Outstanding Gifts To Red Cross From Glenwood Institute

The contributions from Glenwood Women's Institute (O'Leary R.R.) during the past year have been worthy of special comment. The energetic ladies who compose this group besides doing their share of knitting and sewing for the armed forces and civilian relief have raised and donated $212.00 towards Red Cross war work. Last fall they had a Bean Supper on which they realized $40.00 and during the past summer they presented their play "Safety First" in six different districts and raised $165.00 in this way. These ladies certainly show the spirit that will win this war.

Report Italian Warships Steaming to Allied Ports

LONDON, Sept. 10—(Friday)—(CP)—The London Daily Mail said today that Italy's most powerful warships—three 35,000-ton battleships, the Littorio, Vittorio Veneto and Impero—had escaped with a fleet of cruisers and destroyers from La Spezia and now are steaming for Allied ports.

Other London morning newspapers carried the same report, quoting the Rome radio.

The Mail's account of the escape said there were indications that British warships are providing protection as the Italian ships steamed swiftly down the west Italian coast.

TOPCOAT IMPORTANT WARD ROBE ITEM

NEW YORK—Much importance is placed on the topcoat that girls will war on campus. The pacesetter in the opening group of one fall showing was a suave red ulster lined with black lapin. To show how smart it can look when it trots between dormitory and class room, these style monitors put it over a grey flannel skirt and black tuckin sweater cinched at the waist with a zebra fur belt. To add the final note of the season's important accessory style a long black scarf was thrown around the wearer's neck.

Other good coat numbers were a classic polo model lined in blond muskrat, a blue topper which showed its ocelot lining as it fell open and a dimout white tweed lined with white lamb. This is one of those double-duty affairs, for it can be as smart with slacks as it can with an evening dress.

Anyone who has ever heated milk on a stove knows how difficult it is to clean the pan afterwards. Next time rinse the inside of the pan thoroughly with hot water before putting the milk in. Then scald the milk and pop the pan into some rich suds. It will come clean as a whistle much more easily.

PEGGY'S WEDDING INVITATION

Peggy Dear:—
Just because you wouldn't listen—
Stop an' lissen'—now you're his'n.
Peggy, Peggy, I'll be missin'
My ole argumentin' Peggy.
On her way to school I see her,
Allus will the little dear,
Winsome, wistful an' so leggy.

Then she growed an' started fillin'
Out those curves the boys wuz thrillin',
Makin' all o' them so willin'
To get married in a hurry,
"Sure," I told her "One'll getcha,
Ef ya don't look out, ya betcha."
Well: its his turn now to worry.

But for all this foolish foolin'—
When the fires of love are cooling
Down to norma, may the ruling
Motive in your lives be real
Deep sincerity, inspiring
You together to desiring
To achieve life's true ideal.
To be real people, moving
On our way of life improving,
That may greater grow your loving
Through the pleasant hours or tearful:
Faithful, honest in your labors,
True, respected by your neighbors,
That your hearts betrue and cheerful:

Till the journey's end you're winning
Through life lived to Life beginning.

WASH, DON'T SOAK ALUMINUM UTENSILS

For the day to day treatment of aluminum, a washing, not soaking, in soapy water and a good scrubbing, is recommended by Consumer Information Service.

When Alkali stains from cooking vegetables occur they can be removed by cooking some acid-inclined, food like rhubarb or tomatoes in the same pan. Another method is to boil cream of tartar solution (two teaspoons cream of tartar to each quart of water) in the utensil for a few minutes.

If the food has become burned and some is left sticking to the sides of a pan, it may be removed with little trouble. If the water is boiled in it for ten or fifteen minutes, and it is then scraped with a wooden spoon or even a clothes pin, it will be as good as new.

made on the Island of Sardinia, and said that Italian troops in Corsica, between Sardinia and the French mainland, were expecting Allied planes to make at least "token landings" at Corsican airfields which are in Italian possession.

(There was no Allied confirmation of reports that Allied troops also had landed at Civitavecchia above Rome and at Leghorn on the Gulf of Genoa.)

German reaction was resolute, but it was said here that the opposition was no greater than had been anticipated. Some of the first Allied units ashore in the Naples area collided with German defenders, but in an all-day fight established a foothold in the area of the big Italian port.

Crucial Period To Come

The crucial period is likely to come when the first strong enemy counter-attack is hurled at the Allies, as was the case in Sicily.

In southern Italy, Gen Sir Bernard Montgomery's 8th army, which includes Canadian contingents, executed another successful coastal leap early Wednesday at Vibo Valentia on the Gulf of Eufamia, 30 miles north of Palmi. Gen. Montgomery put his troops on boats and sent them up the coast after finding that demolitions were checking his direct land thrusts.

YOUNG FOR CALL-UP

TOTNES, Devon, — (CP)—Mary MacFarlane received an enrollment notice and her final direction in fire prevention duties. Her porents said that Mary loved playing in water and can toot a whistle with gusto but, since she is but two years old, they would take no notice of call-up papers and risk having her sent to prison for three months.

