—HAYING TIME IN NEW ZEALAND—A letter has been received by his folks in Kensington from Billy Higgins, who left Kapus Kasling, Northern Ontario, last fall and crossed the Pacific to "down under." While waiting for work to begin in the Christmas holidays in a big new paper mill, he worked on a few days of one of the large farms. He says that New Zealand is a farmers "paradise." No winter. Three crops a year, with no frost. The climate is just what he needs for a few weeks and most people go to the beaches. The people are inveterate tea drinkers, among whom this diversion has become almost a religious rite. There is a story to the effect that firemen were called from the roof of a building to have tea. On the first morning after his arrival a waitress knocked at his room door and announced, "here's your tea mister."

—RUNAWAY CAUSES EXCITEMENT—A good deal of excitement was caused yesterday morning in Summerside when the horse of the Ideal Dairy Milk Wagon apparently took fright at something when leaving the house at the upper end of Granville Street and dashed down the full length of the street to Water Street, where he swerved and turned by the railway station, fortunately he did not come in contact with any other vehicles on his way, but at the station the commotion caused by the horse's antics made the second runaway have more than a touch of the "red" in it. Claude Kenney, the veteran driver of the wagon, was in the situation of a man trying to control a wild animal to a standstill. The ideal wagon was not hurt, but in making the turn at the station he fell turning over the wagon and the remainder of the milk bottles that were left in the wagon, Mr. Kenney's quiet action was favorably commented on by those nearby.

—Must Protect Neutrality—Informed sources later said the Prime Minister's statement should be interpreted as meaning that Norway and other neutral states must be prepared to protect their neutrality. It was the duty of a neutral state to be active, not passive, in its impartiality and to take all steps to make absolutely certain it was not aiding a belligerent or granting it privileges. Shortly after Mr. Chamberlain spoke a French government spokesman said the French and British navies would take "all measures" to make sure that Norwegian waters are not used for belligerent purposes. The Altmark incident justifies the French and British admiralties in any acts of reprisals they consider necessary, an official French statement declared. The British government was accused by the Paris spokesman of carrying on "acts of war" in Norwegian waters, using them as a base for operations in the North Sea. Mr. Chamberlain used today's Commons session for a quick attack on the Norwegian view of the Altmark incident without waiting for an official report of the statement which foreign minister Halvdan Koib had made before the Norwegian parliament yesterday.

—Complete Indifference—He recited Norway's failure to "carry out a proper investigation" of the Altmark and declared: "I find it difficult in these circumstances to resist the conclusion that Norwegian authorities have displayed complete indifference as to the use of which might be made of their territorial waters by the German fleet. Even if such indifference was due to German pressure, it is nevertheless in the view of His Majesty's government inconsistent with the active and impartial exercise of the duty of a neutral toward ourselves as belligerents." The session was held against a background of continued popular praise of the navy's bold action of last Friday night in freeing the Altmark prisoners. After the Prime Minister spoke the opposition heartily endorsed his speech. His statement was frequently interrupted by applause.

Overseas Troops Find Life Is Full Of Activity

By Edwin Johnson Canadian Press Staff Writer

ALDERSHOT, Feb. 20 (CP)—From buck private to commander, the Canadian troops are finding night life in their training camps here crowded with activity of absorbing diversity. There is little time for boredom or brooding. Tonight I motored along roads and into camps housing Canadian soldiers from every section of the Dominion. Everywhere the scene was similar—men on the march in full battle kit, some wearing gas-masks; squads engaged in night patrol convoys and dispatch riders on practice manoeuvres and a happy mixture of carefree wholesome fun.

On this barnstorming tour through the inky blackout my travelling companions were Captain Victor McLean, Vancouver, director of auxiliary war service work and Captain Greig MacDiarmid, Montreal, of the Canadian Y. M. C. A. We lost our way frequently but finally reached our first objective—the camp of the West Nova Scotia Regiment. When we got there we discovered that we had passed a company of the regiment more than a mile back.

Realistic Exercises—The steel-helmeted Maritimers reached camp splattered with mud they had collected on realistic exercises in a nearby wood. In small groups they milled about a trench, a fox-hole, a pillbox, a mine trap, a hot tea after their chilly trek. Elsewhere in their camp similar services were supplied to other groups by officers of the Legion of War Services and the Salvation Army.

In the centre of the khaki group walked the thin figure of an officer in battle dress making certain all his men were being attended to. It was Ontario's Lieut.-Colonel M. F. Grogan, V. C., officer commanding the battalion who had personally conducted the company on patrol.

"That was a nice show you put on tonight boys," he called to the troops as he drank a cup of tea himself. "Now go and get yourselves a good night's rest."

But the men didn't go to bed, they sat up in their recreation huts but they streamed just in time to take in a movie show arranged by Max Ford of Westmount. Que. It was a program of comics and the stars were the Canadian Air Force and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. A number of piano selections they are planning to broadcast to Canada in a few weeks. Among the numbers were the marching song "Canada" which they composed.

