The SEA HAWK

He was answered by an old roving water hand and rendered greatly surprised. "We are trapped here as Dragnet was trapped at Jerba."

But I waste my breath in argument," he ended abruptly. "You have heard the commands of your lord, Asad-el-Din, and that should be argument enough. No more of this, then."

CHAPTER XXVIII THE MESSENGER

For the rest of the day she kept the cabin, chatting with anxiety to know what was toward, and the more racked by it because Sak-el-Bahr refrained through all those hours from coming to her. At last, towards evening, unable longer to contain herself, she went forth again, and as it chanced, she did so at an untimely moment.

The sun had set, and the evening prayer was being recited aboard the galasse, her crew all prostrate. Perceiving this, she drew back again instinctively, and remained screened by the curtain until the prayer was ended. Then, putting it aside, but without stepping past the Nubians, who were on guard, she saw that on her left Asad-el-Din, with Marzak, Biskaine and one or two other officers was again occupying the divan under the awning.

"What are you saying?" he asked in English. "What are you saying?" he asked in English. "What are you saying?" he asked in English.

"I am wondering whether you could still swim as far, if so, you might find a more appetizing supper awaiting you at the end—aboard Sir John Killigrew's ship. You have not heard? The Silver Heron is at anchor in the bay beyond that headland. If I afford you the means, could you swim to her, do you think?"

"CLEAR, sparkling coffee—the color of rich, transparent amber—may be made in any Hotpoint Percolator."

STOMACH BLOATED WITH GAS

Mr. D. Zelinka of 15 East 26th Street, N. Y., writes: "I want you to know that no day passed for months and months that did not find my stomach bloated with gas and shooting pains darting through my stomach. I felt hungry at times, but as soon as I started eating, food nauseated me and I became bilious. My tongue was coated, had bad taste and breath was offensive. I never thought this could all be from my liver, but my liver it must have been, for the very first day after taking your wonderful Carter's Little Liver Pills I do feel like a new person. The pills do make them easy to take."
