ILLNESS REGRETTED—Being missed for the past few Sunday's from her accustomed place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Montague, where she is an outstanding and valued member of the choir—inquiring by her hosts of friends, elicited the somewhat painful information that Mrs. Hubert E. Nelson has been confined to her home suffering from a very severe cold—so severe in fact that only the greatest care prevented an attack of pneumonia. Next Sunday it is hoped that Mrs. Nelson, who never wears in well doing, and who delights in the glories of Zion, will be back in the choir, to again take up her duties as a faithful worker in the vineyard.

SEVERELY INJURED. — Word has been received from Toronto that Mrs. F. G. Larkin has sustained severe injuries by falling down a cellar stairs. She and Dr. Larkin came to their apartment about midnight, after spending an enjoyable evening with friends. Mrs. Larkin, wishing a drink, opened the cellar door by mistake, and fell to the bottom of a twelve step stair. X Ray reveals that she has a broken wrist and a broken pelvic bone, besides suffering from severe shock. Later accounts say that she is improving. Pneumonia at first threatened, but that condition has cleared up, and good hopes are held out for her recovery. All her family were able to meet at her bedside. Mrs. Larkin is a sister of Mr. Allan Forsythe of this city.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Martha Mahar of Cardigan, P. E. I., who spent the winter with relatives in New Glasgow N. S. left last week on a visit to friends in Charlottetown.

The many friends of Mr. Wm. A. McCallum, of the City, will be glad to know he is improving satisfactorily although still confined to the P. E. I. Hospital.

It was Mrs. Gordon Webb of Brackly, who was ill in the P. E. Island Hospital and is now out again and not Mr. Webb as appeared yesterday.

IN MEMORIAM

MR. CHARLES H. HAINES

In the passing of Mr. Charles H. Haines, whose death occurred on April 4th, another brave and eventful earthly pilgrimage has come to a close.

The late Mr. Haines was born at County Harbour, Guysboro County, N. S. in the memorable year 1849, and came to this province with his parents at the age of fifteen.

In early manhood after the loss of his esteemed wife he emigrated to the United States where he lived and toiled about thirty-five years.

On his return to the Island he carried on farming operations at Georgetown Royalty and later at Brudenell Point. He had the misfortune of having his dwelling destroyed by fire a few years ago and was then induced to spend the remaining years of his life with his aged sister, Mrs. Barbara McDonald of Georgetown.

Besides Mrs. McDonald, the other immediate relatives left to mourn are another sister, Mrs. Cassie Stevens, and an only daughter, Mrs. John Publicover.

The deceased was a man of sober,

Gives Good Advice To Young Mothers

New Brunswick Lady Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. W. C. Brown Advises All Mothers to Give Them a Trial.

Cumberland Bay, N. B., April 11.—(Special)—"For the last three years I have been troubled with a weak back and occasional headaches," writes Mrs. W. C. Brown, who lives at this place. "I purchased two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and had wonderful results. My headaches left me and I soon felt strong and well. The duties of a housewife are many, and especially where there are children, one needs to be well and strong and give them the care and attention they require, so I would advise all young mothers who suffer from weak Kidneys to give Dodd's Kidney Pills a place in their medicine chest."

"Thousands of people suffering from various forms of Kidney complaint such as Backache, Rheumatism, Lumbago and Bladder Trouble, have found Dodd's Kidney Pills the best medicine. Ask your friends about Dodd's."

An impressive funeral service was conducted at St. David's United Church by Rev. C. U. Cheating the Weatherman

START LIMA BEANS IN A 'FLAT' OR HOT BED ALWAYS PLANTING THEM EYE DOWN.

That whimsical "June-in-January" fancy which makes us want strawberries in mid-winter and fur coats in July excludes no one, not even gardeners. To satisfy this natural craving for something unusual gardeners try all sorts of experiments to get early crops. Here is one you may try with lima beans, a late crop ordinarily. When seeds are sown early, the cool weather prevents germination, and oftentimes rots them. When they are planted in a "flat," or seed box, however, and kept in the house near a sunny window, or in a hotbed they, will sprout in a short time, and when finally transplanted to the garden about the time the seeds should be planted, they will have several weeks' start and an early crop can be harvested. Lima beans demand a rich soil, and should be planted eye down about 1 inch below the surface. Each plant must be given room enough to grow full size without crowding its neighbors; otherwise the yield will suffer.

A few weeks will see the deadline for getting your cold frames in shape. Don't put off repairs or building any longer, lest you find the season too far advanced.

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) MONTREAL, April 9.—Withdrawal of all charges against Mrs. Evelyn Carline, of Halifax, and elimination of two counts in the indictment against eight alleged members of a $5,000,000 liquor conspiracy today marked the conclusion of the Crown's legal argument at preliminary hearing.

With the discharge of Mrs. Carline, the eight now before the court are the four Bronfman brothers, Samuel, Abraham, Allan, and Harry, Barney Aaron, F. S. Blair, David Costley, all of Montreal, and William Yale, of Halifax.

