach. Police Chief Birtwistle said last night a good description of the men had been received. Investigation disclosed a Yale lock and hasp had been pried off the door and attention was apparently being centred on a second lock when night watchman Connors arrived. Police believed the prowlers left the scene of the attempted burglary in an automobile.

URGE HARBOR REPAIRS AND PAVED ROAD

Resolutions Adopted At Largely Attended Morell Meeting.

A large meeting of the electors of this district was held in Morell Hall, March 19th, to consider the live question of road paving and the maintaining of this old St. Peter's Road as the main road to Souris and East Point District. The matter of harbour improvements was also taken up and a strong resolution moved by Lloya Cox and supported by Alban B. McAdam was presented to the meeting and unanimously endorsed. The feeling re the paving of this road is very strong and all the speakers expressed a determination to stand as one man against the unreasonable demands of Prince County and Montague. J. W. McEwen, merchant of Bristol who testified that he had no case but thought that if we were easy they could put one over on us. He said that a load of hay would hold up bridge traffic on the southern route. Mr. James E. Dingwell, Midgell, said that his father carried the mails for years from Charlottetown to East Point and Souris over 60 years ago and that this road was the shortest and most attractive route. Mr. Kimble Webster, Marie, occupied the chair and the undersigned acted as secretary.

Altogether, the meeting was a grand success considering the state of the roads and indicated that the people were read to throw party politics aside and stand together for the good of the district as a whole. If the Campbell government do not do what is considered fair and just by this district, it will be just too bad for them. The following three resolutions moved and seconded by the parties whose names are attached all speak for themselves: H. H. Cox local M.P.P. assured the electors that they could depend on him and the Hon. J. P. McIntyre Minister of Public Works to do all humanly possible to get justice for this old St. Peter's Road. If they did not get fair play there would be "wigs on the green." It was decided to mail a copy of the resolution to the two daily papers and to the Minister of Public Works.

Moved by J. E. Dingwell. Seconded by James O. Green. And resolved that whereas Summerside in Prince County has already paved highway from that place to Charlottetown and also one to Borden costing hundreds of thousands of dollars; And whereas up to the present time, not one yard of hard-surface road has been given to King's County; And whereas Kings County is entitled to about one-third of the

Shakespearean Inspired Music Studied By Club

Paper Read By Mrs. K. S. Rogers On "Music Inspired By Shakespearean Poetry"

The Women's Music Club met in the Canadian National Hotel on Saturday, March 20th, after several weeks' interval. The afternoon's paper and the music, both inspired by the one subject and interwoven throughout the program were very pleasing. Mrs. K. S. Rogers, in her well prepared paper, "Music Inspired by Shakespearean Poetry" touched on the fact that from the earliest days music and the drama have been closely interlocked. Shakespeare belonged to what has been called the modern transition, before which all art belonged to the feudal world with its dominant notes of the Church and chivalry. Shakespeare, whose creative genius and quality of mind are aptly expressed in the three works—a complete imagination" was the luminous chief of a band of poets of the secular drama whose subject was mankind.

All his plays abound with references to music, and the songs, written as such by Shakespeare, total well over sixty; in addition, his ballads and snatches of his poetry have inspired many musicians to write music that has proved undying. The songs and ballads in their original presentations were sung either to improvised tunes or adapted to the old folk tunes of the time. Most of the Shakespearean music as we know it is of a later date than the words. The one exception to this is "It Was a Lover and His Lass" written by Thomas Morley, a contemporary of the dramatist.

It is impossible to mention in detail all the composers who were inspired by Shakespeare or who set his songs to music. From Morley they range all the way to the moderns and include many of the world's greatest musicians. Outstanding perhaps are Dr. Thomas Arne, Haydn, Schubert, Mendelssohn, Tchaikowsky, Gounod, Berlioz, Verdi, Vaughan-Williams, Richard Strauss, Von Weber and Debussy.

Mrs. Rogers read many beautiful quotations and references from several of the plays, and adequately illustrated that "the Shakespearean drama has been the inspiration for and the means of producing a whole repertoire of music some of which may be classed among the really great compositions of all time."

The musical numbers were interspersed throughout the reading of the paper and exemplified the settings of the different composers. The mixed quartet—Mrs. Arthur Roper, Mrs. S. Henderson, Mr. P. D. Williams, Mr. Charles MacKenzie—and Mrs. Full's Serenade—Mrs. Nash, Miss D. Baker, Mrs. Holman, Miss D. Tait, Miss L. MacKenzie, Miss Huestis, Miss P. Burns, Mrs. McLean—delighted the audience with their splendid ensemble singing, as did the piano and vocal soloists, Mrs. L. Dingwell, Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Roper. Mrs. S. Henderson and Mrs. Full were the accompanists.

