SANDRA THE JEALOUS

By Jane Pheips

CONFIDENTAL TALKS WITH NOTHER

CHAPTER LXXX.

Mother and I had long confidental talks. I told her how dreadfully put out I was at first when everyone said Everett had married me because of my coloring, that it was the same as his first wife's. And how terribly it made me feel to be called 'Number Two,' etc. She didn't laugh at me, nor even look amused. She just sympathized with me and told me she was sure she would have felt just exactly as I did under the same circumstances

"But everything in life has compensations, as I see you have discovered," she said gently. "Then, too, dear, one always has to adapt one's self to conditions. The first year of married life is always a trying one in many ways—with you perhaps more than usually so, because of the difference in your ages and the entire change in your way of living. I consider you have done very well, Dear, and if I am any judge, Everett thinks so also. I believe he cares a great deal for you."

"Do you really think so, Mother? I have thought so at times, and then something would happen to knock everything into a 'cocked hat' as Father says. But I do try — most of the time — to please him."

I had told Mother nothing of my intense jealousy of Leola, or my efforts to find out all about her so I could imitate her and win the same sort of affection from Everett that he gave to her. Someway I knew she wouldn't approve; that she would tell me to forget the first Mrs. Graham, and be happy in spite of her.

Neither did I mention the finding of Leola's wardrobe in the attic, and my determination to explore further. That, too, would meet with her disapproval, I was positive But I did tell her about taking Leola's pictures down, and sending them to the attic, and that Everett had insisted they be brought back immediaely.

She laughed a little then. Not enough to hurt me, and said:

"I guess most girls your age would have done that, Sandra. But she had done nothing to harm you You admit the picture was lovely. Then why, just because she had preceded you, care that it ornamented the walls — especially if Everett wished it there?"

"I don't mind it quite so much — now. But at first it hurt me dreadfully. I used to wonder if I had been married before if Everett would like the picture of my first husband staring at him all the time."

Mother now laughed heartily. But when she spoke it was very seriously:

"Sandra, dear, you married Everett of your own free will. I believe you are very fond of him, and that he really loves you. Do not let anything come between you. He is a fair-minded man. Give him your complete trust and faith. He is so much older, that at times— as you have confessed—his judgment seems harsh to you. But try and see both sides of every question that comes up. I want you to be happy, Dear—as happy as I have been."

The night before we went back home Mother gave a small dance for us. In all the time since I had married Everett. I never had been so proud of him as I was that night. He danced with all the girls. Rose included, and was so gay and entertaining that she whispered to me later:

"It's a shame that anyone who can be so charming should be such a brute in some ways."

"I will pardon your calling him a brute because you first said he was charming." I retorted quickly, at which she laughingly told me I was getting on when I could make such a reply.

"You will be a regular society dame by the time you are 30," she said. "I can see it coming."

"I have always—that is ever since I have been married—envied the women of Everett's set, Rose, because of their poise, their quickness of repartee, the way they fitted into any place they found themselves. That is why I am now reconciled to studying with Mrs. Barr, although I was furious about it at first," I rather enjoyed telling Rose of my change of ideas; she had seen so much, heard so much when visiting me, that was childish and unwise.

"It beats all how you have changed. I should never know you for the same girl."

"Sandra is changed for the better in many ways, Rose." Mother had come up quietly and had heard that last speech. "We are all very proud of her for the way she had adapted herself to the change in her, life a very great change for a girl of her age. Our simple way of living did not fit her to take charge of a menage like hers."

"Her home is really wonderful!" Rose enthused.

"As I have just promised Everett to visit them next month, I soon shall see my girl in her own home."

When the guests had gone I spoke of the promised visit.

"Everett was so insistent I had to set a time," Mother said as she kissed me good night.

Prince Visits B. C. Orchards

PENTICTON, B. C. Oct. 1.—The Prince of Wales learned a lot about British Columbia apples yesterday. A lake trip on the C. P. R. steamer Sigamous from Penticton landed him right in the heart of the orchard country through which he then motored for fifty miles.

Penticton gave the Prince a fine reception. At the chool house a car had been provided to carry the royal party down to the lake but H. R. H, set out on foot to walk the half mile, and 3,000 Penticton people went after him, the dust of the trudgers rising in great clouds.

If Back Hurts Use Salts For Kidneys

EAT LESS MEAT IF KIDNEYS FEEL LIKE LEAD OR BLADDER BOTHERS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here. take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

All Fat People Should Know This

The world owes a debt of gratitude to the author of the now famous Marmola Prescription, and is still more indebted for the reduction of this harmless, effective obesity remedy to tablet form. Marmola Prescription Tablets can now be obtained at all drug stores, or by writing direct to Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., and their reasonable price ($1.00 for a large case) leaves no excuse for dieting or violent exercise for the reduction of the overfat body to normal proportion.

CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangrous. Th following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double strength.) Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action, that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.