Mr. Cranshaw explained to the court that when the charge was laid against Mrs. Carline, the Crown expected to proceed on the disputed question of introducing liquor into foreign countries when such importation was prohibited by law. "There is no proof," he said, "that she was concerned with the smuggling of liquor into Canada." All charges were then formally withdrawn against Mrs. Carline and she was duly discharged by Judge Desmarais.

them—Pete Corson, the one man of whom Wesley was most afraid, was on his knees in the muck of the swamp digging pupae cases for Elnora!

Back at the edge of the swamp, Mrs. Constock gravely shook hands with Billy, and said, "Now remember, I love little boys and I love dogs; whenever you don't have a good time, come right down to me; you ought to hear the willow whistles I can make."

"Mother, how could you? Aunt Margaret has always been so lovely to me—it isn't fair to worry her." "If I choose to be lovely to Billy and let her sweat out her own worries as she has me for the last sixteen years, it's my own business. There's nothing so good for folks as a dose of their own medicine." But by that time, Margaret was rocking Billy to sleep, and all was well in the Sinton home.

CHAPTER VII

As Elnora went about the various classes and meetings at High School, she discovered that music had a strange attraction for her, particularly the violins. One day after orchestra practice, she borrowed one of the sounds of the woods and swamps on it, and she decided she would have one, and play in the orchestra too.

When she told the Sintons about it, she was amazed to see Margaret's face grow pale, and finally Margaret admitted that Elnora's father played the violin beautifully; but that her mother hated it because it took him away from her—he played at parties and dances, while she was neglected before Elnora was born.

Margaret knew that he had left his instrument at Elvira Carney's the night he sunk in the quagmire. After Elnora had gone, Mrs. Sinton got the violin from Elvira, had it repaired and gave it to Elnora; so for the three ensuing years of High School, she became one of the best musicians in the orchestra.

"DOG O' DARTMOOR"

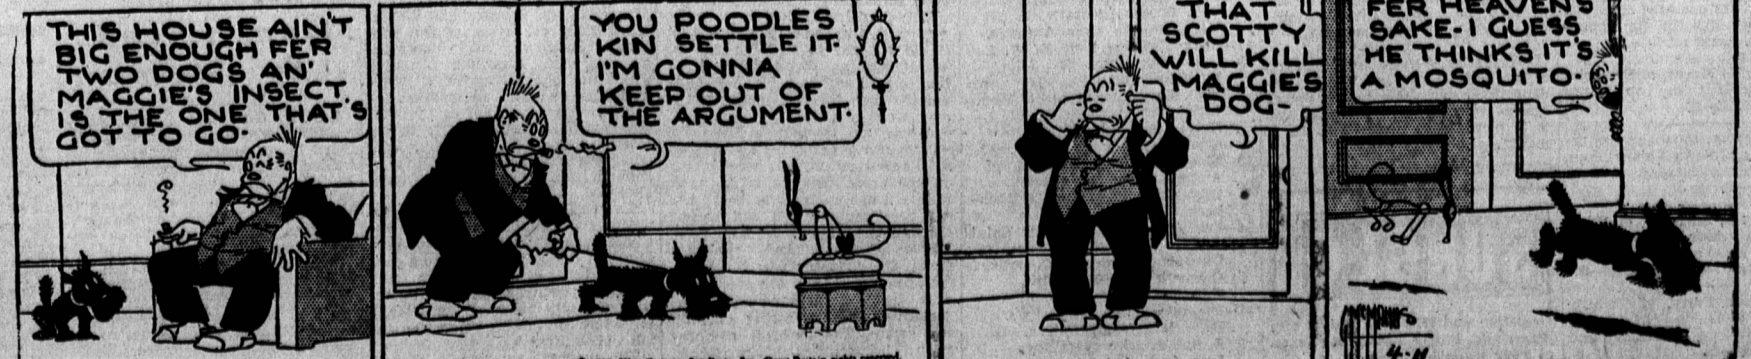

In a lonely spot in Devonshire there lives a dog who belongs to no one in particular, but who possesses many friends—and all his friends are convicts.

He is known as "The old dog o' Dartmoor," and that seems to be the only name he has. Where he goes at night nobody knows, but each morning he is seen making his way up the little high street which leads to the prison, in order to be on time to meet his friends when the great iron gates open. Then, with a satisfied wag of his tail, he trots along beside the men to the farm where they work, happy to be in their company until it is time for them to return to the jail. Then he walks slowly back with them, anxiously watching them as they pass through the iron gates into the building again.

Dartmoor is as bleak a stretch of country as may be found in England, and when the rain beats across the landscape few people care to be abroad. Yet the faithful friend of the convicts takes no heed of storms, and may be seen outside the gates in the severest weather, his coat soddened, his patient eyes blinking in the rain, waiting for them to appear.