If you are going to re-use wool in old sweaters, caps and hose, wash them first. Use mild soap and lukewarm water and handle the article carefully to prevent the woollen yarn from breaking. Rinse through four or five lukewam clear water baths. Lay out to dry on a turkish towel. There is no need to attempt to get the article back in its original shape, merely place it to dry easily. When perfectly dry the wool is ready to be unraveled and knitted into useful articles.

Two in Hospital After Accident On Highway

A serious accident occurred shortly after midnight Wednesday when two cars one proceeding to Mt. Stewart, the other travelling towards Charlottetown sideswiped each other, one quarter mile from York Road.

The car proceeding to Mt. Stewart was driven by William MacGregor and had four other occupants.

This car had fenders and running board torn off and tires damaged but none of the occupants were injured.

The other car, driven by James Bradley, Charlottetown, which had seven occupants, was forced into the ditch and four of the occupants injured. All were driven to Charlottetown in a passing car and the four injured persons taken to Charlottetown Hospital where it was found that James Bradley had a fractured jaw and Cornelius Murphy a dislocated shoulder. The others, suffering only minor injuries were released.

The car was very seriously damaged.

The Charlottetown Hospital reports that the two patients are resting comfortably.

What Badoglio Told Hitler

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 — (AP) — Following is the text of a telegram from Marshal Pietro Badoglio to Hitler as broadcast by the Rome Radio and recorded today by the U. S. Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service:—

When I took over the government at the moment of crisis brought about by collapse of the Fascist Regime, my first decision and my first appeal which I addressed to the Italian people were for continuation of the war to defend Italian territory against the imminent danger of foreign invasion.

I did not hide from myself the very grave situation in which Italy found herself, her poor chances of resistance and the immense sacrifices she would be yet called upon to make.

But the sense of duty which every responsible statesman owes to his people prevailed over these considerations. That is to say, it was necessary to avoid Italian territory falling prey to foreigners.

And Italy continued to fight, continued to suffer destructive bombardment, continued to face sacrifices and sorrow in the hope of preventing the enemy who already was master of Sicily - - a great loss most deeply felt by the Italian people- -from crossing to the mainland.

Notwithstanding all our efforts, our defence has crumbled. The enemy advance could not be halted. The invasion is proceeding. Italy has no powers of resistance left.

Her large cities beginning with Milan and Palermo have either been destroyed or occupied by the enemy. Her industries have been paralyzed, her communications, of such importance because of the topography of the country, have been thrown into confusion.

Her resources are completely exhausted, one reason being the serious and increasing restrictions on imports from Germany.

No part of Italy is safe from enemy attack, having no adequate defence, as has been proved by the fact that the enemy was able to land as he pleased and when he pleased, in considerable force which grew each day in numbers and in might, crushing all resistance and laying waste the country.

Under these conditions the Italian Government could no longer assume responsibility for continuing the war which already has cost Italy, apart from loss of her colonial empire, destruction of her towns, annihilation of her industries, of her merchant navy, of her railway network and, lastly, invasion of her own soil.

One cannot ask the people to continue the fight when all legitimate hope, I do not say of victory, but even of resistance, has vanished.

To avoid total ruin Italy, therefore, was forced to address a request for an armistice to the enemy.

Housing Program Is Extended

OTTAWA, Sept. 9 — (CP)—The government has embarked on a $1,000,000 extension of its housing-conversion program, to provide more living accommodation in Ottawa, Hamilton, St. Catherines and Brantford, Ont., Montreal, Quebec and municipalities adjoining them.

All those centres have experienced big wartime population increases. The government expenditure is to pay for conversion of large home and other suitable buildings into multiple housing units.

The order in council authorizing the spending of an extra $1,000,000 was published today in Canadian war orders and regulations. The scheme already had been put into effect in Toronto, Vancouver, Victoria and Ottawa.

Commander Connolly Takes Over Toronto Naval Training Centre

The following item appeared in a Toronto paper of recent date:

A new commander is at the helm of H.M.C.S. York, the land-locked training craft that was the automobile bulding at the C.N.E. before it became Canada's No. 1 naval basic training centre. He is Commander J.J. Connolly, lean and tanned, former post-office employee from Charlottetown, P.E.I., who already has seen two years service at sea.

Commander C. C. Orde, former commander, has been promoted to a post on H.M.C.S. Niobe, a larger Canadian naval training base in Scotland.

Commander Connolly went to sea in 1927, when he joined the R.C.N.V.R. Since then, he has combined his post office work with seafaring. He was promoted to his present rank last July.

Commander Connolly had two years' active war service aboard a Canadian craft "that was a little larger than a corvette." He was engaged in convoy duty. " We saw some action," he said, "and it always was during dirty weather."

The new commander's wife accompanied him to Toronto.

Nazis Strive To Repair "Fortress"

By John Colburn
Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 9 —(AP)— The Germans strove mightily by political as well as military action to repair the damage caused by the bombshell thrown into their Mediterranean arrangements by Italy's divorce from the war.

They set up a puppet Italian Regime to lure Italians from Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio and the attractive promises of peace with appeals to save the "honor of Italy", but they admitted by implication that political and military events had taken a highly confusing turn, so much so that instances of "local resistance" by Italian troops to German forces had occurred.