In a nearby camp auditorium the Edmonton Regiment orchestra under the direction of Sgt. Stanley Borden was playing a crowd of community singing by men not only from the Alberta unit but also representative groups of the Prince Edward, the North and the West Nova Scotias.

The concert concluded, the audience dispersed to canteens, reading rooms and recreation rooms. Ping pong games were in full swing, dart boards took heavy punishment and other pastimes were going on amid a chorus of laughter and good-natured banter.

Friendly Frolic—In the town skirting this area of the camp there was the same friendly frolic wherever the Canadians gathered. There in a hut built by German prisoners in the last war they mingled with Imperial Troops at a dance. They were having the time of their lives teaching the bilge bellies the intricacies of Canadian swing steps and learning a few themselves.

But throughout our tour there were constant reminders that the thoughts of the Canadian boys are close to the folks back home. Whenever there was space to write, pen or pencil they were writing letters—even at tables lining the walls of the dance hall.

—Fair Day Pledge— "We pledge ourselves to deal fairly and equitably with all enlisted men in the matter of pay allowances, pensions, etc. We shall ensure that all dependents of enlisted men, in the Army, Navy or Air Force, are justly and honorably treated." He promised "the closest cooperation" with Britain and other parts of the British Commonwealth in their training schemes. We propose the despatch of independent units of the Royal Canadian Air Force separate from the Royal Air Force but working in close cooperation with it.

—No Interference With Liberties—Dr. Manion said these boards would be regulated so there would be "no unnecessary interference with the liberty of the people" and so the boards would always be responsible to the Government and Parliament. As soon as the war is over and normal conditions restored, the boards would be abolished in order to remove any danger of the growth of a bureaucratic control of our national life.

—Because the people should be taken into the confidence of the Government and kept fully informed of the national war effort, the bill will ask for and obtain the enthusiastic assistance of the press, our prominent writers and our most able radio speakers in the establishment of an energetic bureau of information. "Censorship and other regulations which interfere with the freedom of the press and freedom of speech, will be submitted immediately for review by a Parliamentary Committee, to ensure that there are no unnecessary restrictions."

First Meeting Of Series To Be Held Here

By Edwin Johnson Canadian Press Staff Writer

—FREDERICTON, N. B., Feb. 20 (CP)—First of three meetings to stimulate the production of high-grade beef cattle in the Maritimes will be held at Charlottetown Friday afternoon, C. P. Bailey, president of the Maritime stock breeders' association announced here tonight.

Mr. Bailey revealed plans to institute new beef cattle classes at the 1940 maritime winter fair in an effort to stimulate interest in this phase of livestock breeding. Agricultural officials had decided that in the Maritimes there were four districts most suitable for beef cattle raising: the lower St. John River Valley, the Tantramar area, the Cornwallis Valley district of Nova Scotia, and a few sections of P. E. I. Mr. Bailey said.

Introduction of dairy breeds into these areas during the last 25 years had resulted in a serious reduction in the quality of the beef cattle without any outstanding results being achieved by those farmers who attempted to shift to the dairy industry.

A meeting similar to that scheduled for Charlottetown will be held at Kentville, N. S., later in the year, he said. In the Sackville-Armdale (Tantramar Marsh) area the farmers were ready for organization into a livestock improvement association. This would be done at a mass meeting of the farmers.

—MONCTON, N. B., Feb. 20 (CP)—J. R. K. Main, inspector of civil aviation for the department of aviation, said tonight that Canadian Airways plans to install two-way radio communication at Halifax and Saint John within the next few days.

This will provide constant ground contact with planes flying these routes from Moncton, he said. Inspector Main added that he could make no statement regarding his investigation of a Canadian Airways plane crash in Nova Scotia last week until his report had been submitted to Ottawa.

The inspector, who made an inquiry at Halifax and at the scene of the forced landing, arrived here today to interview James Wade, pilot of the plane when it crashed up after running into a blinding snowstorm near Halifax. The one passenger with Wade was injured.

Canadian Airways operate auxiliary services connecting Halifax, St. John and Prince Edward Island with Trans-Canada Airlines Maritime terminals at Moncton.

—NORWAY TO RELEASE NAZI PRISON SHIP—OSLO, Feb. 20 (AP)—Norway appears ready tonight to permit the stranded German ship Altmark to quit Norwegian territorial waters, but prospects of an early departure were dimmed by the disclosure that her propellers were broken.

Despite a British demand that the ship be interned, informed Norwegian circles indicated the government would give Captain Heinrich Doenitz the Altmark the go-ahead signal any time he wants to lift anchor.

While tension over the three-way diplomatic dispute among Norway, Britain and Germany persisted, feelings among Norwegians were stirred further by reports of two more blows to her already hard-hit shipping.

Lindbergh Gives Views On War Issues

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (CP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whose fame as an air hero lost its lustre for Canadians last autumn, has at a title in the current issue of a monthly magazine describing the struggle for material gain with no balance of "justification" on either side.

Lindbergh's questioning of Canada's right to enter the war because of her proximity to the United States and what he saw as the possibility of another European war in the United States—gave rise to widespread criticism last fall.

