"THE LOVE PENDULUM"
BY MARION RUBINCAM

MOON MADNESS

Chapter 12
I thought a while, looking up from my corner of the hammock at him as he stood in front of me, his face dimly lit by the glow of his cigarette.

"The real things," I repeated. "Well, your mother knows the real things of life. She grew up learning them. Then when she was old enough she was able to put them into practise. She knows what it is to love and take care of—of someone she loved." I added lamely. "She knows what it is to keep a charming home, to bring up a child to be a strong and healthy man. Surely these things are the real things in life! Her husband's health and happiness and comfort depended upon her proficiency and knowledge; your whole well-being depended on her. What is it to be able to talk three languages and to sing and dance a little, to say the right thing at the right moment, to run a car—or do the worthless things I have done?"

Winthrop said nothing. Then I went on again—
"If one of us had to die, which would the world miss most—I, who have been trained to be an ornament, or Ella who looks after a whole family of little brothers and sisters?"

Winthrop laughed and dropped down on the couch beside me. "I'd spare Ella to have you!" he laughed.

He smoked awhile. Then he began:
"I want to go to the city to live. But as you can see, Mother won't let me. She's a very charming, lovely lady, and I am very fond of her. But she still thinks I'm not grown up and she won't let me go to the city."

"She thinks something would happen to me. At the same time, she won't go along, because she has always lived here in Wellsville and she would be like a cat in a strange garret anywhere else. She would not even live in any other house in the town, and when they were going to build a row of houses opposite our place, she bought up the whole block at an exorbitant price to keep it as it was!"

"That's sweet of her, to have so much sentiment."

"Sweet, but silly too. She lost money. Our part of town is going down, our place is worth less than when it was in Wellsville and she's building down our way—that means small houses, for the cheap workers. The good people are moving to the east end. But that doesn't worry Mother, who has enough for me to live on always. If I went, she would insist on sending me an allowance at first because I could not get a position to pay enough to live comfortably. But I would not mind being poor for the sake of living where I want to be. But she cries her eyes out at the idea of my going away—I stay on."

His voice was full of restlessness and discontent.

"It's such a sweet place to stay on," I tried to console him. "Winthrop, so quiet and lovely here and the people are the real sort—they're wholesome, unworldly, kindly, they don't rush all day long, they don't do dishonest things to make an extra dollar, they don't strain their voices to talk about the well and rear of the city, they don't crowd and push and they don't stay up all night dancin' in bad ventilated dance halls and drinking and eating indigestible foods. They don't try to dress and act as though they had more money than they really have. It isn't necessary."

"It isn't possible. Everyone in Wellsville knows what everyone else is making."

"That's the beauty of it, it puts things on a firm, solid basis. Oh Win, if you knew how tired I am of the little sham and deceit and the empty life of the city, the late hours, the women with painted faces and the men with shiny eyes! I adore this place, it has sunshine and sweetness in every corner of it!"

"Connie dear, you almost make me like it." Somehow as I was speaking, I had put out my hand. Win took it suddenly.

I sank back against the big pillows, weak and trembling in an instant.

He had called Connie dear; he had taken my hand, and was holding it. I felt for an instant as though everything in life were coming towards me. I turned towards him, still acting, not logically, but instinctively.

And I turned to meet his arms. It happened so quickly, so unexpectedly, that even now I don't see how it happened that way at all. We were talking of shams and realities—and there, all at once, he had his arms around me.

"Connie, sweetheart," he said, "you are the only real thing in life!"

The only real thing in life!

Interesting Story
Of Methodist Church
In Charlottetown

The following interesting paper was read by Mr. Henry Smith at a supper given by the trustees and the Ladies Aid of the Methodist Church to the men of the congregation, in the new addition of the Sunday School room on Thursday evening.

In this, the first gathering in our new Sunday School rooms, it may not be out of place to make some reference to the previous history of our church in Charlottetown, and review some of the events that made possible this splendid Sunday School equipment that we now enjoy. We are the heirs of all ages and because, through a century and a quarter the Methodist people were loyal to the cause and willing to make sacrifices for the Church of their choice we are here tonight. These fine buildings in which we are able, with so much comfort and convenience to worship, and where the Sunday School can be carried on with the most modern and improved methods, did not come to us without great cost and endeavor.

In the early days the Methodist people had many difficulties to overcome. In Charlottetown the first place of worship, which they occupied for nearly twenty-five years, was a simple and unpretentious structure which was never completely finished. In this building in 1816 the first Sunday School organized in Prince Edward Island was opened with twenty members. In 1824 a Missionsary Society was formed which was carried on for upwards of fifty years and through the noble efforts of its members large sums of money were annually raised for the support of the work in the foreign field. During the period this first Church was occupied the cause grew, from a mere handful, until the building became too small for the needs of the Society. It was deemed necessary to procure a new site and erect a large church in a more convenient part of the town.

PURCHASE OF THE LAND

In 1833 the land on which the Heart Memorial Hall now stands was purchased about 700 persons was erected in the vestry of the church, on Richmond Street, and Sunday School service were held. This school would not be considered up to date in this progressive age. It met twice each Sunday, at 9.30 for an hour in the forenoon and at 2.30 for an hour and a half in the afternoon for the story of the Bible. The Superintendent and the male teachers took turns in opening the School, and it was always closed by an address from one of them. Special interest was taken by the different classes in the collections, in which the boys and girls vied with each other and the money collected was given to Missions. This was in the fullest sense of the word a Mission Sunday School. The event of the year for the children however was the annual Sunday School picnic which was held in Kensington grounds, near where the Exhibition Buildings now stand. The entire school marched from the church to the picnic grounds with flags and banners and the procession, which proceeded up Prince Street and along Kent to the grounds was quite an interesting sight. On the Sunday evening preceding the picnic the anniversary services were held. The children, who conducted the singing, were assembled in the galleries of the church and a special sermon suitable to the occasion was given.