Italians here regarded the new government as little more than a "comic opera" regime, which would gain few followers.

Berlin emitted a stream of radio proclamations and "orders" from the new government set up to carry on where Mussolini left off.

One order instructed Italian naval commanders and ship captains to disregard the Allied orders to flee to North Africa or other Allied ports, and threatened that such ships as disobeyed the German instructions would be bombed.

The 8th Army already holds a 40-mile section of the Italian toe after gaining possession of the trans - peninsular road between Gioia and Locri, and is being steadily reinforced with troops dispatched from Sicily. More German prisoners have been seized in the fighting on that front, the communique said.

There still was no definite indication whether the Italian Army is engaged in the conflict, except for possible clashes with the Germans, although Berlin broadcasts heard here asserted that a new Fascist Government had been set up in Italy.

Marshal Badoglio's Regime apparently was still in the saddle at Rome, however. The Rome Radio was heard broadcasting again this morning the text of Badoglio's announcement of unconditional surrender to the Allies, and his order to Italian troops to resist should they be attacked from any other quarter, meaning Germany.

Press Opposes Argentina's Foreign Policy

MONTEVIDEO, URUGUAY, Sept. 9—(AP)—The Buenos Aires correspondent of the Montevideo newspaper El Pais said today that the suspension of the only newspaper in the Argentine Capital to comment on the United States refusal to grant lend-lease aid to Argentina had provoked a crisis within the cabinet of Gen. Pedro Ramirez.

The correspondent said the newspaper Noticias Graficas had been suspended for an indefinite period after it commented editorially yesterday in favor of the United States refusal of lend-lease supplies and attack on the pro-Axis policy of the Ramirez Government.

The action was taken, El Pais said, even though Foreign Minister Vice-Admiral Segundo R. Storni had announced the newspapers would be free to express their opinions on the exchange of letters between Storni and State Secretary Cordell Hull which was published Tuesday.

The Government wanted, the correspondent said, to submit the whole question to a kind of editorial plebiscite, but most publishers abstained from comment because, nearly unanimous in support of Hull's stand, they feared to express their opposition to the military authorities.

Noticias Graficas said in its editorial yesterday that "with or without purpose, with full knowledge or not, the Argentine Government, created June 4, has not followed the feelings and hopes of the country in the matter of international policy."

The El Pais correspondent said that despite Storni's assurance that no cabinet crisis was in the offing, "the position of some Ministers has become delicate."

Henry Owen Williams, 87, director of contracts for the munitions ministry during the First Great War, died recently at Harpenden, Hertsford. He entered the war office in 1875.

One-tenth of Canada's People In War Plants

OTTAWA, Sept. 9—(CP)—Munitions Minister Howe, reviewing Canadian industrial activity in four years of war, announced today that 1,100,000 workers now are turning out munitions at the rate of $55,000,000 worth a week.

Since Sept. 9, 1939, expenditures in the Dominion on war construction and production have amounted to $6,500,000,000. More than $720,000,000 has gone into new factories, land sites and machinery and from these and other plants have come munitions valued at almost $5,000,000,000.

1943 Peak Year

The minister termed 1943 the year of "peak production" and said that in the year ended Sept. 1, expenditures on war production totalled $3,094,000,000. This figure did not include food, metals, timber and other materials produced in Canada, for war purposes but not included in contracts held by the munitions department.

Referring to the more than $800,000,000 spent on new plants and equipment during the four war years, Mr. Howe said:—

"The Dominion has undergone an industrial transformation which, under normal circumstances, could not have taken place in less than 25 years."

Reviewing the general war production record, Mr. Howe had this to say:—

"By the end of this year Canada will have launched approximately 750 ships and delivered more than 10,000 aircraft. Military vehicle production will have passed the 600,000-mark and armored fighting vehicle output the 35,000-level.

"The nation will have turned out nearly 100,000 guns, barrels and mountings as well as 1,000,000 small arms.

"It will have manufactured more than 1,000,000 tons of explosives and war chemicals; some 60,000,000 complete rounds of heavy ammunition as well as in excess of 3,000,000,000 rounds of small arms ammunition. The total dollar value of the instruments and communications output will be nearing $300,000,000."

Present Weekly Output

Mr. Howe reported that the present weekly output of Canadian war industries is six or more ships, 80 aircraft, 4,000 motor vehicles, 450 armored fighting vehicles, 940 guns, barrels or mountings, 525,000 rounds of heavy ammunition, 13,000 small arms, 25,000,000 rounds of small arms ammunition, 10,000 tons of chemicals and explosives, and $4,300,000 in instruments and signal equipment.

Expenditure of $3,094,000,000 on war production and construction under munitions department contracts for the year ended Sept. 1 compared with $1,957,000,000 for the year ended Sept. 1, 1942; $871,000,000 for the year ended Sept. 1, 1941, and $255,000,000 for the year ended Sept. 1, 1940.

The number of employees directly and indirectly engaged in war work at Sept. 1 was more than three times the 300,000 of Sept. 1 1940.