The German people, he now writes, are struggling to gain territory and power, the British and French to prevent another European nation from becoming strong enough to demand a share in influence and empire.

"It is the old story in a modern world—the right of conquest against the right of possession. Measured by their own standards of today, or their enemies' standards of yesterday and tomorrow, the Germans are as much in the right as the English and French, for right is not an absolute quality; it is relative to outlook, and outlook changes with conditions—varies from year to year and from generation to generation."

Several homes were destroyed at Lathi, where 11 alarms sounded during the day. Numerous fires were started at Hyvinkaae, 30 miles from Helsinki.

Other towns attacked included Masala, Helsinki suburb, where 100 homes were counted in the air; Helsinki and Hanko (Hangoo). The Soviet bombs marked the marks in the latter two towns, falling considerable distance beyond the corporate limits.

The Finnish defenders of the battle of Lathi were reported to have scattered a Soviet swarm of strange bug-like "air-motor sleds" which swarmed across the sea of Lake Ladoga in an attempt to seize a submarine land fortifications in a suburb coup.

At least 200 Russians were killed and the entire detachment dispersed, the Finns said, after the Russians "in great force" had set out from the Taipale area in a fleet of bobcats, powered by propellers.

Between the Gulf of Finland and Lake Muolaa, spearhead of the Red Army drive on the half-rund city of Viipuri, (Viborg), an official Finnish communiqué said with military terseness: "Enemy attacks continued." The attacks were repulsed.

On the ice of Lake Suvanto, Finland from Lake Ladoga near Taipale, Red Army infantry pressure also was broken, beaten back. Taipale, Lake Ladoga, Finland. Suvanto are on the eastern Lake minus of the Mannerheim line; besieged Viipuri, with the conflict almost at its end, stands behind the western end of the line, on the Gulf of Finland.

The undramatic language of the Finnish communiqué gave only a hint of the intensity and gravity of the struggle on the south of Viipuri—which Soviet sources have claimed would be captured by Friday.

Fighting drew so near to Viipuri, with artillery shells screaming amidst ruined buildings, that Finns gazed from the city as a sector of the fighting front, although not necessarily in immediate danger of capture.

—SNOW IN SAINT JOHN—SAINT JOHN, N. B., Feb. 20—Almost four inches of snow fell here today in what was believed to be the last end of New England's latest storm. The wind reached a maximum velocity of 25 miles per hour.

—O'Leary May Be Ineligible For Series—In the western section of the Intermediate hockey playdowns, the Summerside Intermediate were scheduled to play the O'Leary Maroons at the latter's home ice last night. However, this game did not take place because it was understood unofficially that the O'Leary team had not registered in the Island Intermediate playdowns and were therefore ineligible to play.

In the event of O'Leary being ineligible, the Summerside club will meet the winners of the 1940 National-Kensington series, it was announced last night. At present Borden have a 3 goal lead in the series by virtue of their 10-1 victory at Kensington rink Monday night. With the final game to be played in Borden it appears that the lead should be sufficient to carry the Nationals through the Kensington boys possess plenty of fight, however, and still have a chance to upset the apple cart.

—HOCKEY—A hockey game packed with action was played in Bedeque rink Monday night when the Freetown Maple Leafs defeated the Cape Traverse Three Stars to the tune of 4-0.

Alison Deacon opened the scoring in the first period as assists from Stavert and Clow.

In the second period A. Deacon came back again to set up a pretty play on which W. Stavert realized. It was only the expert goal-minding of T. Dawson that kept the Freetown boys at bay for the rest of the period.

The Three Stars forced the play in the third period only to have the Maple Leafs respond with two counters by MacFarlane and Burns. R. Cutcliffe and F. McWilliam broke away several times only to have Paynter keep them off the score sheet.

The game was clean throughout and no penalties were awarded. Lineups: Three Stars: Goal, T. Dawson; defence, L. McWilliams, J. Patterson; forwards, R. Cutcliffe, F. McWilliams, M. Sherrin, H. Gardiner, A. Howatt.

SWARMS OF RED PLANES HIT FINLAND

HELSINKI, Feb. 20 (AP)—Swarms of Soviet Russian bombers, about 800 according to estimates, swept over wide stretches of Finland in a series of raids today and tonight.

There were seven air raid alarms in Helsinki, the last from 11:30 p. m. (5:30 p. m. AST) to midnight and from four to eight in nearly every community across the southern part of the nation.

Two trains were reported bombed and machine-gunned, one during the day and one tonight. Two persons were wounded, including the engineer of one train en route to Turku, (Abo) where the alarms lasted into the night after three bombings yesterday.

Five of the raiders were reported shot down at Riihimaki and one at Haenkyroo. The latter is the birthplace of Frans Sillanpaa, Finnish novelist who won the 1939 Nobel Prize for literature.

Several homes were destroyed at Lathi, where 11 alarms sounded during the day. Numerous fires were started at Hyvinkaae, 30 miles from Helsinki.
