A somewhat exciting tussle took place on Grafton Street Saturday evening. An intoxicated man coolly embraced a passerby, and before the latter could recover from his astonishment, another personage possessing extremely long arms shot forth his fist hitting the liquor lover between the eyes, and felled him to the pavement. By the time the police had arrived the spectacular event was a thing of the past, as the warriors had wandered off in search of more

The Canadian Magazine for April makes another record in the magazine field in Canada. It gives a frontispiece of at least six colors, reproducing a fine drawing by C. W. Jefferys depicting the death of Brock at Queenston Heights. There is considerable colour throughout the magazine which in this respect is unusually attractive. The table of contents includes some strong names and equally strong contributions. Caldwell Smith comes first in importance, with an article entitled Labour and Socialism. Power: Wizard of Settlement, illustrated in colour, is a significant article, written by Clayton M. Jones. Other contributions are A Canadian Literature, by Arnold Haultain; Digby An Impression, by Newton MacTavish; Lord Milner's Imperialism, by John S. Ewart; with a number of choice short stories.

On Saturday afternoon last, hundreds of friends, and admirers, showed their last respects to the late Honorable George W. Bentley, who well deserved the title of "Nature's Nobleman." Both in private, and public life, this gentleman was ever noted for his integrity and honour. As Commissioner of Public Works his conscientious labor was of the highest order, and this is supposed to have been the cause of the early breakdown of his health. For a great number of years his health was very poor, but never did he really appear to be unhappy, living as he was at Kensington, and lovingly cared for by a devoted wife and family. While in politics he represented the Fourth District of Prince County. Besides his wife, he leaves a family of four sons and two daughters. The sons include W. E. Bentley of the law firm of McLeod and Bentley, of this City, and J. Augustus, Whitney, and Chas. Bentley. The daughters are Mrs. Paterson Walker, Kensington, and Miss Mamie Bentley. The funeral was held under the auspices of Mount Zion Lodge A. F. & A. M.