Following are the selections:—Mixed Quartet: "Blow, Blow, 'Thou Winter Wind" from "As You Like It", setting by Charles Wood. "Where the Bee Sucks" from "The Tempest", Thomas Arne setting.

Vocal solos—Mrs. Henderson: "She Never Told Her Love" from "Twelfth Night", Haydn setting. "It Was a Lover and His Lass" from "As You Like It", Morley setting.

Vocal solos—Mrs. Roper: "Hark, Hark, the Lark" from "Cymbaline" Schubert setting. "Who Is Sylvia" from "Two Gentlemen of Verona", Schubert setting.

Piano solos—Mrs. Leigh Dingwell: Mendelssohn's Incidental Music to the "Midsummer Nights Dream", piano transcription by Sidney Smith.

Serenaders' Chorus: "Fair Fidele" from "Cymbaline", Thomas Arne setting. "Song of the Pedlar" from "Winter's Tale", Vaughan Williams setting.

Mixed Quartet: "Sigh No More Ladies", "How Sweet the Moonlight Sleeps" from "The Merchant of Venice".

Mr. C. J. -ho was in the chair. He thanked the performers and announced that the next meeting will be on April 3rd with its subject—"Influence of Nationality on Composers".

Gold In Silver Foxes Interview With Mr. W. Chester S. McLure By R. C. Reade In The Toronto Star Weekly.

The silver fox business still flourishes in Prince Edward Island which was the cradle of the industry.

This I learn from a P.E.I. visitor to Toronto, Mr. Chester S. McLure former Conservative M.P., President of the Charlottetown Guardian and also the owner of a large fox farm.

"The industry realized last year about $4,000,000," said he. "That may not be much from Toronto standards, but it is quite an item in the economy of a province that has a population of 85,000. Prices of course are away below the former heights, but they have been rising. We sell our pelts on the London market and now get $40 to $50 a skin according to the quality. That permits a margin of profit for it costs fully $25 to raise a fox that is first class."

"I suppose," said I, "that the female fox's habit of eating her young cubs considerably into your investments?" "That habit," he replied, "has been much exaggerated. The fox is a good mother if she eats her young, it is not because she is cannibalistic but because in her fear and nervousness, she tries to protect them. If you keep her quiet and free from alarm, you won't have much loss."

Silver foxes like prophets evidently are not honored in their own country. For the ladies of Prince Edward Island have not the same craze for silver fox as women have elsewhere.

"You seldom," said Mr. McLure, "see a P.E.I. woman wearing a silver fox. Perhaps familiarity breeds contempt, or it may be that they do not like wrapping around their necks these charming little creatures they have seen playing around here so many winters."

"If these tame foxes," I asked, "were turned loose, could they make their living in a wild state?" "I am afraid," he replied with a smile, "that you would find them on your back door step waiting to be fed. I guess they have become accustomed to living on relief."

Prince Edward Island has been called the garden of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Mr. McLure considers it, with its teeming waters, fox farms, rich potato land and low tax rate, the most prosperous of the maritime provinces. If there is any serpent in this Eden it is unemployment and the difficulty of disposing of "the best fish in the world."

"We have unemployment troubles," said Mr. McLure. "We no longer have immigration to the west as we once had. Many, once would go for the winter to the woods of New Brunswick and Maine, and that with summer fishing and farming gave them income the whole year long. These outlets do not now take care of our surplus population as formerly and many in addition have returned from the United States. You must remember too, we have no factories. Still, we are not doing badly. Our main need is a market for our fish."

"But you never of course have any difficulty selling your famous potatoes?"

"No," said he, "unless there is a bumper crop in Maine and Quebec and elsewhere. Then it is a question of our quality against a surplus quantity."

Prince Edward Island is famous for large scale production of provincial members of parliament as well as potatoes, oysters, lobsters and foxes.

"We have thirty members in the legislature," said Mr. McLure, "and that of course is a lot for 85,000 people."

"Do you," I asked, "have stormy seas and fights as in the Ontario House?"

"Well," smiled Mr. McLure, "it is hard to work up an argument when they are all on one side. The whole thing is Liberals. It was a similar Liberal landslide that kept me from going back to Ottawa after the last federal election."

An enthusiastic P. E. Islander like Mr. McLure does not, however, grieve very much at not being forced to go to Ottawa and leave behind the oyster beds and the splendid sea trout fishing and the excellent wild goose shooting.

"Are the geese," I asked, "surviving the loss of eel grass which has been worrying the biologists?"