It may be of interest to know that from this church and Sunday School twenty young men entered the ministry, most of whom joined the conference of Eastern British America.

Within the period from the erection of the first church in 1816 the Methodist people in Charlottetown had so increased in numbers and prosperity that they considered that there should be a larger and better building erected for the worship of Almighty God.

THE LAYING OF THE CORNER STONE

In September 1862 the Trustees bought the land on the corner of Prince and Sydney Streets adjoining the old chapel, and in May of the following year the corner stone of the church we now occupy was laid. Many persons at the time thought such a building as it was proposed to erect would be too large and expensive, but the Trustees were men of vision and courage, and from the experience of the previous years they had reason to believe that the undertaking would not be too great. The years that followed fully justified their action. The building when finished cost about forty thousand dollars ($40,000.00), which would today repeated at least one hundred and twenty-five dollars ($125,000.00). Soon after the Church was opened the Trustees had paid off three quarters of the entire cost of the building. This illustrates the spirit of enthusiasm and generosity that animated the men of that day.

LATER DEVELOPMENTS

Upon the union of the two Methodist churches it was found that the Sunday School accommodation was altogether inadequate and as a remedy several proposals were discussed, but none were found feasible. The Committee then recommended that the floors of the Church basement be raised to within one foot of the street level and that the whole space be utilized for the Sunday School and Social purpose. This recommendation was unanimous and the work was proceeded with at once.

With our present improvements we have Church and Sunday School accommodations spacious

Fireman Says It Saved Him On Two Occasions

Armand Giroux, one of Montreal's most popular firemen, at Station No. 5, Ontario St., West, residing at 1706 a Delaroché, is well aware of the absolute necessity of a clear brain, cool nerve and robust body for performing the difficult and dangerous duties that are a part of his day's work.

While discussing his splendid health and superb physique at the fire station the other day, Mr. Giroux said:
"I have found that the best way to keep in condition is to keep the stomach and digestion in good shape, and for this purpose, Tanlac is my faithful 'stand by.' On two occasions I have had an attack of grip, and eaten each case I took Tanlac.

"Well, in each instance Tanlac thoroughly toned up my system, restored my appetite and brought back all my strength and energy. I know the value of Tanlac, so I never experiment by trying other medicines."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

ed in the Maritime provinces and possibly anywhere in Canada.

This Church has been handed down to us absolutely free from debt and it is a legacy of which any congregations should be justly proud. The improvements we have made here cost about six thousand seven hundred dollars as part of which has already been paid out of invested funds. There is still, however, the sum of $3,750.00 still, and it is expected that this amount will be subscribed at once by the congregation and the payments made in a reasonable time.

Amateur Athletic Union And Olympic Games

Sir—As the next Olympic Games will be held in Paris during the Summer of 1924 the Maritime Branch A. A. U. of C. have outlined an ambitious programme to develop as many as possible of our Maritime Athletes for competition at the final Trials which will be held likely at Montreal in June next year.

To this end Committees have been appointed as follows: For Prince Edward Island—L. B. McMillan, Chairman, S. F. Doyle, Secretary and Dr. Yeo, at Charlottetown; Leonard McNeill at Summerside and A. F. Campbell at Montague; For Nova Scotia—A. C. Millie, Chairman, J. G. Quigley, Secretary at Halifax; Frank Lucas at Sydney, D. W. Fraser at Anherst, D. McLeod at Antigonish, A. H. Chesley at Kentville and A. W. Harris at Pictou. For New Brunswick G. P. Bolton Chairman, E. H. Vickers, Secretary at Sussex, H. E. Richard and P. J. Legge at St. John, J. D. McBeath at Moncton, Dr. Allan Stirling at Fredericton, M. J. Rutledge at Woodstock and George McEade at Chatham. The above mentioned with myself will form the Maritime Olympic Committee.

Our programme as laid out is for village meets wherever possible before the end of June, county meets in each Province before the end of July, at which a member of the committee will be present to look over likely material for the Provincial Championships which will be held about the 15th of August, these will be followed by the Maritime Championships at Charlottetown on August 29th and the Dominion Championships at Halifax on September 15th. Special incentive medals will be given to the winners of County and Provincial meets. The funds raised at these meets will go to a Central Committee for the purpose of defraying expenses of a coach and the transportation of men from out-lying districts to the Maritime and Dominion Championships.

The idea of Village meets is to bring out if possible new talent so as to develop it before the big trials next Spring. Your cooperation will greatly assist the Committee in getting things under way, as we believe the Maritime Provinces have the finest capable of winning places at the Olympic games. I trust that you will give us all the support possible to see that the Maritime Provinces get a fair representation on the Canadian Olympic Team.

Thanking you for past favours in boosting Amateur Sport,
I am Sir etc.

"The little rain we had was worth a million dollars to the Province," said Chief Forester Prince, "and it would take a continued and general downpour of many hours to bring permanent relief."
