The first erection of a small French Catholic Church about 200 years ago in the vicinity of what was then called "Hurd's Point," Lower Bédéque, combined with this anniversary they shall commemorate the first landing of Scottish immigrants about 150 years ago at Carleton Point and the establishing in 1803 of a small place of worship at the shore a few hundred yards below the present Seven Mile Bay Church. This original place of worship was later or about 1856 replaced by another, more in keeping with the improved condition of the people and marks the erection of the present St. Peter's Church, Seven Mile Bay.—S

—SCOUTS ENJOY OUTING—Eight of the Boy Scouts from the 1st Summerside Troop have returned from a seven day camp at Stanlakes Lane. This camp was not a Scout Camp as it was impossible to obtain a Leader to take charge and therefore the usual Badge work and training during the day was lost but the boys did their own cooking and enjoyed themselves to the limit. The Acting Scoutmaster J. E. Sorette, attended camp every night and was well pleased with the manner in which the boys carried on. The Acting Scoutmaster on behalf of the boys wishes to thank all those who so kindly assisted in making the camp a pleasant one especially the owner of the property Mr. Cairns. Regular Scout-meetings start Aug. 29th and it is hoped that all Scouts will be present on those nights so that Scouting will take its proper place in the Town of Summerside.—S

—FAREWELL GATHERING—The members of the choir, Sunday School teachers and officers of the Baptist Church gave a farewell gathering for one of their members, Miss Audrey Taylor, who is leaving on Monday for Quebec City to take up the nursing profession. The affair was in the form of a supper party and took place in the Hall Mr. C. B. Jelly, the Sunday School Superintendent presided. The tables were very daintily arranged with lovely flowers. C. G. I. T. songs were sung during the evening as Miss Taylor was one of the heads of the Baptist C. G. I. T. group. At the conclusion of supper Miss Taylor was presented with a lovely travelling bag and an address read by Mr. C. B. Jelly, in which was expressed the deep regret of those present at the departure of one, who had always been most active in Sunday School and Church work. Miss Taylor responded in a very fitting manner and said she would always have happy memories of her associations with the choir and Sunday School of the Baptist Church. The gathering broke up with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow".—S

IN MEMORIAM

WILLIAM HUGGAN

In the midst of the beautiful Sabbath of May 7th the gentle spirit of William Huggan of Hermitage winged its flight heavenward. The late Mr. Huggan who was in his 69th year had enjoyed good health until a few days previous to his demise. A slight cold developed pneumonia and despite the best medical skill and tender nursing he peacefully passed away on the above mentioned date.

A perfect workman, a true friend, a kind and considerate neighbor, he was beloved by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. Ever thoughtful of others it may truly be said his was a life of service for others. He leaves to mourn one sister Emma and one brother George, who have the sympathy of all in their time of grief. His funeral services conducted by the Rev. Mr. Pierce was largely attended. His remains by close friends were tenderly laid within the shadow of the Vernon River United Church in which he loved to worship, there to await the coming of the Judge of the living and of the dead in the hope of a glorious resurrection and a happy immortality.

Sensational Banking Rumors

DETROIT, Aug. 30.—(A.P.)—A U. S. Senatorial investigation "from top to bottom" of reports that an attempt had been made to establish branch banking in the country's key cities during the recent banking crisis today was proposed by Arthur J. Lacy, Attorney for U. S. Senator James Couzens, Michigan Republican, before the one-man Detroit bank jury. The jury, which for three months has been airing Michigan's financial troubles of last February, at times delving into the National Banking scene, heard Lacy declare that if rumors of such an attempt are true, it would constitute one of the highest financial crimes in the history of the country.

London Regaining Money Leadership

LONDON, Aug. 30.—(C.P.)—London is going quietly and methodically about the business of regaining her place as banker to all the world. With the United States now off gold, and the value of the dollar undetermined, the "City" sees no serious threat from any quarter to its leading position in the world of finance. True, sterling is still off gold, and is distinctly a managed currency, but the position of the remaining gold currencies remains uncertain enough to prevent Paris from taking the lead from London. Furthermore, the French fiscal position, with the budget unbalanced and new financing difficult, also tends to thwart Paris' financial ambitions. London bankers recognize that investors are still chary of foreign bonds, and are likely to remain so until world conditions improve vastly, particularly in view of the several sad experiences of recent years. But British investors have been trained by long years of foreign lending to regard the vicissitudes of foreign bonds somewhat philosophically, in contrast to American investors, whose introduction to foreign financing came only in the years since the war, and covered that period of frenzied competition for foreign issues by New York banks. On the whole, British bankers think their foreign investments have stood up much better than American, although they have many issues in default in Latin America and elsewhere.

London is beginning her new phase of overseas financing with the Dominions, and the City regards it as a bright feather in its cap that it had been able to bring Canada back to this market after she had transferred her financial allegiance to New York in the post-war years. The heavy over-subscription for the recent Canadian $75,000,000 loan was received as a distinctly hopeful augury. Other important operations here include an $85,000,000 Australian loan and a $65,000,000 South African refunding operation, both highly successful.

London's strongest point in international finance is her wealth of experience. At the outbreak of the Great War, when American foreign investments were negligible, British investments overseas were estimated at some $18,000,000,000, while French were only some $9,000,000,000 and German about $7,000,000,000. But in the post-war years, while British foreign investments increased but moderately, American funds abroad jumped to more than $15,000,000,000, and if the war debts were included in it, the total exceeded $22,000,000,000. Foreign lending is far more important to Great Britain than United States, inasmuch as foreign trade is a much larger proportion of her business. In fact, she cannot live without it. For the benefit of her trade with India, she poured money into that vast country, spreading railroads over its great distances. It was British capital that built the railroads of Argentina, and at an earlier day, it was an important factor in driving steel rails across the United States. London has always welcomed foreign branch banks, and the winding narrow streets of the City, the financial district, are sprinkled with branches of banking houses on the continent, from the Dominions, and the Far East. Sterling has become such a recognized international standard of value that bonds floated here commonly called for payment only in pounds, with no reference to gold, while bonds floated in New York and Paris have commonly called for payment in dollars and francs of a definite weight and fineness of gold.

How rapidly London may resume its former function of providing capital to the world remains problematical, in view of continued widespread unsettlement. Bankers here say there is still no market save for bonds of the very best rating. But London is choked with short term funds. Deposits of the London clearing banks are at record levels, and up about 10 per cent from a year ago.

Samuel Insull Again Detained

ATHENS, Aug. 30.—(A.P.)—The United States won a victory in the Athens Appeal Court today when it formally sanctioned the arrest and detention of Samuel Insull pending an extradition hearing. Despite appeals by his lawyers for liberty on bail and arguments that his arrest was unfair and the projected extradition proceedings unconstitutional, the former Chicago utilities operator was sent back under police guard to a private hospital where he has been held since Saturday.