"The eel grass," said he, "is coming back and with it the geese. Of course it is nothing like as plentiful as it was. It used to lie in huge windows washed in by the tide along the shore and you would see hundreds of farmers carting it to their fields for fertilizer and the wild geese diving into it like cats after catnip."

Another Prince Edward Island claim is, that, although it never knows drought with the wet sea fog drifting over it, it is one of the few dry spots on the continent today. It is under a prohibition regime, with alcohol dispensed only on a doctor's prescription.

"There is little chance of it turning wet," said Mr. McLure. "The anti-prohibitionists were snowed under in the last referendum." Still, geographical position and the sea route to the West Indies have tempered the severity of the prohibition law.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

The Rev. H. L. Denton, B. D., in his morning sermon at the Baptist Church, basing his thought on a few words from St. John 19: 25, "There were standing by the cross of Jesus", called attention briefly to the inscription over the cross in its three fold expression, the language of religion, the language of culture, the language of order and that he who hung a sacrifice on the cross that had entered into kinship in all the realms. The groups about the cross, the Roman soldiers in the cold indifference of their execution of a duty, the Sanhedrin, persecutors who in bitter hate tooled there, to watch Him die, the little group of loving friends whose loyalty endured to the uttermost, apathy of one group, antipathy of the second, sympathy of the last. It is a long way from the first century to the twentieth, and still we who contemplate the cross fall into the same three groups of indifference, of envy, of love low in which group do you stand today?

Miss Vera H. Malcolm Campbell, Mus. Bac., sang with deeply sympathetic interpretation "There is a green hill far away."

Mr. Denton's evening sermon was an eloquent discussion of the question "Are you taking the last chance?" Miss Campbell and Mr. Quigley sang Stainer's "Love Divine." It was intimated that there would be a special Good Friday service of worship Friday evening of this week at 7.30.

The music of the day was directed by Miss Vera H. Malcolm Campbell, Mus. Bac., with Miss Helen Calbeck at the organ.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

The morning service at Trinity United Church yesterday was taken by Rev. Hugh Miller, who spoke on the subject "Realities of the Cross". The large congregation was very pleased to see Mr. Miller after his recent illness. Rev. A. E. MacKenzie's theme at the evening service was "The Cross and the Individual."

The music Sunday was appropriate to Palm Sunday. In the morning in addition to the choir number Mr. Harvey Macpherson gave a fine rendering of the well known solo "The Palm." At the evening service the choir gave an anthem "O Saviour of the World" by W. Read and Mr. John W. MacKenzie was heard with pleasure in "Jesus Lover of My Soul" by H. C. MacDougall.

CENTRAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The services in the Central Christian Church were conducted by the Rev. S. C. Cooper and the

ST. JAMES CHURCH

The Sacrament of the Holy Communion was celebrated at the morning service. Fifteen new members were added to the Communion role.

The evening address, by the Rev. R. Moorhead Legate, D. D., was taken from Romans 7:21—"I find a law that when I would do good, evil is present with me—Oh! wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from this body of death? I thank God through Jesus Christ, our Lord." There is not nearly as much indifference to religion as some imagine there is, on the contrary, a large proportion of people are really interested in religion in their own way, and at the bottom of their hearts, there is a genuine longing for the comfort and help that religion can give. But there is a doubt which they have in their minds as to whether religion can do what it says it can do. There is a very general longing to put religion to the test to see whether it really "works". But no one can find out what religion can really do except the individual. From our text, we learn that Paul had the same difficulty as we have. There was a law in his body as there is in ours which was fighting against his reason and his true desires. Then he tells us how to deal with and overcome that force within. We can be good men and women; God can rescue us and defeat that law, and in Paul's case, God did. Like Paul if we are to become what we so long to be, we must give up the hopeless fight against our lower nature in our own strength, and by allowing or inviting Jesus Christ to come into our hearts and lives and do for us what we are unable to do for ourselves.

Mr. H. S. Henderson, at the evening service sang "There is a Green Hill Far Away."

ST. DUNSTAN'S BASILICA

Yesterday was Palm Sunday at St. Dunstan's Basilica. The palms were blessed at the 10.45 o'clock Mass by his Excellency Bishop J. A. O'Sullivan, assisted by Rev. Father Doyle as High Priest and Rev. Father MacKenzie and Rev. Father MacGuigan of St. Dunstan's University as Deacons of Honor. The Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Dalton, assisted by Rev. Father McCordie and Rev. Father Dalton.

The earlier masses were at the usual hours. The passion of our Lord was read at all the Masses. The evening service consisted of Rosary, Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and a special Lenten sermon by Rev. Father Basil Doyle, C.S.P. Father Doyle's text was "I can do all things in Him who strengtheneth me."
