There is something refreshingly wholesome in the thought that one week in the year is set aside in most communities as a period for chasing dirt and cleaning up all round. Young and old, rich and poor, in mansion and cottage, all do their bit in the drive for healthful cleanliness.

It goes without saying that women folk are in the forefront of this campaign for theirs is the all-the-year round job, simply intensified during this one week.

"Tidying up" is the average woman's second nature—(don't men know it)—and, for this reason the inside of most homes are clean and sanitary, thanks to "elbow grease" and modern mechanical labor-saving devices. But to the community at large, it is the outside "cleaning up" that comes as a duty. Cleaning-up front yards, cleaning-up back yards, cleaning-up verandahs, doors, floors, a coat of paint here, some new shingles there not just to make them look nicer but to make cleaner, more healthful, safer surroundings for everybody.

The reward of a successful "Clean-up Week" is found in the realization of a job well done, assistance in the way of work given to those who badly need it and a spick and span community in surroundings that are a pleasure to the eye and a source of comfort and healthful enjoyment to all concerned.

We as citizens should take a pride in our City, our homes, places of business, the public squares and should co-operate with City officials in this all-important week.
